

DANVILLE INTELLIGENCER

Established, 1828

DANVILLE, MONTGOMERY COUNTY, PA., NOV. 18, '04.

D. AUST LUTZ, Editor and Proprietor.

THE INTELLIGENCER is the oldest and best weekly, Democratic newspaper in this section of the State.

It is published every Friday at Danville, the county seat of Montgomery county, Pa., at $10.00 a year in advance or $2.00 if not paid in advance.

THE INTELLIGENCER, Danville, Pa.

Wisconsin Republicans seem resolved to put an end to their Quarles.

Addicks is unhappy. He has bought the people of Delaware four times but can't get the goods delivered.

Senator Spooner quietly weeps into his handkerchief as he concedes that Wisconsin undoubtedly went for Lincoln and Steffens.

Folk, as Governor of Missouri, will show brilliant genius if he gets any of his reforms through a belligerent Republican legislature.

The New York Tribune says there is a fly in the Delaware ointment. Addicks resents this and says it is the first time he was ever called a fly.

The election of W. L. Douglas, Democrat, to be Governor of Massachusetts in a Republican stronghold seems to prove that it pays to advertise.

Governor La Follette says the Republican party ought to go for measures not men. Well, if Spooner isn't exactly a measure, isn't Pack a measure?

The fight for the reduction of Congressional representation from the South now seems to begin. Perhaps it will silence the clang of battle in the Orient.

It is proposed to pass a $40,000,000 river and harbor bill at the coming session of Congress. Such a generous outlay will heal a good many sore heads and broken hearts.

The New York World vouches for the statement that the Democratic managers of the campaign had more than $1,500,000, besides individual gifts. Mr. Taggart spitefully denies it.

A New York dispatch says that President Roosevelt, home to vote, "unostentatiously entered a cross-town street-car." If he should enter one ostentatiously, it might be worth a notice.

The election of twenty-one Republican Congressmen from the South indicates that perhaps even in that quarter there are other issues besides, "Would you invite Booker Washington to lunch?"

"God lifted him and made him a man of destiny," said Rev. Mr. Radcliffe of Washington, speaking of the President, and the utterance was not at all influenced by the circumstance that Dr. Radcliffe has several relatives in office.

About forty prominent Republicans of Wisconsin have telegraphed the President. "If the nation cannot get along without having Spooner for Attorney-General, appoint him immediately, by all means. Never mind how much we suffer!"

If the Republican National Committee has, as claimed, a surplus of $400,000 from its campaign fund, it can afford to reimburse the treasury for those $500 dispatches sent from Manila by Governor Wright for campaign ammunition. Can't it?

The St. Louis Exposition has not yet closed its gates, but away out in Oregon they are putting the finishing touches on the buildings for another exposition to open on June 1 next. At this rate it will not be long before this country will have an exposition on hand all the time.

The message which comes from Rome is: "The Pope congratulates President Roosevelt on the splendid reports." The Pope is certainly entitled to his own opinion, but Democrats and Republicans will be sure to agree that concerning this matter he would show much better taste by keeping his opinion to himself.

The President on Friday evening invited to dine with John Morley Messrs. Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and John Mitchell, President of the United Mine Workers of America. They were both in San Francisco for the month, but that fact has no more to do with the invitation than the flowers that bloom in the spring, tra-la!

If Judge Parker and Col. Bryan are the going men, the coming men to be Joseph W. Folk of Missouri and William L. Douglas of Massachusetts, two Democrats elected governors in states that gave 100,000 majority for Roosevelt. Their relative leadership depends on the question whether socialism or official corruption is to be the slogan for 1908.

There are no times in life when opportunity, the chance to be and to do, gathers so richly about the soul as when it has to suffer. Then everything depends on whether the man turns to the lower or the higher helps. If he resorts to mere expedients and tricks, the opportunity is lost. He comes out no richer or greater—may, he comes out harder, poorer, smaller for his pain. But if he turns to God the hour of suffering is the turning point of his life.

The election of Mr. Douglas, shoemaker, as Governor of Massachusetts on a platform of tariff revision and reciprocity with Canada seems to have stirred the Republican lions all up, and they now earnestly declare that they are going to cut down the tariff just as soon as they can get it, and never had any other idea in their heads. Perhaps the Democratic party, like Samson, will be able to slay more Philistines in its defeat than it was able to dispose of during the years of its victories.

President Roosevelt declares that he will not be a candidate for the office again. This is wise and doubtless sincere. But is not the spirit of this pledge violated when he affirms that Mr. Root is his candidate for his successor and that he will appoint nobody to his Cabinet except the champions of Mr. Root? If it is not safe and wise for a president to accept a third term, because he would be tempted to use the machinery of his office to secure such a nomination, is it any safer or more patriotic to use his office to secure the success of a friend? To prostitute the highest office in the gift of the American people to effect the election of a particular individual is about as dangerous a thing as a president can undertake.

Before Judge Anton at the Northumberland county Court House, Monday was a case of appeal of Coal town ship citizens from the assessments laid. Those who appealed are private citizens who claim their property is valued too high and the consequent taxes are exorbitant in comparison with other parts of the county and taxes in former years. The appeal to Court is the outcome of the organization of a taxpayers association. One hundred and eighty Coal town ship citizens appeared at the appeal. Owing to the attorneys interested not being able to remain in court the appeal was continued.

What city has a climate so peculiar it has been described as "nine months hibernal and three months infernal?"—Read Stoddard's Lectures.

OUR SEVENTY-SIXTH ANNIVERSARY.

THE INTELLIGENCER today enters on its seventy-sixth year of its existence. During the last two years, under its present management, it has greatly multiplied in circulation and interest and is now practically the only Democratic paper in the county, and figures with the best in this section of the State.

In politics THE INTELLIGENCER will be Democratic, representing the highest principles and best traditions of that party, but endlessly free from control of any political faction or of any power, corporation or individual, which conflicts with the public good. It will be devoted to the interest of Danville and its people, and will labor to advance their welfare.

The same are today, were yesterday and ever will be the guiding principles of THE INTELLIGENCER. What has been accomplished in pursuance thereof cannot be exaggerated nor belittled. It has been written on the face of the paper each week and is known to all.

It is proper to say, on this our seventy-sixth anniversary, that while the success of the paper, within the last two years, has been greater than was anticipated and the support of the public has been most gratifying, it is the purpose of the publisher not only to maintain the standard that it has set but to constantly improve in all its departments.

THE RESTLESS RICH AND OTHER.

In sneering at the benevolence that is set on foot "to satisfy the whim and caprice of the restless rich," Mr. Cleveland is doing scant justice to a class of helpless unfortunates.

The restless rich must have means of amusement like the rest of us. If they are too restless they lack the patience to fish. Their legs and their lungs are seldom strong enough to permit the hunting of big game, which is one of Mr. Roosevelt's ways of dissipating superfluous energy. So there is nothing left for them but golf and benevolence.

When Mr. Cleveland yearns for recreation he packs up his rod and reel and sets forth in company with a jug of wine, a loaf of bread and some congenial friend. But Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Rockefeller cannot fish. Consequently when that vague longing to "do something else" comes over them, the former endows another public library and the latter gives another million to the University of Chicago.

There is no disputing about tastes. Mr. Carnegie may derive quite as much innocent pleasure from endowing a library as Mr. Cleveland obtains from hooking a five-pound black bass or constructing a sentence with 117 words.

ENVIRONMENT AND THE BOY.

By means of a boy who he took almost from the gutter and educated into truth and a conscience a Chicago man has cleared from a charge of murder a prisoner who is the boy's own father.

This seems to prove that environment is a stronger force than heredity. But then one remembers that Prof. Frederick Starr, also of Chicago, took in and educated a boy of the streets who rewarded him by disappearing with the professor's spoons.

Human nature can always be depended upon to furnish at least one problem to offset another which seems to have been solved. The question of the relative influence of heredity and environment in the formation of character and the development of special ability is still open for debate.

DIVORCE AS A NECESSITY.

The Rev. Dr. Hodge, of Boston, has expressed the belief that divorce is necessary and "many times a Christian blessing." To try to annul it is, in his opinion, much such a hopeful and helpful endeavor as to attempt to "put a lid on Vesuvius." Dr. Hodge's views strike me as very rational. It is not divorce for petty causes for which the Doctor stands. He would not grant a separation because of a small quarrel at the breakfast table. But when the happiness or usefulness of a man or woman is imperiled he would sunder without hesitation the links binding the evil to the good. It is encouraging to find a clergyman so far emancipated from the worship of a "sacred" fetish.

The Mormons in Utah, Idaho and Wyoming, men and women, stood nobly—or ignobly, just as you may view it—by the Republican National ticket. It has been charged that an understanding was had between the Mormon church and the Republican leaders to the effect that if the States of Utah, Idaho and Wyoming cast their electoral vote for Roosevelt the Mormon Senator from Utah, Reed Smoot, would not be ousted. It is not reported that the committee of the United States Senate appointed to investigate the charges against Smoot will not continue its inquiry. However this may be the public will watch the conduct of that committee with profound interest.

They have already begun the discussion in Washington as to where the next Inaugural Ball shall be held. Congress passed a law prohibiting the use of the Pension Office for that purpose without its consent, and that probably will not be given. The business of a great bureau of the Government should not be stopped for several days in order to permit a few persons who can afford to pay for a ticket the opportunity to dance. The ball should be held somewhere else than in the Pension Building.

Senator Fairbanks says "When the American people think, their judgments are always righteous." And of course they always think when they endorse him.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—While being arraigned in court today Charles Shyck, a saloon keeper, fired a revolver several times at his wife and child and then committed suicide. The child was wounded, but not seriously. During the shooting Mrs. Shyck fell unconscious and was thought to have been killed. When the woman revived her husband lay dead, and the court room was in wild confusion. The charge on which Shyck was being tried related to a family disturbance.

One of the most successful rabbit hunters in this part of the State is Miss Anna Eaver, of Lock Haven. A few days ago she returned from a hunt in East Nittany Valley with a dozen fine fat rabbits which she had shot.

ARE AMERICANS POLITE?

(From Good Housekeeping.) A discussion has been raging in the London press on the question, Does politeness pay? Correspondents point out that not only have the ancient courtesies fallen into disuse, but that even the commonest courtesies of daily life is fast becoming unfashionable.

Since old Bibles are becoming popular in Riverside and Danville, we refer to one recently brought to light on the corner of Mahoning and Ferry streets. It was printed by Thomas Basket, printer to the King of England, and by the assignees of Robert Basket, in London, in the year 1761. The volume is, therefore, 143 years old, and is especially valuable for its associations, having been handed down from the late James Woodside, father of the late Mrs. Valentine Best, and is now the property of her daughter, Mrs. Ellen Best Egger.

Many of our lady readers would, no doubt, be delighted to see the handsome log cabin quilt recently constructed by Mrs. Ephraim K. Hale, residing on West Mahoning street. The spread is 24 yds. long by 14 yds. wide. The patient lady was six years in cutting the patches, sewing and quilting the gaudy-colored fabric. It required 58 spools of thread, (200 yards in each spool,) to complete the long and weary task. The material used was of the finest velvet and silk, making a picture equal to many highly-colored paintings.

Through the Courtesy of Mr. Forbes H. Vannan, the popular all-round machinist, of Riverside, the writer was treated to an automobile ride on the gentleman's "flyer" from South Danville to Kipp's Run, a few days ago. The round trip, a distance of five miles, was accomplished in sixteen minutes. During part of the run the auto, fairly flew over the finely Macadamized road at the rate of 22 miles per hour.

Messrs. Charles F. Deibert and Wm. H. H. Smith are located in the room recently occupied by Stoes band, on Mill street, opposite the Post Office, where they will entertain during the coming long winter evenings, with up-to-date music on the phonograph. Only one cent per record will be charged; former price 5 cents. Drop in and enjoy yourselves. Gentlemen will always be welcomed.

F. H. Vannan, of Riverside, is the happy possessor of a New Testament and the Psalms, dated 1676. The valuable volume, dated for many years, the property of Mr. Vannan's father when yet a resident of Glasgow, Scotland, where Mr. Forbes Vannan first saw the light of day, near the banks of the classic and historic river Clyde.

Work on the abutment for the river bridge goes merrily on. Several car loads of structural material are on hand at South Danville station, and the hundreds of readers of the INTELLIGENCER will soon have the pleasure of seeing at least a foot path spanning the piers from the opposite side of the river.

The repairing of the pavements on Mill street presents quite an animated scene at this time. Improvements have been made recently at Miss Fannie Hartman's residence, in front of Shannon's butcher shop, Peters' cigar store, Hotel Oliver, First National Bank, Globe Warehouse, City Hall, and various other places.

Rabbit hunters are still on the war path, and cornering bunnie in every part of Montour county—in the neighborhood of Washingtonville, at Chulasky and along Blue Ridge, and many nimble returns to their homes in this city with their belts hanging full of the cotton tails.

Mr. D. L. Mauger, the courteous and gentlemanly passenger agent for the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, is held in the highest esteem by the traveling public of Danville, because he is always ready to meet his patrons more than half way. The Prohibition party appears to

SIAMESE-SHAPED TREE AT DE WITT'S PARK—LOG CABIN QUILT, SIX YEARS IN CONSTRUCTION—TESTAMENT 223 YEARS OLD, ETC.

Danville, Pa., Nov. 17, '04. Special Correspondence of The Intelligencer.

There is a natural curiosity in De Witt's Park, on the other side the river, of which but few Danville people know anything about. On the left hand side of the road leading from the gate to the park stands a sugar maple tree with huge limbs reaching above the variegated colored leaves which were recently changed by Jack Frost to crimson, gold and red.

Between these boughs a sprout of several years' growth has long been imbedding itself into the opposite tree, giving the phenomena much the appearance of the fleshy part that bound together the once famous Siamese twins. When you go picnicking to that favorite resort some time next summer, stop a moment and admire God's handwork.

The Philadelphia and Reading railroad which passes through Danville appears to be doing the largest freight business at this time—coal and lumber being the principal commodities. There is scarcely a day in the year, even Sundays, when not less than eight or ten heavy trains roll through this city en route to the sea board. The last startling report of the road, in October, gives the number of locomotives at 927 and 24,129 coal cars, with a capacity of from 20 to 50 tons each. Besides the excellent freight service the system is noted and quite popular for its elegantly equipped trains from Philadelphia to New York City, which leave both terminals every hour, from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. during week.

A certain learned man gave simple rules for the choice of a wife, and bade young lovers beware of a girl whose lips drooped at the corners, as such would probably make anything but a happy place. At the same time he advised the intending husband to remember that upward tending lips indicate frivolity, so that here, too, he would need be careful; while lips which are quite thin and very straight belong to a woman who is a shrew.

It is a merry person generally who has a stout upper lip with a depression under the nose and corners, which tend upward. If the corners also dip deeply, the owner will probably be quick at repartee.

A selfish morbid and dominating woman frequently has a long, thin mouth, with clean cut firm lips; while the cruel as often as not boasts lips which are unusually red.

A general slackness as regards the greatest question of right and wrong is at times found in owners of mouths where the under lip is thick and rolls outward.

A large well closed mouth indicates sagacity; while a chin which is firm and rounded generally associates itself with determination and strength.
