

LET JUSTICE BE DONE.
The killing of Capt. F. W. Dawson is regretted by every fair-minded person in the State. It is a regret to every law-abiding citizen that such awful crimes should be perpetrated, but there are two sides to all questions, and so there is in this case.

Life is as sweet to the humblest citizen as it is to the mightiest man in the land, and an insult can be felt as keenly by the lowly man as it can by the great. We do not think that it is right to keep up the hue and cry against McDow any longer. The Courts will ventilate it when the time comes, and until then all fair-minded men should keep quiet.

We do not know Dr. McDow, and never heard of him until he got into this trouble; therefore we can speak impartially in the matter. Let us "put the shoe on the other foot" and suppose that McDow had gone to Capt. Dawson's office and Capt. Dawson had killed him under similar circumstances, would the same hue and cry have been raised against Dawson? We think not. But "give a dog a bad name and you may as well kill him."

Capt. Dawson had certainly lived in South Carolina long enough to know that no man can horsewhip, cowhide or cane a gentleman in this State and expect to go unharmed—that is, if that man has a particle of spirit or manhood in him. Nothing but blood can wipe out such an insult—the stain is too deep. And Capt. Dawson had been warned not to go there. McDow's mouth is closed and so ought the Dawson side be until after the trial.

The South Atlantic has a cartoon representing Governor Richardson straddling the South Carolina Agricultural College, while a rural legislator who happens to be passing that way looks up, and says: "There's nothing too big for our Governor to straddle; but I wonder if he can keep that position until the next session." It is a good illustration of the Governor's character—he is afraid to move without instructions from the "ring."

So far as heard from up to date ten military companies in South Carolina have decided to attend the Centennial celebration of Washington's Inaugural, which will occur in New York on April 23rd-30. The railroad rates for the military have been very low as an inducement for them to go. The rates for individuals are also low. From Columbia the ticket for the round trip will cost $22, good from April 26th to May 3d. From Rock Hill, $19.50 for the round trip. The celebration will certainly be a big thing.

John L. Adams, the Negro, Ga forger and thief, died on the 14th inst. from starvation. He said when he was put in Jail, that he intended to starve himself to death. For twenty-seven days he held out, refusing to eat anything, and then death came to his relief.

Too Much Legislation.
The Herald and News has contended for a long time that we had too much legislation in South Carolina, and for this reason we have thought it would be well to have biennial sessions of the Legislature. We are glad to see this question is receiving some attention. The Columbia Record has made a comparison of the number of acts passed for certain periods and the increase has been very much latterly. For ten years before the war one volume of 609 pages was large enough to contain all the acts.

Now one Legislature can fill a volume of the same size. Much of this legislation is of a local and private nature. Then at each session there are amendments upon top of amendments that one can scarcely know what is the law. The acts are hardly published before another session is held, and other amendments adopted. The last session of the Legislature, we believe, did not make so many laws nor so many amendments. This is a good beginning. We suffer from too much Legislation.

Ring the Bells.
On the morning of April 20, 1859, at 9 o'clock, it has been arranged that the church bells all over the country shall ring to celebrate the event of 100 years ago, when the church bells throughout thirteen States rang out to call the people together to pray for the success and prosperity of the country under General Washington, that day inaugurated President of the United States. A call is made from the committee having charge of these arrangements that in every church in the land services be held to implore a continuance of the favor which has been shown the nation since its birth.

Some of our local prophets are counting strong on this being an exceptionally good crop year. They say that all indications point that way. We are no prophet in that line but we can wait and see.
