GENTLE EVA.

BY MRS. R. S. NICHOLS. Have you heard the touching story, Told so sadly, of that time...

AGRICULTURAL.

From the Rail Road News.

AGRICULTURAL MEETING.

Pursuant to previous notice a meeting was held in the Court House in the town of Jonesboro...

On motion Wm. P. Reeves was called to the Chair, and L. C. Hoss was appointed Secretary.

On motion of A. G. Graham the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the chairman appoint a committee of three to nominate officers for the present year.

The chairman then appointed C. F. Yeager, H. Young and L. C. Hoss, who reported the following:—Wm. P. Reeves, President; J. F. Broyles, G. W. Telford, J. Yeager, C. Hoss, V. Miller, M. Boothe, W. T. Erwin, J. Murray, C. F. Yeager, H. Young, L. Bowers, H. D. Hale, B. Hale, R. A. Thompson, Col. J. Kyland, J. Conley, Bro. Campbell, J. C. Sams, Secretaries.

The committee recommended that the annual meetings of the Association be held at Jonesboro, on the 1st Tuesday after the 4th Monday in February; and also, that the Executive Committee, or a majority thereof, appoint the time and place to hold the first annual Fair, and set forth the list of premiums to be awarded; and that they make publication of the same, at as early a date as possible.

The following is the Constitution as adopted: Constitution of Washington county Agricultural Society.

The name of this Society shall be the Washington county Agricultural Society. The object of this society is to foster and improve agriculture, horticulture, and the domestic and household art.

Sec. 1. The Society shall consist of all such persons as shall signify to the Executive Committee their wish to become members, and shall pay to the Treasurer, on signing the Constitution of the Society, not less than $1.00 and annually thereafter not less than 1.00; and also of honorary and corresponding members.

The officers of county Agricultural Societies in this State, or delegations therefrom, shall be members ex officio of this society.

The payment of—dollars shall constitute life membership, and exempt the members so contributing from all annual payments.

Sec. 2. The officers of the society shall be a president, vice president from each civil district, three-fourths of whom shall be practical agriculturists or horticulturists, a treasurer, a corresponding secretary, and a librarian, an Executive committee consisting of the above named officers, and five additional members.

Sec. 3. The President shall have a general superintendence of all the society. In case of the death, illness, or inability of the president to perform the duties of his office, the executive committee shall elect a vice president to act in his stead, who shall have the same power, and perform the same duties of the president, until the next annual election.

It shall be their duty to take charge of the affairs of the association in their several districts to advance all its objects, to call upon farmers to report as to the condition of agriculture in their neighborhood, to ask for information as to the mode of cultivation adopted by different farmers, and as far as in their power to make known the resources of their districts, the nature of its soil, its geological character, and all such matters as may interest farmers in every part of the county.

Treasurer.

The Treasurer shall keep an account of all moneys paid into his hands, and shall only pay bills when audited and approved by the Executive committee, each order for payment must be signed by the President or Chairman of the executive committee.

Corresponding Secretary.

The duty of this officer shall be to invite a correspondence with all persons interested in agriculture whether in the State of Tennessee or elsewhere, but especially with our consuls in foreign nations, that new seed, vegetables or live stock may be introduced, and their fitness for cultivation and propagation in our climate, be tested. At each stated meeting of the society he shall read his correspondence which shall, either the whole, or such parts as may be selected by the society, from a portion of its transactions.

He shall also correspond with the president or other officer of each State Society in the U. S., at least twice in the year, for purposes of combined and mutual action, and to be informed of the result and progress of each other of forty; also to invite mechanics to forward models or implements for examination and trial. The Recording Secretary shall keep the minutes of the Society and the Executive committee, at the close of each year shall prepare for publication such parts of the minutes and transactions of the society as may be designated.

utes of the Society and the Executive committee, at the close of each year shall prepare for publication such parts of the minutes and transactions of the society as may be designated.

The Librarian shall take charge of all books, pamphlets, &c., belonging to the society, generally; shall act as curator to preserve seeds, implements, or whatever property the society may possess.

The Executive committee shall transact the business of the society, generally; shall prepare and direct the publication of such of the reports and transactions as they may deem proper, and shall designate the time and places for annual exhibitions; regulate the expenditures, examine all accounts and keep such general charge of the affairs of the society as may best promote its interest.

They shall select their own chairman, and meet monthly; five members shall form a quorum.

They shall call special meetings of the society when necessary. Sec. 4. The society shall meet annually, on the 1st Tuesday after the 4th Monday of February, at Jonesboro, when all the officers of the society shall be elected by ballot for the ensuing year, and until another election. They shall also hold a general meeting whenever convoked by the executive committee.

Fifteen members shall form a quorum for the transaction of business, but no member in arrears shall be entitled to the privileges of the society.

Sec. 5. The Constitution may be altered or amended, at the annual meetings in Jonesboro, on the 1st Tuesday after the 4th Monday of February, by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

WM. P. REEVES, Pres't.

L. C. HOSS, Sec'y.

DEEP PLOWING—CULTIVATION OF CORN—PRESERVATION OF POTATOES, &c.—Messrs. Editors:

It being a wet day, unfit for outdoor business, I thought I would seize this opportunity of putting a few thoughts together and send you for your disposal. I have noticed some pieces in your paper on deep plowing, which, in the main, I think correct, and which has been my practice for years. But when I break with spouts or turning plows, I am always governed, as to depth, by the depth of the soil; as my experience is, that plowing with these kind of plows, or any turning plow, if you stir up the clay, and throw it to the top, you injure your land, unless it is well manured, and then you may plow as deep as you please. Nor am I in favor of turning plows for common land, unless you have manured broadcast; they will then do in order to throw under or cover up the manure. Nor am I in favor of turning in old or dead grass; I much prefer burning it, for observation has taught me that where the grass has been burned, corn and cotton comes up and grows off better than where it has not been burned.

I said I was in favor of deep plowing. It must be with the right sort of plow, which is either your sub-soil or common center plow. With these you may plow as deep as you please, which will add to the improvement and production of your land. In 1845, (I think that was the year,) I broke up all my land with coulter, as deep as I could, and then plowed all my corn and cotton with the same plow, still trying to go a little deeper than the first. The result was, my land plowed mellow and moist all the year, and I made plenty of corn, and some to spare, for I sold several hundred bushels, with no more rain than my neighbors. I think the Coulter plow the best and cheapest plow we have among us.

Again, I beg leave to differ somewhat with the common received opinions of the day, in regard to the last plowing of corn. As above said, I do not believe in turning land over with your turning plows; our summers are too long and hot, and it is killing to land thus to throw it up to the sun. But my experience has taught me to plow corn deep all the while—even when laying it by—notwithstanding it is said that in breaking the roots, &c., you injure it. Now, I will not attempt to explain the philosophy of it further than to say, that by breaking off the old roots, and stirring up the ground, you put new life and vigor in the whole stalks; by trimming and pruning an old tree, it assumes a new growth, and consequently new life. This may seem a little heterodox, but experience teaches us that this is true; and I would respectfully ask why it is that the top ear on a stalk of corn is always the largest? and why is it that you cut corn long before you pull the fodder, without injuring the corn? There appears to be some inconsistency in this, but observation proves it to be so.

Last year, I had a field of 45 acres, second year land, in corn. The rows were 4 feet apart, and the corn stood thick in the drill—say 2 feet. At the regular time for giving it the last plowing, the weather was dry, and the ground stumpy and rocky. The corn looked very fine indeed, and we thought, under the circumstances, that we would give it a good hoeing, and accordingly did so. The result was that my corn was injured; and I now believe that if I had plowed it, it would have done better, notwithstanding it made me over 200 barrels. My plan is to plow late—until almost in the roasting ear—while some contend that when corn bunches for the tassel, is the time to lay it by.

A word about potatoes, and the mode of keeping them. It is an object with all farmers to despatch business in a safe, short and easy manner; and I propose that in putting up potatoes, those that are intended for seed, should be put up in hills. My plan is this: I simply level the place where I want to make the hill, and then lay two rails down on the centre, about 6 inches apart; then lay a couple of thin pieces across them, and putting on them two more rails, I close up the top so as to prevent the potatoes getting through and filling up the vacancy. I then put my potatoes on the rails until I get the hill as large as I wish, and the size is not material, rounding them up. Then I commence covering, by setting up corn stalks around the hill; then I put on vines followed with dirt—say six or eight inches thick—being careful not to stop the holes at each end of the rails, and also leaving a small hole on the top, covered with a few boards; these all to be kept open during the sweating or seasoning process, which will be two or three weeks; then close them up with a thick covering of dirt. You need no other shelter, and if your potatoes are in good order when put up, there is no danger of their injuring. I have tried this plan upwards of twenty years. I speak of Spanish potatoes. You can keep your potatoes equally secure by putting them in houses; and I have known the builders of potato houses to be most particular to have them, if they could, airtight. I heard a gentleman, not long since, say how particular he had been in building his potato house, and that they had all rotted. I told him they would always rot if put up in that way. Now I have two potato houses; one is built of split logs, with the cracks chinked and daubed, and dug in the ground some 12 inches; a loft of split logs, and a few inches of dirt thrown on that. The other is built in the same way, only of hewn logs. The secret in keeping potatoes, is to let them have sufficient air, and this must be done by letting your door stand open day and night until they go through their sweating and seasoning process, and also pulling out some of the daubing in the cracks. After this you may close your door and cracks, but remember they must have air during that time, whether in hills or houses.

Now, Messrs. Editors, I shall my last and desultory remarks, leaving them at your disposal. We should be much pleased to hear from the planters of Middle Georgia, their practical improvements in agriculture; for we want to find out some improvements that are particularly suited to our soil, climate and productions—in short, the secret we want to know is, how to make large crops, and a short way to get them in, and have time to improve our lands.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO THE AFFLICTED

MICHELL'S INDIAN RHEUMATIC EXTRACT AND BLOOD PURIFIER, a certain cure for either Inflammatory, Chronic or Acute Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Gout. This valuable remedy stands without rival in the history of discoveries in this or any other country, in curing those painful and paralyzing diseases in their various forms. The vast number who have been cured by the use of this Extract and Blood Purifier, during their discovery, demonstrates its merit. Not only recent acute, chronic, or inflammatory cases, but the old chronic cases of ten, twenty, and even forty years standing, when they had not only tried every other internal and external remedy which they could hear, but at great expense had visited the various watering places without obtaining relief—these persons were reduced to a mere skeleton, their flesh without and limbs paralyzed—these have been permanently cured, are now enjoying excellent health, are able to follow their former avocations with their usual activity—from the use of these medicines. These facts are fully substantiated by public testimony that cannot be gainsayed; but can be vouched for by thousands. Also, Mitchell's Indian Diarrhoea Cordial and Gough Drops, stand unrivaled in curing pulmonary diseases—any affection of the lungs, as coughs, colds, &c., and everything of the nature of Diarrhoea by the use of Diarrhoea cordial, can be speedily stopped, whether chronic or acute long or short standing. To be had at the Dispensing Drug Store of Dr. W. R. Hurley, Louisville, Tenn.

This subscriber also has an Infirmary in the city of Nashville, on the corner of Vine and Deanebrance streets, for the reception and accommodation of invalids, for the cure of all diseases of the lungs, chest and throat. He will, moreover, cure the following diseases: Dyspepsia, Ulcers, Colic, Coughs, Cancers, Piles, Dropsy, Scrophulous Diseases of the skin, Diarrhoea, Gonorrhoea and Asthma. Females suffering from irregularities, nervousness and debility can be permanently cured. Diseases of a peculiar character, I guarantee to remove in a few days, without offensive or deleterious medicine, and in the most agreeable manner, in any way they may direct. J. MITCHELL, Indian Botanic Doctor; Office Market street, 3 doors from the Public square, sign of the Indian, Nashville, Tennessee. feb 19, 1853-14
