

OLD CLOTHES OF BANDIT FOUND

Discarded Garments Found May Serve to Identify Train Robber

A soiled pair of overalls, a blue jumper and a new brown slouch hat may be the undoing of the bandit who rifled the mailcar of the Shore Line Limited Monday night.

In the wearing apparel discarded by the outlaw before he jumped from the train at the portal of tunnel No. 1 Postal Inspector F. M. Roberts thinks the key lies to the identity of the man who is worth $2,500 reward.

BANDIT WAS BIG MAN
The garments were brought to Inspector Leonard by Roberts this morning, and an examination showed that the wearer is a man more than six feet in height and of powerful build.

"There is not the slightest doubt," says Roberts, "that these clothes belong to the man who robbed the Shore Line Limited Monday night. The robber wore this outfit and threw it away just before he left the train.

"The clerk who sold these clothes has a good chance to get the $2,500 reward now offered by the government and railroad company. A clerk should have no difficulty in remembering the sale of these garments, since the man who bought them was evidently well dressed and different from the ordinary man who buys working clothes.

The robber was a large man and weighed approximately 190 pounds, and was more than six feet in height. He wore a 7 1/2 hat. He took pains to cut off the price mark and the union label on the outside of the jumper, but overlooked the smaller labels on the inside of the pockets.

The label on the jumper bears the factory number, 3,489,970, and that on the trousers, 8,801,027. From these we should be able to trace where the garments were made and possibly ascertain the name of the retailer that sold them.

GARMENTS MADE HERE
The garments were made by a local manufacturer, which will simplify the search for the retailer. Although the robber was a large man he wore only a No. 7 shoe, according to the description furnished by the mail clerk, Colton, who states that the shoes were old and had been half soled recently. Kneeling on the floor, Colton had an opportunity to make a close inspection of the robber's feet and was struck by their small size.

City Postoffice Inspector James O'Donnell discovered a number of light hairs on the inside of the brown hat, which gives the first clue as to the color of the hair of the robber.

The inspectors can not understand the motive of the man in kicking the mail from the car. O'Donnell states that more than $75,000 worth of checks have been found along the right of way between San Jose and San Francisco.

Edward A. Fiske was returned to his home in San Mateo, freed of suspicion. Fiske came to San Francisco at 2 o'clock this afternoon and went into conference with his attorney, Louis Ward, to decide whether any action shall be taken to seek redress for the imprisonment of Fiske.

After 30 hours in confinement Fiske was released at 5 o'clock last evening and went to his bungalow on the county road near Burlingame.

THINK I'LL WRITE BOOK
"I think I'll write a book entitled, 'My Experiences in Prison as the Great Train Robber Suspect,'" laughed Fiske, who was lighthearted as a lark as he walked down Kearny street.

"When Chief White told me I could go home, that I was wanted no longer, I felt like yelling at the top of my voice.

"I knew I was innocent and that they could not prove anything against me, but I felt content nevertheless. Their cross questions and my surroundings embarrassed me. The city prison is no tapestry room at any time, neither here nor elsewhere such that a person would take a fancy to.

"When the detectives arrested me and took me to the railroad station bureau in the Flood building I did not know what I had been arrested for. The officers refused to tell me and I was inclined to take the matter as a joke, thinking I would be released as soon as they learned who I was.

"I can imagine a serious position a person would have in being placed in that was a stranger in this city without friends and be charged with crime. He would have little or no chance and would no doubt suffer greatly.

FORTUNATE IN HAVING FRIENDS
"Fortunately for me I had many friends who helped me. Through my many friends who visited the prison I was kept informed concerning my wife. She is a dandy little woman and true blue. She would have liked to visit me at the prison, but this I would not permit.

"Sure enough at 5 o'clock I was taken from my cell to the chief's office and given my just liberty."

When Conductor Harris C. Watson of the California Mall faltered in his identification of Fiske as the bandit before the district attorney at Martinez yesterday, Patrick J. Kindeen, chief special agent for the Southern Pacific company, began to arrange for the release of Fiske.

The Contra Costa officials definitely refused a warrant because there was no positive evidence against Fiske.

Ullm leaves a widow and three children.

ROMANCE OF YOUTH WAKES WHEN NURSE AND BANKER MEET

Miss Estelle E. Cotter, pretty nurse, who is to become bride of childhood friend.

Wedding Will Follow Chance Renewal of Acquaintance of Man and Woman Who Were Friends in Childhood

When Anthony A. Quinn, teller of the Donohoe-Kelly bank, went visiting a friend in St. Mary's hospital he met at the threshold of the sick room a pretty nurse, Miss Estelle E. Cotter, whom he had known long ago.

And the sequel to that chance meeting is told in the announcement that they will be married before Thanksgiving day is a memory. Friends in their youth, the two drifted apart, Miss Cotter to pursue her studies in the Ursuline academy, the man to busy himself with the serious matter of carving out a career. Apparently, even to themselves, they had forgotten all about the youthful romance, until that day when the bank teller met the pretty nurse there at the bedside of his dying pal.

That is not so long ago, and now friends are busy with the trousseau, and there is to be a splendid church wedding. The bride is a native of Napa and resided here until she became a nurse in St. Mary's. Quinn, outside of his prominence in banking circles, is remembered as the captain of the Olympic baseball team.

FRIDAY FOR DAY AT CHURCH

Ministers Expected to Choose Date Soon for Big Turnout

San Francisco clergymen are heartily in favor of the suggestion of a "Go-to-church-day" for San Francisco and will bring the matter before the ecclesiastical organizations of the city to decide on a date.

December 7 has been suggested and approved by a majority of the ministers, and probably will be the day selected. Everybody will be expected to attend their chosen house of worship that day.

DAY SUCCESS IN EAST
There are many in San Francisco who do not appreciate the real value of church going, the ministers say, and it is to induce these to attend at least once that they have given their endorsement to the "Go-to-church-day" plan.

Other cities of the east and west have tried it before with remarkable success. Joliet has a listed population of 35,000. A "Go-to-church-day" campaign was waged and resulted in a total attendance of 40,000 persons.

"Habit plays a great part in the lives of any people," declares Dr. Bradford Leavitt. "If the habit of church going were cultivated here it would finally become a pleasure just as it is in the New England states. Churches have advanced a great deal, but there are many persons who do not realize this. A 'Go-to-church-day' campaign probably will bring it to their attention. That's why I am heartily in favor of the plan."

CITY LAX IN CHURCH GOING
"A 'Go-to-church-day' would elevate the ideals of the people," says Rev. Harold S. Tuttle, "and result in church going becoming more regular."

Rev. Phillip Andreen asserts that church work in the west is much more difficult than in the eastern and middle western states, as there it is a matter almost of hereditary impulses.

"The grand idea will be an inspiration to many," he says, "and church going should be in the ascendancy."

"San Francisco is notably lax in church going," is the view taken by Rev. Louis J. Sawyer. "The proposed 'Go-to-church-day' campaign would be a permanent encouragement to a better condition."

Third Street Owners Want S. P. Station
A protest against the resolution requesting the state railroad commission to take action in relation to the construction of an adequate passenger station at Third and Townsend streets by the Southern Pacific company has been filed with the supervisors by the Third Street Property Owners' association, who are anxious to have work begun at once on the depot already planned by the company, rather than await the outcome of an effort to secure a larger and more elaborate building. Mayor Bush and 12 supervisors discussed the Southern Pacific's objections to the proposed franchise yesterday and decided to meet with the railroad officials again with a view to a final adjustment of the difficulties.

Serra Fiesta Will Begin This Evening

The old mission days of California will be brought back this evening in Sacred Heart hall, Fortieth and Grove streets, when the three day Junipero Serra fiesta will begin. Famous old Spanish songs and a repertoire of the old mission arias will be sung by the members of the chorus of the Church of Our Lady of Guadalupe of San Francisco.

Among the choral numbers on the program are "La Paloma" (E. Catalina); "Madre Querida," by G. Truaba; and chorus: "El Emigrante" (A. Vives); "Romanza" (G. Villoria) and quarter numbers by G. Sigrist, C. Acosta, T. Maine and Rev. F. Rodgers. E. Osuna will act as accompanist.

GOOD ROADS NEEDED
Dean Thomas F. Hunt of the agricultural college of the state university addressed delegates today on "California and the Immigrant." Professor Hunt commented on the vast territory to be opened and the need of roads into the interior country.

William Woodhead, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, spoke on the right kind of community advertising and advocated a united effort in securing benefits to this section of the state.

Tomorrow the principal business in the election, Rufus R. Wilson is slated for president. Wilson proposes to unite the northern and central counties under one head and supplement the Sacramento Valley association.

WOMEN'S CLUBS REPRESENTED
Women's clubs throughout the northern part of the state are represented.

The meeting is divided into two camps. A large number oppose Wilson, charging him with an attempt to kill the Sacramento Valley Development association.

The Yuba county supervisors refuse to be represented at the convention, claiming there are too many similar organizations.

The delegates represent every county in the state north of Tehachapi pass.

The Oakland and San Francisco Chambers of Commerce oppose the incorporation of so large a district under the name of northern California.

OWL SERVICE ON POLK
An owl service will be established on the Polk street and Larkin street cross-town line on Tuesday morning next. The cars will be operated half hourly, leaving Market and Larkin streets at 2:45 o'clock and every 30 minutes thereafter.

LECTURE TO MOTHERS' CLUB
"Recreation in Social Centers" is the topic of James Edward Rogers of the Recreation league this afternoon before the Mothers' club of Yerba Buena school.

Ten minutes after she had been stretched upon the operating table the surgeons had completed their tasks and declared they had saved the woman's life. A silver tube was inserted in the kidneys, which were flushed, draining off the deadly poison.
