Inconvenient Somnambulism.

A strange as well as an amusing case of the inefficiency of Philadelphia detectives has been furnished to the writer. The young son of a Philadelphia journalist was employed, a short time ago, in one of the large wholesale and retail dry-goods establishments of that city as errand boy. One evening he was en-trusted with a package, on which he was to collect $65.85. The little fellow collected the amount, took it home, and, fearing burglars, thought a good place of safety would be underneath the carpet of the dining-room. The next morning the bills had disappeared. No other member of the family had seen the money, and what had become of it was a puzzle. The boy went to the store and reported the loss. About noon of the same day one of the officers who the entire State now knows have been receiving "hush money" from criminals, made his appearance at the journalist's house, and, after studying the spot where the $65.85 had been con-cealed, charged the mother and father of the boy with stealing it, and stated that, unless it was restored within twenty-four hours warrants would be issued for the arrest of the worthy people. Rather than have trouble or publicity about the matter, the father paid the dry-goods firm the sum that had been lost. But the strangest part of the story remains to be told. The following night, after the money had been paid, the journalist heard a noise in his little son's room, and, upon going into the spartment found the boy upon the floor with a roll of bills in his hand. Upon investigation the money was found to be the $65.85. The boy was a somnambulist, and perhaps while dreaming of the concealed treasure had risen from his bed, descended to the dining-room, and, removing the money from beneath the carpet, carried it upstairs and placed it beneath the matting of his bedroom.— Philadelphia Press.

A colored man employed by Mahlon Vail, at Newmarket, near Plainfield, N. J., was severely injured a few days ago in an encounter with a young stallion, the property of Mr Vail. The man was leading the animal to the barn when it suddenly sprang upon him and knocked him down, and kneeling upon his body began to tear his clothing and flesh. Several bystanders came to the aid of the victim, but were unable to drive off the horse until a basket was thrown over his head. This bewildered him so that the man was enabled to get away and start for the barn, but the enraged animal made another rush at him, and, knocking him down again, endeavored to trample upon him. The bystanders attacked the stallion with clubs and stones, and finally stunned him.

-Six months ago Mr. John Bunger, a switchman on the Central Railroad, died. A fine English setter which belonged to him was presented to a gentleman in this city by his widow in consideration of his kindness and attention to the family. A few days since the gentleman shipped the dog to No. 8 1-2 Central Railroad, to the care of a friend there. The day after his arrival the dog managed to get loose from his kennel, walked deliberately to the railroad, and stretched himself across the track in front of an engine, and was run over and killed, thus committing suicide from Turne is a young editor wandering on the face of the earth who formerly published a paper at Storm Lake, Iowa. He left there the day after the issue of his last paper, and is supposed to be crossing the State on foot to get away from an infuriated female populace. It seems there was a concert given by young ladies of the city, and the gallant young editor wrote it up in splendid shape. The same day he had visited a herd of short-horn cattle, owned by a farmer in the vicinity, and he wrote up the cattle also. The cross-eyed foreman of the office got the two articles mixed as follows: "The concert given last evening by sixteen of Storm Lake's most beautiful and interesting young ladies was highly appreciated. They were elegantly dressed and sang in a most charming manner, winning the plaudits of the entire audience, who pronounced them the finest shorthorns in the country. A few of them are of a rich the country. A few of them are of a rich brown color, but the majority are spotted brown and white. In localities where the extraordinary merit of Dr. Guyaott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla becomes fully known, it leads the sale of all other remedies, and although, in some instances, certain druggists have been known to recommend some other remedy as a blood purifier or strengthening tonic, by the sale of which they make greater profit, nevertheless it is a fact that intelligent persons will not be thus per uaded, but will insist on the druggists procuring Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla, as it far excels all medicines as a blood purifier, strengthening tonic, liver and bowel regulator, and kidney cure. THAT RICH EXPERIENCE.

A Free Press Interview Sustained and Its (Detroit Free Press.)

A few months ago an interview with a prominent and well known physician, formerly a resident of Detroit, but now living in New York, appeared in the columns of this paper. The statements made by the doctor and the facts he divulged were of so unusual a nature as to cause no little commotion among those who read them, and many inquiries were raised as to the genuineness of the interview and the validity of the statements it contained. The validity of the statements it contained. The name of the physician was at that time suppressed at his own request. The scal of secrecy, however, can now be removed, as the important and interesting letter which appears below will abundantly show. In order, however, that the reader may better understand this letter, a few extracts are herewith given from the interview in question.

After an exchange of courtesies and a few resulniscences about the war, in which the doctor was a prominent surgeon, the reporter rereminiscences about the war, in which the doctor was a prominent surgeon, the reporter remarked upon the doctor's improved appearance, upon which he said:

"Yes, I have improved in health since you last saw me, and I hope also in many other ways. One thing, however, I have succeeded in doing, and it is one of the hardest things for any one, and especially a doctor, to do, and that is I have overcome my prejudices. You know there are some people who prefer to remain in the wrong rather than acknowledge the manifest right. Such prejudice leads to bigotry of the worst order. Now, I am a rive. remain in the wrong rather than acknowledge the manifest right. Such prejudice leads to bigotry of the worst order. Now, I am a phy-sician, and of the 'old school' order, too; but I have, after years of experience and ob-servation, come to the conclusion that truth is the highest of all things, and that if preju-dies or highest y stand in the way of truth, so is the highest of all things, and that if prejudice or bigotry stand in the way of truth, so much the worse for them—they are certain to be crushed sooner or later. Why, when I knew you in Detroit, I would no sooner have thought of violating the cede of ethics laid down by the profession, or of prescribing anything out of the regular order, than I would of amputating my hand. Now, however, I prescribe and salvae those things which I believe to be adapted to cure, and which my experience has proven to be such."

"How did you come to get such heritical ideas as these, doctor!"

"Oh, they are the result of my experience and observation. I obtained my first ideas upon the subject, though, from having been cured after all my care and the skill of my professional brethren had failed to relieve me. Why, I was as badly off as many of my patients, with a complication of troubles, including dyspepsia, and consequently imperfect kinneys and liver and I feered. I would

Why, I was as badly off as many of my patients, with a complication of troubles, including dyspepsia, and consequently imperfect kidneys and liver, and I feared I should have to give up my practice. For months I suffered untold agonies. Dull, indefinite pains in various parts of the body; a lack of interest in everything around me; a loss of appetite; headaches; all these disagrecable symptoms were added to pains which were both acute and constant. Sick as I was, however, I became restored to health in a most surprising manner and in an incredibly short space of time, and it was this that proved a revelation to me. That was the starting point, and my prejudices faded rapidly after that, I can assure you. I went to reading extensively, and analyzing more extensively, and since that time I have discovered many things of real value to humanity. Why, only a few days ago I advised a ladv who was suffering from a serious female difficulty and displacement to use the same remedy which cured me. I saw her this morning and she is nearly well; the pain and inflammation are all gone and she is around, as usual. We have no right in the medical fraternity to sit back and declare there is no such thing as improvement or advancement, or that we have a monopoly of the medical fraternity to sit back and declare there is no such thing as improvement or advancement, or that we have a monopoly of the remedies which nature has given to mankind. There are great changes going on in every department of life, and there are great developments in medicine as well. Thousands of people die every year from supposed typhoid fever, rheumatism, or other complaints, when in reality it is from frichina, caused by eating poorly cooked and diseased pork. Thousands of children are dying every year from dropsy as the apparent sequel to year from dropsy as the apparent sequel to scarlatina, when in reality it is from diseased kidneys which have become weakened by the fever they have just had."

"Well, doctor, you have got some new truths here, certainly, but they sound very truths here, certainly, but they sound very reasonable to me."

"Well, whether they are reasonable or not, I have demonstrated to my own satisfaction that they are true, and I propose to stand by them, no maiter how much opposition I may raise by doing so. Any man, be he politician, preacher or physician, who is so considerate of his pocket-book or of his own personal ends as to stuitify himself by suppressing the manifest truth, is unworthy the name of man, and unworthy the confidence of the public whom unworthy the confidence of the public whom the serves."

The above are some of the principal points in the interview referred to. Now for the sequel. The following outspoke letter from the doctor himself which has just been received is

Editor Detroit Free Press:

Some time ago a reporter of your paper had an interview with me which he said he would like to publish. I consented on condition that you would not mention my name until I gave you permission. I have now accomplished the purpose I had in mind, and wish to say to you (which you can publish or not as you see fit) that I had debated for a long time whether I would shake off some of the professional fetters which bound me with others for years, and I would shake off some of the professional fetters which bound me with others for years, and tell the truth, or not. When I looked back, and thought of the tortures, like those described by Dante in his trip to the infernal regions, which I endured from dyspepsia, and recalled how much I would have given at that time for the relief which I have since obtained. I determined that I would take the step so long meditated, and thereby discharge a duty to my fellow men. If I could thereby save one poor mortal one night of the terrible suffering I endured, I would be fully satisfied, be the other consequences what they might.

My dyspeptic condition was produced by a torpid liver, which did not, as a consequence, remove the bile from the blood. This produced derangement of the stomach, inflamduced derangement of the stomach, inflam-mation of its coats, dyspepsia, constipation, headache, depression of spirits, yellow com-plexion, fat-covered eyes, chills and fever; in short, I was miscrable to the last degree. I appealed in vain to my books, to my skill and to my fellow physicians. The mystery of my ill-health grew deeper. I traveled everywhere - exhausted all authorized expedients—but to no purpose!

When in this frame of mind, desperately in need of help, but expecting none, one of my need of help, but expecting none one of my unprofessional friends called my attention to need of help, but expecting none, one of my unprofessional friends called my attention to some unusual cures wrought by a prominent remedy and urged me to try it. I emphatically declined. But secretly, and with the firm determination that I would never let anybody know what I had done. I began its use. It was only an experiment, you know, but for that matter, all medical treatment is experimental. Well, to make a long and surprising stery short, I experienced a sort of physical revolution. My skin got a better color. My liver resumed its functions. I no longer had to arouse the bowels with cathartica. My headaches disappeared with my dyspepsia; but still I was not convinced. "Nature did it." I reasoned. But, determined to pursue the investigation to the extreme, while I was in active work, I tried the effect of the remedy on my patients afflicted with kidney, liver and urinary diseases, watching every development carefully and studiously. Then I was completely disarmed, for the remedy stood every test imposed.

Under such convincing circumstances, the matter of confessing my cure became a question of conscience and of duty to humanity. "Here is a remedy." I said. "that has done for me what the best medical skill of the country could not accomplish"—and as an honorable man I will not suppress the facts. I therefore write you and most unbesitatingly assert that for all diseases of the kidneys, flyer, stomach or urinary organs which are amenable to treatment, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure surpasses any remedy I have ever known or used, and since physicians have so much ill-success in the treatment of dis-eases of these organs, I am prepared to accept all the consequences when I say that they are, ff conscientious, in duty bound to use this pure vegetable compound in their practice.

Yours very truly,

J. W. Smrm, M. D.

Statements so outspoken as the above and Statements so outspoken as the above and coming from such a reliable source are valuable beyond question. They conclusively slow not only the power of the remedy which has become so well known and popular, but the great importance of attention in time to the first indications of declining health. When professional men of such high standing sink their prejudice and willingly declare their belief in that which they know to be valuable, the public may confidently follow their example.
