MAKE MEN GOOD AND PROTECT WOMEN

Society's Salvation Dependent on Improvement in Moral Standard of Males

By MARY AUSTIN

Three things have been brought out very clearly in the recently concluded trial before the United States district court under the Mann act. The first of these is the growing tendency of society to estimate the bearings of the case in terms of its social reactions. The second is the astonishing numbers of people competently prepared for life at every point except the one which has to do with the conduct of their love life. And the third, which is the most pressing, as the need of establishing suitable restraints and penalties to meet similar offenses in the future.

NO TENDENCY TO CONDONE OFFENSE It is not alone in expressed public opinion that the new attitude toward such irregularities is demonstrated. In the sort of men chosen for the jury, in the court's interpretation of the law, and especially in the charge to the jury, there is a notable absence of the disposition of men mutually to condone offenses peculiar to themselves as men. Here in the west it is certain that a sufficient number of citizens have grown up and out of this ancient conspiracy of sex to stamp our public rating of this affair with the impress of social consideration.

Any obloquy resting upon us as a community in which such things can happen has been more than counterbalanced by the spirit in which it has been met.

But the other two items are still to meet. The one of them involves a measure of prevention, the other concerns the question of the cure.

Upon the second I touched yesterday; it is the extraordinary insufficiency of the knowledge of the principles of human conduct, shown by the parties to the case.

They knew, of course, that what they did was called wrong, "wicked," but they did not know it to the degree which prevented them from doing it, as they would have been prevented by knowledge from exposing themselves to smallpox or the plague. And yet the social conse-

Revolvers of 1846 Mintage Purloined From Park Museum

Who in San Francisco wanted five old rusty, worthless revolvers of the type of 1846, so badly that he became a burglar to secure them? That is the question the police are considering today. The weapons—that is, they were weapons years ago, but are so old now that they are useless—were stolen last night from a relic case in the Pioneer hall of the Golden Gate park museum.

CAMINETTI JURY WAS SPLIT

Three Stood for Acquittal on All the Counts, but Finally Compromised If the jurors who found F. Drew Caminetti guilty of an infraction of the Mann white slave traffic act last evening had known a recommendation for leniency was within their rights that rider to the verdict would have been returned.

It was only by a compromise that the son of the commissioner general of immigration, Anthony Caminetti, faces a sentence in federal prison for his part of the excursion to Reno, Nev., with Lola Norris, Maury I. Diggs and Marsha Warrington.

CONVICTED ON ONE COUNT By voting for a verdict of guilty on the first count the jurors who believed Caminetti entirely innocent of "persuading, inducing and enticing" either of the girls won out. Caminetti was convicted on the first count of the indictment. On the second, third and fourth counts he was acquitted.

FACES PENITENTIARY Caminetti is open to a sentence of five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $5,000. Diggs, his partner on the trip, was convicted on four counts, being open to a sentence four times as stiff. Both will be sentenced Wednesday, September 10.

"Drinks on House" Barred in Boston BOSTON, Sept. 7.—A new excise law went into effect here, prohibiting "drinks on the house" in local saloons. "It is against the best interests of the proprietors and may be morally and physically injurious to customers," the license board says in its notice.

YOUNG MATE UNABLE TO PROVIDE

Income From Answering "Front" Not Enough to Satisfy

With the same degree of secrecy which marked her entrance into the matrimonial state with Hubert L. Putnam, stepson of H. A. Gabriel, an attorney and politician of San Jose, Mrs. Viola Barbara Lux Putnam, granddaughter of Henry Lux, the millionaire cattle king, today filed suit in the superior court of this county for divorce from her youthful spouse, charging failure to provide.

Putnam, who won the heart and hand of Miss Viola Lux when she was a student at Notre Dame college in San Jose two years ago, does not make enough money "hopping bells" to provide the necessities of life, according to the complaint filed by Mrs. Putnam's attorney, former Judge J. E. Barry.

THE PUTNAMS were married in Redwood City January 17, 1910. Miss Lux was then 17 years of age and counted beautiful. Her boy husband was one year her senior. The young couple eloped and kept their secret for several months.

Mrs. Putnam occupies an apartment flat at 1270 Pine street. She was not "at home" to interviewers.

POLICE SEEKING AUTO SLAYERS B. Lissner, a commission merchant living at 1134 Jackson street, owner of automobile No. 84,494, which was run into the Pacific garage, Pacific and Polk streets, early this morning, was taken in charge by Detectives Minthan, De la Guerra and King today and asked to explain his movements last night and this morning. In the hope that some light might be thrown upon the killing of Mrs. Gale Dooley and the serious injuring of her brother, Louis J. Ward, on the Great highway at 1:15 this morning.

Lissner's machine had a broken lamp, and he was stopped in the park by a policeman shortly after the accident. He admitted to the detectives that he was out with a young woman. He said he spent the time from 10:30 p. m. to 1:40 a. m. at Hopkins' place on the Ocean boulevard, but strongly asserted that he did not run into any one when he returned to this city.

No Attack Made on Girl; She Dreamed It, Say Officers

That Miss Ivy Keeton, 14 year old daughter of William Keeton, 1052 Permain street, Elmhurst, dreamed she was attacked by a man early yesterday morning is the belief of Captain of Inspectors Lew Agnew, who detailed several detectives on the case.

Ishi, Attired in New Togs, From Hat to Socks, Presents Magic Wands to Interior Secretary

Until yesterday noon Ishi was the only Indian in the United States not under the jurisdiction of Secretary of the Interior Lane, but now he is a subject like all the rest, for he has given Lane two arrows of his own make and made him "big chief" of his tribe. Standing patiently outside the Fairmont hotel, Ishi, last of the Deer Creek Indians and two years ago totally unacquainted with any white men, waited for Secretary Lane just like the horde of faithful democrats inside, except that Ishi had something to give him instead of something to ask for.

PAPA GUNN ORDERS SECOND KNOT TIED

Youthful romance capped by sober parental conservatism seems to have marked the wedding of Miss Gertrude Hood and Kenneth Gunn last Thursday, which was made doubly secure by two ceremonies.

While an engagement had existed for some time, there had been family counsel that the marriage be postponed until the bridegroom reached a more secure pinnacle of business affairs.

YEARDELAY IS WON BY ESCAPED SLAYER

Former New York Prosecutor Fails to Answer Gambling Charge—Quits Canada

'COATICOK, Que., Sept. 6.—One year may elapse before it is legally determined whether Harry K. Thaw, the fugitive from the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane is to be deported from Canada or is to receive the protection of its laws. Assurance to this effect was given to Thaw today by his counsel.

Thaw is certain that he has won a long delay, and immediately after breakfast he began packing up for the journey to Montreal, where he must be produced in the supreme court September 15, when arguments will be delivered on the writ of habeas corpus.

It had been supposed that the attorneys who obtained the writ had withdrawn from the case, seeing nothing but defeat, but their retreat was only a masterly piece of strategy by which the doors may have been opened for a test of the constitutionality of the immigration law governing deportation.

Complications have been added to the general aspect of the Thaw case by the events subsequent to the arrest of William Travers Jerome, former district attorney of New York, on a charge of gambling. Jerome was to have been arraigned before Magistrate McKee at 9:30 o'clock this morning, but Hector Verratti, acting for the New York lawyer, had the hearing postponed for a week. Meantime Jerome left Canada, going to Norton's Mills, Vt. In a sense Jerome thus made of himself a fugitive from justice, reversing the position of Thaw, who is a fugitive in Canada. Jerome, if convicted, would have to go to jail, as there is no fine under the gambling law.

Influence has been brought to bear upon Crown Prosecutor A. C. Hanson to have the charge against Jerome, who is at liberty on $500 bail, dropped. The crown prosecutor refused to do this.

"I received a great number of complaints about the open gambling of Mr. Jerome, and I consider it my duty to push this case against him," said the prosecutor. "He was setting a bad example for the children of this community by gaming in public for money. Every one could see him and his companions playing."
