

COMPANY I MILITIA COMPANY KEEL TO BE DISBANDED

Captain and Lieutenant Announce They Will Resign and Privates Fail to Re-enlist

NO SUPPORT BY TOWN, IS CHARGE

Marysville and Auburn Seek Organization—Other Guard News

Company I, second infantry, in Oroville is facing a crisis which may end in its being mustered out.

Colonel L. Bond and Major W. H. White attended the last drill and stated that the standard of efficiency had not been maintained.

Sergeants Hubbard and Smith have refused to re-enlist owing to their superior officers' announced plan of retiring.

Brigadier General Mills, chief of militia affairs at Washington, D. C., has issued the following bulletin notes.

"Neither transportation nor horse hire of a sergeant instructor of cavalry on duty with the organized militia during a tour of duty with the cavalry of the regular army can be legally charged against a state's allotment under section 1661, Revised Statutes.

"Sergeants detailed for duty with the organized militia will wear the uniform of the arm of the service from which they are detailed; that is, sergeants of cavalry, for example, detailed for duty with the organized militia, although transferred to the infantry, will wear the uniform of the cavalry."

"Officers or enlisted men, or both, participating in instruction camps or camps where the number attending from different organizations, may be mustered for pay on one set of payrolls. In these cases the organization (regiment and company), corps or staff department to which each officer or enlisted man belongs must be set forth opposite his name in column of remarks on the payrolls."

"Whether, in firing rapid fire during the regular drills, a record score and the course previously used could be shot over as many times as required to make a good score is a question that a decision be given on this point in order that we all may work on the same basis."

"In answer to the above the decision is made that the record course for revolver or pistol shall be shot over but once. As much instruction practice may be given as is desired."

Among the militiamen sent to Marin county to fight the Mount Tamalpais fire were companies A, E and C, Fifth regiment, and Battery B, field artillery, of Contra Costa county.

SANTA CRUZ CAMP HAS ACTIVE DAY

SANTA CRUZ, July 12.—At the military camp of instruction there was unusual activity today. With the militiamen fairly well broken in as far as hard work is concerned the different maneuvers were well carried through and received the commendation of the regular army officers in charge.

The culinary department is presided over by experienced cooks, and the students are showing unusual aptitude in preparing army rations for the rank and file.

Ordinary drilling, such as guard mount, dress parade and skirmish drills, occupy considerable time, and careful instruction is bearing fruit in the way of daily improvement.

Captain Moseley's cavalrymen from Monterey presidio, as well as the crack hospital corps from the Presidio of San Francisco have something new daily in army tactics and occupied much of the morning instructing their understudies. The cavalrymen drilling in a separate field of their own attract much attention, and there is always a good sized gathering of civilians on hand to watch them.

Cornwallis - West Suit Wife Seeks a Divorce

American Widow's Hand Is Seen in English Court Sensation

LONDON, July 12.—Mrs. George Cornwallis-West, the former Lady Randolph Churchill and mother of Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, who before her marriage into English society, was a New York heiress, is about to sue her husband for divorce, according to the Pall Mall Gazette.

Mrs. Cornwallis-West is the most influential American woman in England. Her first marriage, in 1874, to Lord Randolph Churchill, brought her into the most exclusive circles of British society, and her second husband, George Cornwallis-West, comes of a family almost as distinguished.

Cornwallis-West, after he and his wife separated, went to live with his sister, the duchess of Westminster, in Eatonhall. The Cornwallis-West faction sided with the husband in the estrangement.

WOMAN ORDERED OUT OF HER HOME

Mrs. Louise Poularose sat in her home at 518 Turk street last night thinking how fortunate it was that she did not have to pay rent. There was a knock at the front door. She responded. The caller was a man. He said he was Charles Adler and that he had purchased her house and lot for $40, and that furthermore, he wanted her to get out just as fast as she could.

After listening to the woman's story, Detectives Burke and Kalmbach thought they identified the man as the same Charles Adler, who in 1911 attempted to shoot Judge Trabucco because of an adverse decision in a civil suit. The description of the man who called upon Mrs. Poularose also corresponded with that of Charles Adler, who was arrested several days ago upon complaint of Harry Pullen, secretary of the International Malleable company, who accused Adler of forgery and embezzlement by agent. The detectives went to the Boyd hotel, where Adler lives, but he was not there.

ARMY ORDERS

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The name of Major John B. Beardsley, twenty-second infantry, is placed on the list of detached officers and the name of Major Charles S. Farnsworth, infantry, is removed therefrom and he is assigned to the Sixteenth infantry.

SAYS WHITE MADE EFFORT TO KEEP HER LIPS SEALED

Woman Left Destitute by Gamblers of Waldorf Club Was Informed Nothing Could Be Done

ADVISED NOT TO SEE DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Police Collect Purse to Send Mrs. Atchity and Daughter to St. Louis

Chief of Police White and Detective Joseph Redmond made a strong and determined effort to keep secret the story of how Mrs. Beatrice Atchity and her little 2 year old daughter, Adele, were left destitute by the gamblers, who forced her husband out of $2,500, according to a statement made yesterday by Mrs. Atchity.

They not only, she says, refused at first to take any action against the Waldorf club, where Atchity lost his jewelry and money, but they endeavored in every possible way to keep her from going to the district attorney with her story and were frustrated in their efforts only by the insistence of Captain of Detectives Mooney, who wanted to raid the Waldorf, arrest its proprietors and close the place up.

The grand jury does not meet again until Thursday night, by which time, unless she is stopped by a subpoena, Mrs. Atchity will be unable to get available to testify before the inquisitors.

WOMAN DISTRUSTS CHIEF

Mrs. Atchity freely expresses the opinion that Chief White was not playing fair with her and does not desire to trouble with gamblers.

"When I went to him and tried to get him to help me," says Mrs. Atchity, Chief White told me he couldn't do anything for me. He said the Waldorf was an incorporated club and he dared not molest it.

"Captain Mooney was present and he said that it didn't make any difference whether the club was incorporated or not, its proprietors were suspicious characters and therefore he had a right to raid the place. He wanted to take some policemen and a wagon and go up there and raid the club right in the face and lead all the gambling paraphernalia into the wagon and bring it down to the police station."

Chief White insisted that he should not do anything of the kind. "Detective Joseph Redmond was standing near me, and instead of doing anything to help me, he kept asking me if my husband spent a professional gambler, if he had not been in trouble here and in New York and if the police didn't have something on him."

"I asked Chief White how I could see the district attorney to tell him about the matter, and he told me it would do me no good and insisted that I keep away from the district attorney. He seemed anxious to have me drop the whole matter. I wonder why?"

SAW DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Finally Mrs. Atchity did go to the district attorney's office, and she says that the only person who seemed to take any interest in the case, except Captain Mooney, was Assistant District Attorney Maxwell McNitt. He kindly questioned her as to where and how her husband had lost his money and left her and her little girl destitute, and seemed anxious to get real information upon which to act.

Chief of Police White's declaration that he could not raid the Waldorf club because it is incorporated is a denial by the court and police records, which show that the club had been raided twice prior to last night and that nine months ago its secretary, Roy Huriburt, was fined $250. It is acknowledged, also, by John Barneburg that the club is conducted mainly as a gambling club.

The police department does not admit that the object in sending Mrs. Atchity out of town is to get her out of reach of a grand jury subpoena, which she would be willing to give her husband, they say, by the sad plight of the poor woman and her daughter, and that is the reason why Captain John J. O'Meara, chief clerk to Chief White, was going around yesterday taking up

Crowds Jeer "Catch" Vans Are Busy in Raid

They looked as if they had never seen the inside of a club and wouldn't recognize a club other than the one carried by a policeman.

The raids were started at 7 o'clock, the detectives being divided into two squads, one operating south of Market street and the other on the north side of that thoroughfare.

All of the clubs raided were taken completely by surprise. Some of them were crowded with players and others who were merely loitering on, when suddenly the rooms were filled with detectives and policemen in uniform who shut the doors and put their backs against them, making the startling announcement that the place was "pinched" and all of those present, proprietors and patrons alike, were under arrest.

Some of the men tried to take the matter as a joke, laughing too loudly, slapping one another on the back and otherwise trying to hide their embarrassment and apprehension.

Van after van drove up to the curb, blue coated policemen formed a lane through the rapidly collecting crowd, and the prisoners were called out in squads and loaded into the prison vehicles.

"Sixteen more here," a detective would call, and the door would be opened to emit 16 sheepskin men who would shuffle awkwardly out to the van and hurriedly scramble out of sight of the jeering crowd.

"The van would drive off with a rattle and clang and another would draw up to take more."

"Room for ten more," would call the officer at the door, and that many more victims of the raid would hurry out, followed by the forced hilarity of their captives who were left behind.

It was noticeable that nine-tenths of the men were puffing nervously at cigarettes. Some of them fairly ran across the walk to the friendly shelter of the van.

"Not a few were plainly 'bums,' 'cheer warners,' who had gone in to loaf comfortably instead of standing about the streets. They were treated about the same as the others. All was fish that came to the police net and excuses did not go with the detectives.

ALL "MEMBERS," THEY SAY

According to the pretensions of the proprietors—the "presidents" and "secretaries" of the "clubs," all of the men there were bona fide clubmen, real members of real clubs. But most of a subscription to send the woman and her daughter back to her folks in St. Louis, and why O'Meara visited the railroad ticket office to find out how much it would cost to ship the two out of the state.

ATCHITY NOT FOUND

Atchity has not yet been located, though the police say they are trying to find him. This notwithstanding the fact that there is no charge against him except that of losing all his money in a professional gambling game and that, according to O'Meara, Mrs. Atchity says she doesn't want to find him, that he is no good and that she is through with him forever.

"Mrs. Atchity," said O'Meara yesterday afternoon, "has consumption and is not strong enough to go back to her folks in St. Louis and we are going to send her here Monday."

Yesterday two kind hearted women, touched by the story of the sad case of Mrs. Atchity, telephoned the police that they would be willing to give her a home and take care of her for a while, until something else could be provided. One of these was the landlady of the Hotel Arno, near Twentieth and Mission streets.

However, Mrs. Atchity knew nothing of these offers, and the police profess not to know where she is staying. She visited the office of Chief White at noon yesterday, however.

President John Barneburg of the Waldorf club considers himself a very ill-willed man. He says so, he can't see why the wife of a gambler should come whining to him. He says, just because her husband lost all his money and jewelry over the green baize table and left her and her child destitute. "Why," he said yesterday, "I gave

ANTI-AMERICAN SENTIMENT HIGH IN MEXICO CITY

Ambassador Wilson's Protest Unanswered—Demonstrations Continue

THREAT MADE TO BLOW UP EMBASSY

Feeling That War With the United States Is Inevitable Cause of Bitterness

MEXICO CITY, July 12.—The American ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, has protested to the minister of foreign affairs against further anti-American demonstration, but up to late today no answer had been received at the embassy, and students who are planning to hold a demonstration tomorrow assert that they will not be troubled by the authorities.

In his note to the Mexican government the ambassador deplored that the goings of the capital were to be permitted to indulge in violence to American residents in Mexico. He indicated the danger of allowing persons to use as tools the students and others who are expected to participate. He reminded the Mexican government that in case any American was injured he would use all the power at the command of the embassy to secure reparation.

AMERICANS ARE LEAVING

Alarmed at the development of hostile feelings as displayed by the newspapers, the number of Americans leaving for Vera Cruz was greatly augmented today. Ambassador Wilson is sending frequent reports to Washington regarding the situation.

An anonymous letter containing threats to blow up the United States embassy was received by Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson today and immediately referred to the Mexican foreign office for investigation.

At an indication of the fervor of patriotism that has been aroused in Mexico the department of the interior announced today that representatives of 30,000 workmen had appealed to the government for military instruction in order that they might be ready to fight for the national existence.

The newspaper El Pais says it has been visited by a committee of women school teachers who offered to enter the ranks of the army and fight in case of an international conflict.

ORGANIZE DEMONSTRATION

The students of the federal capital are organizing a demonstration for Sunday, in which they have invited the workmen and all other classes to participate. Although the organizers have cautioned those who will participate to keep order, there is grave fear on the part of conservative Mexicans and also among the American colony that the demonstration will provoke serious trouble. In spite of the protest of Ambassador Wilson in regard to the attitude of the newspapers, especially of El Pais, the journal devotes its first page to the anti-American movement, its articles being highly sensational. In its editorial columns it cautions prudence, but utters a strong intimation that the time is near when Mexicans must fight the United States. It urges the public not to place itself in the position of having provoked a war and to leave the responsibility to the United States.

Three Americans Released

LAREDO, Texas, July 12.—Peremptory demands by American authorities today obtained release of the three remaining American prisoners held by constitutionalists at Hidalgo, Mexico. Two Mexican cowboys, who had been taken with the Americans, were freed. The party was escorted to the border by United States Consul Garrett of Nuevo Laredo. It was said the constitutionalists held the party for $300 ransom. The Americans released today were the elder Hazelrigg, William Randolph and Isaac Cade.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., July 12.—Edward E. Phillips, convicted in Indianapolis of conspiracy in the dynamite plot case, is the first of the 33 men to leave the United States penitentiary a free man. Phillips was released on parole today and departed at once for his home in Syracuse, N. Y.
