Mrs. Boteler's complaint charging her husband with cruelty has slumbered in the secret files of the court since last June.

So great was the desire for secrecy

WHISPERS in the WINGS

Miss Margaret Anglin has proved a financial as well as an artistic success since she inaugurated her Shakespearean revival at the Columbia last Monday night. The box office receipts show this to be a fact. From present indications the capacity of the playhouse will be tested at every one of the remaining performances of "The Taming of the Shrew," and the advance sale is now open for the second week, which will be devoted to revivals of "Twelfth Night" for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights and Wednesday matinee, and "As You Like It," which is announced the latter half of next week.

"Twelfth Night" is justly considered one of the most delightful of Shakespearean comedies. The role of Viola in the hands of Miss Anglin will be a rare treat, and she is said to be superb as Rosalind. The scenic productions, costumes and stage accessories of next week's bills will further exemplify the amount of time, energy and money that the noted actress has spent on her revivals.

San Francisco has accepted with favor the white slave drama, "The Lure," which is playing at the Cort. So pronounced has been its opening success that an extra performance has been added to the original two weeks' engagement. Beginning this coming Sunday it will continue for its second and final week, with the extra performance on Sunday evening, October 2. As the play deals with a problem that is agitating thinkers throughout the nation it is easy to understand the eagerness of playgoers to behold George Scarborough's expert treatment of the "scarlet" traffic. The acting of the piece is worthy of praise and the entire company assumes its individual roles with credit. The dive scene in the second act, where the two young girls are shown in the toils of the white slavers, is the sensational part of the drama, and it surely awakens thrills. This act culminates in a most realistic stage fight.

Ralph Herz' next vehicle at the Alcazar, starting Monday night, will be a New York and Chicago success, written by a young San Franciscan. It is entitled "Our Wives," and the author is Frank Mandel, who graduated from the University of California and practiced law in this city until he discovered that playwriting was his forte, when he went to New York and "put over" one of the few genuine hits scored last season. "Our Wives" is a three act comedy with scenes laid in Gotham. Its central figure is a woman hater, who is seeking a member of the fair sex to aid him in building a musical play. Although they agree to forget sex, the curtain falls on them in each other's arms. Mr. Herz will have a role well adapted to his genius. He will be assisted by the cream of the Alcazar company, with Mary Emerson as leading woman.

The famous European dancer, Saharet, who is said to have taken the old world capitals by storm with her sensational tour work, will head the bill next week at the Orpheum. She will be seen in the daring tango Argentine and numerous other fancy and sensational dances. Saharet will be assisted by Senor Florido, an artist of renown. William J. Dooley and company will present "The Lawn Party," a musical comedy unique and vivacious; Frank Milton and the De Long sisters will be seen in "Twenty Minute Layover at Alfalfa Junction"; Jeannette Franziska, a prima donna of Amsterdam, will sing operatic numbers; Jack McAllen and May Carson in a roller skating act, and Frosini, an accordion player, will compose the new numbers. Next week closes the engagement of Mulien and Coogan, Carl Hosini and William Burrell in "The New Songbirds."

Carter, the magician, is dazzling big audiences at Pantages this week. His illusions are all new, and because of the way in which he "puts them over" he takes the headline honors on a good bill. "Summer Girls," styled as a "musical medley of tuneful pastimes," will feature the new bill Sunday afternoon. There are a half dozen pretty girls and many special sets of scenery in this act, which combines to make a pleasing production.

Big audiences have been in attendance at Grauman's Imperial theater during the week, where Mary Pickford, one of David Belasco's most popular stars, is appearing in the film-tized version of Mirlan Michelson's famous story of the underworld, "In the Bishop's Carriage." A fascinating drama throughout, Miss Pickford is given unusual opportunity for the display of her art. Commencing next Sunday, Broadway's noted star, Henry E. Dixey, in "Chelsea 7150," will be offered.

Sammy Watson's farmyard circus is proving a big drawing card at the Empress this week. It is filled with laughs and novelty. The crowning feature of next week's bill will be the Bracks, who are heralded as "seven of the finest acrobats on earth." This clever company appeared at the Berlin wintergarten for two years and at the New York hippodrome for 20 consecutive weeks. The next ranking act on the bill will be John P. Wade in "Marse Shelby's Chicken Dinner," a playlet filled with humor and sentiment.

The Oriental theater, formerly the Savoy, will open next Tuesday evening with a stock company presenting "The Ringmaster," an American comedy drama by Olive Porter. The announcement of the inauguration of a stock season at the Oriental has been received with much interest. An excellent cast has been secured for the opening performance. The work of renovating and decorating the theater is almost completed, and it will present a charming interior on the opening night.

Confetti Showers Are Promised for Fillmore Street

Miss Maxine Hutchinson Wins Contest for Queen of Golden Gate Valley Carnival

Fillmore street's northern end will be given up to fun and merriment tomorrow evening with the opening of the Golden Gate valley carnival, which is to last 10 days. The queen will be crowned Saturday evening at the dance pavilion, Filbert and Fillmore streets.

The carnival will extend from Broadway to Chestnut street. Many parades, including one of "horribles," and a "goat" race will be among the features. The street has been brilliantly illuminated and tastefully decorated for the festa.

"MARITANA" IS SUNG WITH VIM Tivoli Songbirds in "The Mascot" Next

Myrtle Dingwall Will Be Seen in Specialty Act

"Maritana," Vincent Wallace's romantic opera, founded on the story of Don Caesar de Bazan, is delighting patrons of the Tivoli opera house this week and the consensus of opinion is that it is the very best offering made at the Eddy street theater since the beginning of the light opera season last May. The beautiful numbers, with which the score abounds, are splendidly sung by Rene Vivienne, leading the members of the company, and the ensembles are unusually fine.

The last performance of "Maritana" will be given Sunday afternoon and evening, and on Monday night "The Mascot," which has not been given here for several years, will receive a capital production.

This jolly comic opera by Audran, the Frenchman who wrote "Olivette" and many other big successes, is full to the brim with fun, frivolity and catchy melodies, and it would be safe to say that there has hardly ever been a more popular duet written than the celebrated "Gobble" song, which the shepherd, Pippo, and the "mascot," Bettina, sing in the first act.

Two genuinely funny comic opera characters are Lorenzo, prince of Piombino, and Rocco, the superstitious farmer, to whom the "mascot" is sent to change his luck, and another droll character is Flametta, Lorenzo's daughter. In all there are 25 tuneful melodies in "The Mascot."

Rena Vivienne will jump from the more serious music of Maritana to the light but tuneful airs allotted Bettina in "The Mascot," and Sarah Edwards will be Flametta. Henry Sandreys should make an excellent Pippo, and Robert G. Pitkin will revel in the role of Lorenzo. Thomas C. Leary, the veteran comedian, has been specially engaged to play Rocco, a part that he has interpreted with great success on many occasions, and John E. Phillips will be Frederic, prince of Pisa. Charles E. Gallagher will be the sergeant, and Myrtle Dingwall will introduce a specialty in the second act.
