CLEVELAND INSTITUTE. The second quarter of the Cleveland Institute begins to-day. Parents desiring to educate their sons & daughters would do well to investigate the merits of this institution. The course of instruction is modeled after the very best schools in the country, and is extensive and complete. The discipline, though firm, is administered in such a way as to develop the better nature and finer feelings. During the past quarter there has been a large number of students in attendance from Cleveland and the surrounding counties.

A great deal is being said in reference to the Supreme Court Judges to be elected next year. It is none of our business, but Cleveland can furnish better timber than anything we have seen mentioned yet.

We are told in the school books that Casablanca was the boy "Who stood on the burning deck Eating peanuts by the peck," but that is a mistake. He is now in France and was elected to the French Assembly the other day.

An Opinion of the "Herald." The Rhea Springs News compliments us as follows: "The Herald has a circulation of nearly 1,000, the largest any paper ever had in Bradley county, and is an excellent and truthful paper on all subjects, and one not governed or pampered by prejudice, but speaks out at all times just what it thinks, regardless of 'other people's' opinions."

The Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, was in session in Nashville last week. Among the many important actions was the adoption of the new constitution for subordinate Lodges. We aimed to publish a list of the delegates to the Conference this week, but the names arrived too late. We will publish the appointments next week.

Collecting Taxes. Trustee White was busy all last week up to Saturday receiving taxes. On Saturday morning the town was full of constables to obey the following law: Sec. 3. Be it enacted, that on the 20th of October, 1877, it shall be the duty of each Trustee in the State to make out a certified statement of the unpaid taxes due from delinquent tax-payers in his county for the year 1876, and deliver the same to the Constables and Sheriffs thereof, as required by the 5th section of the Act aforesaid, entitled "An Act more cheaply to collect the State, county and municipal revenue."

Among the "big lights" of the Presbyterian Church that were here attending the Synod was Frederick A. Ross, whom our older citizens will remember was the same F. A. Ross that Brownlow in his better days delighted in fighting through the newspapers. Mr. Ross' health seems to be good, age however is beginning to show on him considerably—will be 81 years old next Christmas day. He preached an excellent sermon at the Baptist Church last Sabbath night, and left for his home on Monday.

Death of a Well Known Cat.

Toby, alas! Poor Toby is no more. May I not pay a word of tribute to the memory of this silent yet expressive companion of mine. Ten years since he came from Malta, the far off Isle of the Ocean, to my possession and was then quite young—a mere kitten. He grew and soon developed into the full manhood of his species, and through the past decade, I had almost said through every hour day and night he has been the constant attendant of his master, ever ready to pay back his care and always prompt in the discharge of his duties which nature assigned him. But I cannot detail his virtues. And as to faults, he had none. While thousands have seen him here and at Chattanooga, he never had an enemy; he could not have one because he was alike to all, answering equally with the gentle purr and magnetic effluence to the touch of the peasant, the working man and the rich. In his higher nature he knew not the proud man's contumely nor the poor man's wants, but to him they were both his friends, and in them he perceived but another type of living organism linked to him in the chains of being and only fitted to a different sphere of action to his.

Such was Toby when Sunday having reached the full rounded term of his being he drew gently the necktie of his couch about him and passed away into the "broad unknown."

And is this all of my Toby, and will you pardon me if I say not. That intelligence of the Universe which creates all animal life and endows it with intelligence but lends in so doing part of itself and that self-existent everywhere and in all times cannot be mortal but from the very nature of things must be immortal. We simply know not the bounds of being but may rest assured that beginning at the lowest order that it is but a progression upwards to the Creative Him. I know not how nor where Toby exists but I do know that while here he held intelligence from the quickened spirit of the Universe and I fondly believe that somewhere in the realms unknown that intelligence, eliminated from mortality, dwells in a higher order of being.

His Late Master.

Pay Attention to Duns. If more attention were paid to duns, both through the paper and letters, there would not be so much necessity of resorting to the last alternative—the law—for collections. A man when he sends you a polite invitation to settle account does not always expect the money, but when he finds his demands are treated with silent contempt, his indignation is aroused, and the delinquent must suffer. When you are notified that books must be settled, whether you have the wherewithal to cancel the debt or not, let the man you owe know the circumstances of your case, so that he may settle intelligently. Your failure to respond to his call creates a feeling of distrust that ends, if he be a business man, in a law suit.
