

National Republican

W. J. MURTAGH, Editor and Proprietor. THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at the southwest corner of Thirtieth street and Pennsylvania avenue, and is furnished to subscribers (by carriers) at five cents per copy.

RATES OF ADVERTISING: Twenty cents per line for one week. For longer periods, by agreement. For a full column, $1.00 per week. For a full page, $3.00 per week.

THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN HAS A LARGE CIRCULATION THROUGHOUT THE MORNING PAPER IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

KENTUCKY elects a Governor next August. Of course, all the candidates for the Democratic nomination are ex-Confederate officers.

What is the matter now? What has Col. Forsyth done for the World? It would be a grand thing for the press of this country if more of the editors would strive to enact the role of gentlemen in their treatment of each other.

The Philadelphia Press wants a National Centennial Spelling Match. It suggests a convention of philologists to harmonize the differences of lexicographers as to the orthography of words regarding which there is a diversity of opinion.

Parson Brownlow and ex-President Johnson have locked horns, or, more correctly speaking, the Parson has lowered his head and paws the earth, following a challenge for a contest with the President. He accuses Mr. Johnson of falsifying history, and there is promise of lively times in Tennessee.

Senator Jack Brown Gordon, of Georgia, positively declines to become the Democratic candidate for Vice President in 1876. Now let Jeff. Davis decline to become the candidate of the same party for President. This is all in the natural course of things, when we remember the antecedents of the Democratic party; but who would have dreamed of such a thing as this?

AND NOW comes a Tar Heel patriot, with some show of truthfulness, claiming that the South is ruined and destroyed, and that military cavalry at a vast expense to the State, and the prospect of higher rates for fuel entailed upon the community at large. And for all this, the stagnation to business which always results from the idleness of laborers, the loss to the general productive wealth of the country, amounting to some millions more, we have absolutely nothing to show. There is not a single compensating feature visible. There is but one way of avoiding these strikes, and that is by managers evincing a disposition to deal fairly with the laborers. The labor of this country as a rule is disposed to be just and fair, willing to work for reasonable compensation, but it is exceedingly jealous of its rights and prerogatives, and resents anything that smacks of oppression. It is sufficiently intelligent to know that without its aid capital cannot accumulate, and that therein it has the capitalist at a disadvantage.

THE proposition of ex-Governor Walker, of Virginia, that the General Government should assume the debts of the Southern States, is not without earnest friends and supporters. It is urged so persistently that it cannot fail to become a prominent question in the consideration of the planks of the next Democratic national platform. This is all right as a piece of Democratic consistency. That party has always labored to assume the debts of the Southern States, while it has never failed to ignore the rights of the masses.

THE EDITOR of the Sunday Herald evidently aspires to become a Professor of Journalism. In the last issue of his paper he attempts to teach his betters how to conduct their business affairs. Behind this presumption, however, exists the fact that he is desirous of establishing a daily Democratic newspaper, and his outgivings just now are intended to convey an idea to certain parties, to whom he has applied for the manner in which he would like to manage such an enterprise. To say nothing of his inconsistency in assailing "carpet-baggers," when it is known that he is one himself—a bit of drift wood, in fact, lodged in this District when the flood of discharged soldiers subsided here at the close of the war—it is remembered that he is a persistent objector at the beginning of President Grant's first term; that so long as he enjoyed a Government sinecure he was willing to admit the patriotism and superior ability of all the members of the Administration, and that since then he has been closely connected with matters which are characterized by the Opposition as the operations of the "District Ring." These facts will not serve to commend him to the favorable consideration of Democratic leaders or capitalists in New York or elsewhere, and we may add that he would not have been alluded to in this pointed manner if he had not attempted to play the role of censor of the District press. Impudent and imprudent assumption, like virtue, has its own reward, but unlike the record of virtue, it is sometimes exceedingly unpleasant.

THE COAL STRIKES. The contest between the labor and capital of the country is daily becoming more plainly defined. The hope which has been cherished for some months past that the differences would be accommodated by a gentle yielding upon both sides seems likely to prove delusive. Especially is this the case with the coal region. There is to be held a military guard employed at the expense of the State for the protection of property from acts of vandalism. The capitalists have organized themselves—rather their means—for the ostensible purpose of employing labor for the development of wealth, but which is really organized as a means of self-protection against the improper encroachments of capital. Who shall say that one form of organization has any more legal rights than the other? But the difficulty seems to be that the fact that each party presumes to dictate to the other the policy which it shall pursue. While this dead lock continues both are losing money. The State and the public are being dwarfed in their taxable capacity at the rate of one dollar per diem for each man that is idle, besides the damages which are suffered to accrue to the several mines. The result will be a higher price for fuel the coming season, to be paid by all the poor people in the country without any compensating benefits to the miners or the capitalists. There is no doubt that the miners should be taught that they have no right to destroy the property of others, or to prevent others from working at lower rates than they choose to take if they can.

THE ALLEGED STRIKE. The New York Herald says the "Third Term agitation" is "dead at last." As the Herald had the doubtful honor of its paternity, this announcement of its decease ought to be authoritative. It was manufactured as a sensation; it has served its purpose; it has run its course; and now that it is declared dead, it is to be buried. The Confederates and those who have been alarmed and apprehensive at the dread bugaboo will recover their equanimity.
