

Gossip of the Smart Set Gathered from the Town and Country

Activities of Smart Set Here and in Other Climes

MUSIC is asserting its place in the winter gaities, and society in all of the bay cities will enjoy a number of excellent chamber concerts, which seem at the present time to be the most popular form of musical entertainment. The Minetti string quartet is responsible for some of these affairs, and during the winter will hold three recitals in this city and three in Piedmont. The first in this city will take place Monday morning, when Miss Mauricia Minter will open her home to music lovers in Pacific avenue. Miss Agnes Tillman will be the hostess at the second Minetti concert at her Washington street residence November 24, and on December 8 Mrs. William G. Mrs. Rega and her sisters, the Misses Herrick, are extremely musical and can always be depended upon to further any musical undertaking of merit. The drawing room in the Mark Rega home is of splendid proportions and will make an ideal background for tomorrow's concert.

The William E. Sharon home, which has long been the center of musical activities, will be opened to the public two weeks later, on November 23, and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Suro will provide the hall for the third of the series on December 7. The Oscar Suros have recently moved into their new residence at Piedmont, and plan to do a great deal of entertaining during the season. MONTECELLANS HOLD ANNUAL LUNCHEON

The first annual luncheon of the Northern California Monticello Students' association was held last Saturday in the palm room of the Bellevue hotel, and an enthusiastic response was given to the rollcall of the years 1853 to 1907.

The luncheon was given in honor of Mrs. S. F. V. Armstrong of the class of 1853, the oldest living graduate and present honorary vice president of the organization. Mrs. Walton M. Moore, president, was the hostess of the day. The dining hall, under the supervision of Mrs. J. Young, 1870, Mrs. W. G. Moore, 1873, and Mrs. E. V. Krick, was turned into the class room, the walls being hung with the school banners and lined in yellow and black tulle caught up with calliopsis and streamers. The table was banked with yellow chrysanthemums and trailing asparagus ferns, entwined in ribbons. Each glass held a dainty place card in the form of halcyon feathers. Corsage bouquets of yellow button chrysanthemums graced each plate, the gift of Mrs. Walton Moore, and were accompanied by souvenir photographs of Miss Harriet Newell Haskell, for 40 years principal of the seminary. Toasts were offered to the absent members, to the new principal, Miss Martina Erickson of Wellesley college; to a prominent Monticellan, Mrs. Emily A. HALLOWEEN PARTIES ENJOYED BY SOCIETY

Notes of San Francisco Music World

Probably the hardest worked man in San Francisco at the present moment is Nini Belucci, the lean faced reincarnation of Dante, who wields the baton nightly at the Tivoli opera house, the while we laugh at the antics of the hungry quartet of "La Boheme" or let the tears follow the pathetic story of little Cho-Cho-San and her faithless Pinkerton.

The essence of calmness and repression during a performance, this versatile Italian, directly the curtain is down and the audience departed, has his coat off and is all over the stage rehearsing the singers and drilling stage action into the chorus for the following night's opera. This may last until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, when, after a scanty nap, he is on the job at 9 for a fresh start lasting well into the afternoon.

REACHES ENVIABLE PLACE Belucci, although only 36 years of age, has succeeded in reaching the point in his profession where he has been proclaimed by Puccini the best interpreter of his operas in Italy.

Starting as a boy singer in the cathedral of his birthplace, Pisaro, he commenced the study of music at the age of 12, continuing under the master, Mascagni, until he entered the army at 20.

While a soldier he composed his first opera, "Lisette," in 14 months, which was afterward conducted by Mascagni himself.

After his discharge from the army Belucci began to travel from town to town, conducting small itinerant companies and developing his ability to such a degree that Ricordi, the music publisher of Milan, took him up and gave him charge of many important productions.

This took Belucci to the big cities of Italy—Rome, Naples, Genoa, Milan and Venice. About this time Mascagni had finished his "Amica," and he immediately chose Belucci among all the Italian conductors to travel with him and direct his new work.

His next step upward was his engagement by Puccini to conduct that composer's "Girl of the Golden West," which had just been presented for the first time under the baton of Arturo Toscanini, now chief musical director of the New York Metropolitan opera house.

Director General Gunsbourg of the Monte Carlo opera house came to Genoa especially to attend one of these performances, and immediately engaged Belucci for the following season.

HIT AT MONTE CARLO At Monte Carlo Belucci made such an instant hit that he was dubbed the "Mascot of Monte Carlo" by the critics, and Gunsbourg made haste to reengage him. He goes there at the close of the present season in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Belucci admits a desire to conduct Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde" in preference to all other operas.

Local society will welcome Mrs. Cleveland Baker, formerly Miss Pansy Perkins, to their midst again. Mrs. Baker has established her permanent residence in Piedmont and is already planning to build her own home there.

The social which the Altos club gave to celebrate its first anniversary Thursday night proved to be a brilliant affair. The clubrooms were decorated for the occasion with baby dolls dressed in the club colors. Speeches were made by the officers and members.

Activities in the World of the Clubwomen

As a curious concession to the influence of the times, the women's clubs of the bay district have concerned themselves with the modern dances to a degree that is astonishing.

Many of the organizations have stood for purely intellectual things or for matters of the mental sphere, with an admixture of civic, philanthropic, sociological and, perhaps, music and art interests. Even in the most conservative of these are to be found modern dance sections now. If the interest has not gone quite so far, there are to be found on many of the programs of the month announcements of afternoons devoted to exhibitions of modern dancing. Where the sections have been established there are no reports to the effect that they have failed through lack of membership.

"Age can not wither nor custom (thus far) stale" the enthusiasm for the new dances.

There is an excellent reason for every one who goes in. If she is young it is the natural ebullience of youth; if she is old, she must avoid getting older; fat women seek to lose flesh; thin women seek to develop curves; the strong find it keeps them in trim; the weak find it an energizing force—and so on to fit each case. And the best of it is that they are all true—these reasons. Exercise may prove the salvation of the race—provided it needs saving.

In any case, it is certainly better for a woman to wear loose, comfortable clothes and attempt to be energetically graceful for an hour or two a day than it is to do many of the other things which have been consuming her time. They like it, too. It makes them happy, and some of them never know how queer they look. Others are truly graceful and realize that, which never hurts any woman.

On the whole, there are many reasons for the commendation of the new interest and unless it is wholly agreeable no woman must needs join the section.

La Mesa Redonda club entertained its members yesterday at civic day, and the president, Mrs. O. L. Sues, called for a review of everything done or discussed in the club for the good of the public during the last year. Mrs. Hadenfeldt, chairman of the civic section, then called on the members for a one minute discussion as to what line of civic work impressed them most, the opinions thus gained aiding her in the preparation of her program for the coming year.

The next meeting, November 21, will be in charge of Mrs. Charles Laumeister, chairman of the program committee.

The Philomath club, of which Mrs.

Journalism will be the subject of the program given Monday afternoon at the meeting of the Pacific Coast Women's Press association and several of the leading newspaper men of the city will be heard on interesting details of the profession.

The program will be as follows: "The Rise of Journalism," John P. Young; "Today and Yesterday in Journalism," Phil Francis; "Handling the News," Edward E. Bowles; "Some Esteemed Contemporaries," Edward F. Cahill; "Business Aspect of Journalism," John D. Barry; "Journalism That Does," Gilbert Weikle.

The committee on journalism consists of Mrs. Augusta Cahill, Mrs. Fred Stowell and Mrs. North-Whitcomb.

The session will begin at 2:30 o'clock and a reception to the distinguished newspaper men will follow.

The Forum club will meet Wednesday afternoon, and following the business meeting at 3 o'clock will be given a program, consisting of a vocal selection, after which Mrs. Lillian Quinn Stark will give an interpretative reading of "Lucky Pehr," a fairy play by August Strindberg, Velma Swanston-Howard translator.

A directors' meeting will be held Tuesday morning at 11.

The Pacific Musical society will meet Wednesday morning at the St. Francis hotel, the program commencing at 10:30. Mrs. John McGaw, piano; Laurance Strauss, tenor, and the Pasmore trio will present the program.

The subject for the evening will be "The Overdressing of Schoolgirls." The speakers will be Dr. Caroline Cook Coffin, Mrs. Alice Best and Mrs. Corrie Crane Ingalls. There will be good music as well, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

The thirteenth annual breakfast of the Council of Jewish Women will take place Thursday next at 1 o'clock at the Fairmont hotel. The following invitation explains something of the nature of the affair, at which only members will be present:

On a thirteenth day of the thirteenth year,
From threatening fate the sting to pluck,

A clover leaf or a horse's shoe,
