

In The Social Whirl

By RUTH CAMERON

"I've had such a restful day!" said one woman to another, as they walked home together at nightfall.

The second woman opened her eyes in amazement. "Why! how can you say that?" she exclaimed. "Just think of all you've told me that you've done. My dear, I should call that a very busy day, instead of a restful one."

"It has been a fairly busy day," answered the first woman, "but it's been restful just the same, and I'll tell you why—I haven't hurried once. I allowed myself plenty of time and went leisurely from one thing to another. I wanted to make another call, but when I found I couldn't get it in without hurrying, I simply gave it up. So, it's been a happy, restful day, because I haven't driven myself."

Isn't that an interesting and suggestive point of view?

If the amount of energy which the average person expends in hurrying and in worrying lest she won't be somewhere on time, or get something or other done, could be computed, I imagine that it would not be so very much smaller than the total of the energy she puts into actually doing things.

We think we are tired because we have done so much. Half the time it is only because we have tried to do too much.

A young school teacher, who had been overdoing in this way, was advised by her family doctor to take a complete vacation. She told him that was impossible. "Very well," he said, "I'll give you another prescription which will do you nearly as much good if you have the strength of mind to fill it. Keep on working but take life easy, be leisurely; don't let yourself hurry once in the next three months; don't crowd yourself; go to bed early and sleep nine and ten hours a night; stay out doors a lot; don't hurry and don't worry for the next three months and you'll come out all right."

The school teacher followed his prescription for three months and proved his prophecy true. That was five years ago and she is still following it in its essential details and you would hardly recognize the nervous, sickly creature she used to be in the well poised, healthy woman of today.

Sometimes we wish we could take the expensive rest cure we read about and we say that we would if it were not for the prohibitive cost. Here is a rest cure of which the only cost is strength of mind and purpose.

Is that prohibitive?

SOCIAL NEWS

The engagement of Miss Cora Kennedy, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Josephine Kennedy, and Clarence Coonan, a young attorney of San Francisco, has been announced. No plans have been made for the wedding, but the probabilities are that it will be an event of the early winter. Miss Kennedy was one of the attendants at the marriage of Miss Elyse Schultz and Samuel Hopkins last summer, the other attendants being Miss Harold Law, Miss Ford and Miss Ethel Gregg, Miss Alice Warner of Monterey and Miss Saline Fox.

Miss Kennedy is spending several days in Burlingame as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hopkins.

Saturday, August 23, is the date set by Miss Floride Hunt for her marriage to Lieutenant H. Kent Hewitt, U. S. N. It will be a quiet affair and will be held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Randall Hunt, in Pacific avenue. Mrs. Herbert Baker will be her sister's only attendant, and one of the bridesmaids. The groom will be best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sneyd-Klennersley left last night for Santa Rosa to attend the wedding of the latter's cousin, Jack Temple, and Miss Dot Lindsey, which will be solemnized today. The marriage will be a brilliant function. The bride is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Lindsey of Santa Rosa, and Mr. Temple is the son of the late Supreme Judge Jackson Temple.

After a brief honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Temple will go to Richmond to live for three months, following which they will go to Santa Rosa, where they will make their future home.

Miss Dorothy Allen and Miss Helen Higgins returned to this city yesterday after having passed a delightful visit in Mare Island as the guest of Lieutenant and Mrs. Irving Hall Mayfield. A recent affair given in their honor was a luncheon over which Mrs. Randolph Souder, wife of Lieutenant Souder, U. S. N., presided. Miss Higgins will depart today for her home in the southern part of the state.

Miss Belle Thompson will go back today to her home in Palo Alto after a visit of several days in this city as the guest of her brother and sister in law.

MILITARY TOURNEY IN FORT MASON

Ten Thousand Spectators Expected to Witness Contests Saturday

Wall Scaling, Hurdle Races and Other Events in Long Program

A military tournament, which 10,000 spectators are expected to attend, will take place in Fort Mason Saturday, August 9, and scores of entries from the regiments around the bay have been received. Officers and men are taking keen interest in the affair. Lieutenant R. John West of the Sixteenth infantry is in charge.

The first event will be wall scaling, in which teams composed of eight men squads will scale a 14 foot wall, form a firing line 50 yards beyond, fire five blanks and stand at order.

A quarter mile hurdle race by mounted officers will follow.

Climbing out of their blankets, dressing, rolling up their blankets and striking their shelter tent, two men teams will show how quickly camp can be broken when necessary.

A machine gun race, in which each section will run 50 yards, set up the gun and, after five rounds of firing, return to the starting point, is another interesting event.

Next will come an equipment and skirmish race. The contestants must run 100 yards and return, picking up and donning articles of clothing and equipment when running in one direction and firing shots every 10 yards on their return.

In another event one man will be rescued by his comrade and brought home on horseback. Last of all there will be shelter trench digging, when squads will dig cover under fire.
