CAMPAIGN PRINTING. The National Republican Printing and Publishing Company has printed and for sale, in large or small quantities, the following speeches:

Senator Blair, 16 pages. Senator Edmunds, 32 pages. Hon. Charles H. Jager, 16 pages. Hon. J. C. Burrows, 16 pages. Hon. James A. Garfield, 8 pages. Other speeches will be added to the list from time to time.

Orders by mail promptly filled.

"BOURBON BROTHERS" is the appropriate heading used by the Chicago Times to characterize the record it prints of current Democratic proceedings in Washington.

SOMETHING must have broken. The Cincinnati Gazette's authority for the statement that Colonel LEX HARRIS declines to link his fortunes with the Ewing campaign. It now looks as if the thing wouldn't hold together until the election.

NEXT to the appearance of JEFF DAVIS in the Senate the temporary disappearance of Senator EDMUNDS from his seat in that body brings the greatest joy to the average Bourbon heart. But EDMUNDS will return, and JEFF DAVIS—well, we shall see what we shall see.

AS ANDERSON was transferred from the witness stand to immediate service on the Democratic organ here, after he had unrolled his lies, it is not unreasonable to suppose that the latest importation of Louisiana liars will share a like fate, unless the lying corps of that concern is already full.

The beginning of the new fiscal year is upon us. Little more than a fortnight remains, during which existing Government appropriations will be in force. But during that time the Confederate-Democratic back-down will be completed and the starving-out process will be adjourned indefinitely.

SENATOR HILL was very unfortunate in his attempt to flay Senator BLAINE day before yesterday. His performance reminds one of the awkward, old-time thresher, who was quite as likely to hit his own head as the threshing-floor with his flail. HILL has gathered no laurels from this controversy.

THE Sandusky Register takes some exceptions to our suggestion that Secretary SHERMAN shall antagonize General EWING on the stump in Ohio, and we accept the exceptions without adopting the reasons. Ohio politics, we notice, are among the occult sciences, and we fail to comprehend them in all their relations and personal ramifications. We pass.

THE Democratic organ still insists that the Confederate Brigadiers are not inimical to the interests of the ex-soldiers of the Union army. It is nevertheless a fact that a score or more of those veteran patriots have been ousted from the offices they held under Congress to make places for the immediate friends of these same Brigadiers. Verily, as the organ itself remarks, "JIM ANDERSON must give up the bell."

It appears that Minister WHITE has already been inducted into the active duties of diplomacy in his new position at Berlin. He is now engaged in negotiations with the German Empire for the settlement of disputes arising out of alleged violations of the rights of certain naturalized citizens of the United States. It is gratifying to know that this negotiation is in competent hands.

The probabilities are against an adjournment next Tuesday, the possibility being that Congress will remain in session for a week or ten days longer. It is to be hoped, however, that they will get away very soon. The people with one acclaim will mark that day whose low, descending sun goes down upon the vanishing Brigadiers as a red-letter day—the better the day the better the deed, so to speak.

The opposition in the Senate against the army bill is characterized by the Democrats as a GRANT boom. In fact every movement in politics now-a-days having for its object the free, untrammelled, and equitable enforcement of the laws is a GRANT boom in their estimation. In other words, the simple name of GRANT is synonymous, in their vocabulary, with a fair and unprejudiced administration of the Government.

HERE is a rich specimen of journalistic merriment, which we find in the Augusta Chronicle and Sentinel:

Senator MATT CARPENTER has returned from Florida, looking very badly. It is said that he is killing himself by excessive smoking of strong cigars. The Wisconsin Senator is one of the most intellectual of men, but wanting in the lofty sense that makes HAYARD universally respected and THURMAN a lover of truth.

HAYARD and THURMAN playing stationary on a "hotly noised" pedestal is decidedly rich and satirical.

The precedents during President JOHNSON'S administration in the matter of the rejection of Executive nominations by the Senate are not pertinently applicable to the present situation. But even if they were, the Democratic criticisms of the partisan course of the Senate during that period would sound very strange if repeated just now in connection with the pending nomination of Secretary McCRAVE to be United States Circuit Judge. What is sauce for the goose is not always sauce for the gander, when the gander is Democratic.

TOM EWING'S great trouble in Ohio is with the German vote. Large numbers of German Democrats who believe in honest money will follow their habits of preceding years next October, and bolt the Democratic ticket, because a soft-money Democratic heads it. This schism in the Democratic ranks is much more important and substantial than any alleged division in the Republican party. The truth is, Mr. FOSTER will not lose a single Stewart vote, while EWING will lose hundreds and thousands of German votes.

THE New York Commercial Advertiser thinks that the Democratic Senators are awakening to the sad fact that BEX HILL talks too much about himself. Well, HILL seems to believe that the country cannot move forward an inch until his secession record is cleared up. No one cares whether HILL was an original secessionist or not. The fact exists that he was an active Confederate, a member of the Senate of that abortive government, in which body he introduced a proposition to kill every Federal soldier captured on Southern soil. That is his record, and he can't evade it.

THE division in the Republican ranks—a frightful fissure, a yawning chasm, as the Democrats have it—would be simply appalling if it existed outside of the imagination of the common enemy. But it does not. Senator CHANDLER, for example, a stalwart among stalwarts, is hurrying for FOSTER, while GARFIELD and WILLIAMS, of Wisconsin, are marching arm in arm in support of the Administration. It is this happy and united aspect of affairs in the Republican ranks that is distorted by the influence of their own surroundings into an appearance of divided councils by the irreconcilable, factions Bourbons.

PROBABLY the dullest of all dull things is that condition of public excitement which retains a monotonous interest day by day, without change of phase, although the participants may all be eagerly expecting abrupt terminations and quickly shifting attitudes in the situation. This is the paradoxical condition of affairs in Washington just now. Everybody knows that the Bourbons here have been whipped out, and that they have abandoned their original Congressional programme; but they seem to be taking their own time to complete their surrender. This makes things very, very dull.

THAT Governor COLQUITT, of Georgia, is the hypocritical, JANUS-faced, sham conservative that we have always described him to be was clearly proven in his action regarding the WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON memorial service in Atlanta the other day. A correspondent of THE REPUBLICAN, whose communication was printed a few days ago, explained that COLQUITT refused to permit the chambers of the legislative buildings in that city to be used for those services, but added that if the occasion had been one of lamentation for the death of any Southern hero the doors of those halls would have been thrown wide open. It is to be hoped that this fact will be remembered by the Northern Gushers who are in the habit of making the Governor's camp-meeting trips to that section of the country so pleasant for him.

THE Democratic members of Congress, as a body, have an excellent chance to plant a libel suit against the New York Tribune for the following statement, which we repeat as a wicked lie:

Poker playing is said to have been unusually prevalent in Washington during the past few weeks, and many overworked Congressmen are reported to have refreshed themselves and lightened their pocket-books by almost continuous devotion to that fascinating game. Business has also been brisk at all the gambling houses, and these organized swindlers have reaped an abundant harvest. This is the law of compensation fulfilled. The able statesmen who have been engaged in wrangling the country by a pretense of legislation, and have in turn been swindled themselves. But the greatest swindle of all has been perpetrated upon the Democratic party. Three months ago it had a fair chance of electing a President in 1880, and securing full control of the Government. Its leaders have gambled this all away, leaving the party with nothing but disgust for its present, and with no hope for its future.

We doubt if there is an intelligent citizen of the United States who has read the Constitution attentively and comprehends the duties it imperatively imposes upon the President as the Executive officer of the civil authority and commander-in-chief of the army and navy, who believes for one moment that Congress can weave into an appropriation bill or a statutory law a provision that will disrobe him of his civil and military power to enforce the laws, or absolve him from the obligations he assumes when he takes the oath of office, that he will faithfully preserve and enforce all the authorities of this Government. If Congress has that power, and it is recognized by the Executive, then the Constitution can be legislated out of existence, and the cohesive power of the Government can be rendered a rope of sand by the vote of the Confederate Brigadiers who failed to destroy it at the point of the bayonet used in armed rebellion.

"ALL is not gold that glitters"—so begin to think General EWING and his friends in Ohio. The Cincinnati Gazette, which ought to be unquestionable authority, says that "five hundred hard-money Democrats of a Lucas County have written a letter to a Congressman FRANK HUBB, asking him 'for advice in the present emergency.' "HUBB, who is tolerably familiar with the "crow diet, is going to answer that they had better swallow the ticket, rag baby" and all, and try to hold it down. The five hundred will, of course receive this advice and do as they please. The most significant thing about this case is that there are "half a thousand hard-money Democrats in a county so thoroughly given over to infatuation ideas as Lucas. Supposing every other county to have as many, there would appear to be 41,000 Democrats in Ohio who are thinking seriously of bolting the EWING ticket."

NEW HAMPSHIRE'S SENATOR. The nomination of HON. HENRY W. BLAIR to be United States Senator for the State of New Hampshire was announced yesterday morning. The contest seems to have been very bitter, not between the parties direct, but on the outside. Mr. W. E.

CHANDLER went grinning for Mr. WADSWORTH early, with very sharp weapons, and he bagged his game without much trouble. We congratulate Mr. BLAIR on his success, for, though comparatively young, he has an honorable record as an able, honest, stalwart, and courageous man in time of peace, with a war record that stands largely to his credit as a soldier in the struggle to crush rebellion. New Hampshire has done her best honor in this selection.

MR. BLAIR was born at Compton, N. H., December 6, 1834. He received a common-school and academic education, and took up the study of the law under the direction of WILLIAM LEVERETT, of Plymouth. He was admitted to the bar in May, 1859. He was appointed Prosecuting Attorney for Grafton County in 1860. During the war he served as Lieutenant-Colonel of the Fifteenth New Hampshire Volunteers. He was a member of the State House of Representatives in 1868 and of the Senate in 1867-'68. He was elected to the Forty-fourth Congress as a Republican, receiving 12,683 votes, against 11,824 for HENRY O. KENT, Democrat. He declined a re-election. His record in Congress, both as an advocate of Radical Republican principles, and of all the genuine moral reforms, particularly temperance reform, is highly spoken of.

DEMOCRACY A FRAUD. We would not allege that the Democratic party is a hypocritical fraud if the record did not establish the fact beyond controversy. And really we do not have to go beyond this present session of Congress, and the policy, tactics, and acts of that party during that period for a full demonstration of the truth and justice of the unpleasant allegation. Let us call attention for a moment to the rant and rave that party has indulged in Congress toward the President for the reason that he has thwarted their revolutionary and unpatriotic designs by the constitutional exercise of the veto power, and to the further fact that they have not attempted, neither have they dared to attempt, to show that they are in favor of honest and fair Federal elections. They have nowhere declared that they would accept the President's suggestion that he is both ready and willing to co-operate with Congress to improve, if possible, the Federal election laws, so as to more effectually secure fair and honest elections.

This simple fact furnishes the most indubitable proof that there is no honesty or sincerity in the Democratic cry about fair elections, otherwise they would gladly avail themselves of the proffered co-operation of the President to secure honest and fair elections. Can any intelligent, sensible man for a moment doubt that if the Democracy was actuated by an honest and patriotic desire to secure free and fair elections instead of vilifying the President as a fraud they would make haste to co-operate with him in improving and amending the laws so as to render honest, free, and fair elections a fixed fact, instead of a matter of doubt, anxiety, and public disturbance, where fraud and wrong are possible?

This, however, is not what the Democrats are after. They hope to delude the public by the hypocritical cry of honest and fair elections, when they know that an honest and fair election at every voting precinct in the country would inevitably seal the doom of that party in perpetual national defeat. They brand the President as a fraud, and under that cry push their nefarious and revolutionary designs against the national welfare. It is power and public plunder that the Democrats seek; not honest and fair elections. This will be the last thing on earth that that party will honestly and sincerely seek and desire. They would fain make the people believe that they are for honest elections, and yet they rally their full force against the laws which have been passed to secure that end. If those laws can be repealed or amended so as to render them a nullity, then fraud and miscequity can run riot and ballot-box stuffing, repeating, and voting on fraudulent naturalization papers can be perpetrated on a gigantic scale in New York, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, and other large cities, and towns in the next Presidential election. To put it mildly, it is their aim in all their attempts, under the cry of honest elections, to wipe out existing statutes and safeguards which stand between them and the accomplishment of their nefarious purpose. Thus far the President has rendered yeoman service to the country by heading off the Democratic party and its designs through the exercise of a veto power, whose value to the public welfare was never more clearly revealed than during the three months' contest in which the Democrats have sought, under the hypocritical cry of honest elections, to pave the way for the most stupendous election frauds yet known to our history as a nation. After this chapter in their history the Democratic party must wear the imperishable brand of fraud upon its forehead.

THE HILL MURDER. The murder of Mrs. HILL in her own house and sleeping apartment in a populous part of New York city, without attracting any attention at the time or until morning, continues to be an outrage wrapped in the profoundest mystery. No clue has been discovered to the perpetrators of the terrible deed, though the most sagacious of the detective forces are working up the case. The mystery may and may not be unraveled. Time was when the axiom "Murder will out" was universally accepted, but since the NATHAN murder that theory seems to have been exploded. This outrage appears to be akin to that, though there is far less plunder involved. It may be murder for murder sake alone, and if so the act was so skillfully committed as to defy the searching and revealing arts of the practiced detective. There seems to be little safety anywhere, and much less apparently in our crowded cities than elsewhere. The skill and chances of concealing clues in the cities are much greater than in the country, where retreat almost invariably leaves some trace behind.

A good story is told regarding the illness of the Hon. JOSEPH BAZAN, of Virginia, from which illness we are glad to say he is recovering. Mr. SPOHR was very sick several nights ago and sent for his attending physician in great haste. His friends really fearing serious results. When that learned disciple of Esculapius arrived the patient remarked: "Doctor, you are the only man who can save me, and you must do it." The doctor discovered that his patient's condition was not so desperate as he had himself supposed it to be, and accordingly replied to Mr. SPOHR'S vigorous declaration of confidence in a spirit of badinage, saying: "Very well, sir, I'll save you; but on one condition only." "What condition? name your terms, sir," said Mr. SPOHR, earnestly. Then, replied the doctor, with ill-advised asperity: "You must abandon your wicked ways, sir; you must leave the Radical party and become a straight-out Bourbon Democrat! Those are my terms—my only alternative." Mr. SPOHR turned over in bed and groaned out feebly the remark: "I hate to leave the world and the party behind; but I can't accept your terms; I'll die first." Thereat the doctor, who is not so hard-hearted as many people who will divide his identity in the spirit of wickedness which prompted this incident, prescribed a whiskey toddy for that occasion and departed. Of course it was a Bourbon toddy.

WAR ANNIVERSARIES. Pertinent Extracts from the Chronology of the Rebellion, 1861.

JUNE 14—John A. Dix commissioned major-general of volunteers. Harper's Ferry evacuated by the rebels after destroying the bridges and all the stores they could not carry. Governor Jackson evacuated Jefferson City, Mo.

1863. JUNE 14—Captain Atkinson and twenty men, of the Fifteenth Indiana, captured 6,300 pounds of powder, at Spycamore Mills, thirty miles from Nashville, Tenn.

1863. JUNE 14—Battle of Winchester—General Milroy was nearly surrounded by 18,000 men under General Lee. The rebels vanquished the Union forces and demanded their surrender. General Ferry refused. An artillery fight followed, after which General Ferry retreated to Harper's Ferry. General Banks made an assault on the works at Port Hudson, but was only partially successful. He gained a position within fifty or 100 yards of the fortifications. He lost 700 men killed and wounded. Three hundred rebel cavalry made a raid into Mayville, Ky., and took about $16,000 worth of goods, paying therefor in Confederate money; they took also about $4,000 worth of goods. The English and Hines guerrillas ranted near Bardonia, Ky.; four killed and one captured. The English and Austrian Consuls from the Confederacy arrived in New York City having been expelled from the rebel Government. The Army of the Potomac moved north to counteract Lee's movements in the Shenandoah.

JUNE 14—The whole of General Grant's army to-day was across the James River. Preparations were made for a movement against Petersburg, Va., by General Smith's corps with General Hunter's cavalry. General Hunter's forces in the Shenandoah Valley steadily advanced toward Lynchburg. The skirmishing at Kenesaw Mountain and Pine Knob, and the capture of the rebel General General Bishop Polk, in command at Pine Knob, was killed by a Federal shell, and General Johnson and Hardie, who were with the rebels, narrowly escaped. General Hooker's army moved around the base of Pine Knob, and the rebels were forced to abandon their position there or have their retreat cut off. The rebel center was withdrawn about a mile to the right, and the Union army moved up the hills between Kenesaw and Lost Mountain.

Rapid Transit in the School Room. Many of our readers, no doubt, will recollect an article which appeared in the columns of this paper a few months since, entitled "The Science of Education," giving a review of the new method of which Mr. T. D. Kellogg, of New York city, is the originator. His school in that city has now been in operation two years, and by their practical application in the school-room, the improvements of which he is the inventor have been thoroughly tested, and the results fully established. The course of instruction in this institution covers all the branches customary in our best schools, from the first rudiments of education up to, and including preparation for admission to advanced classes in college; and the advantages of this method are held out alike to both sexes. We observe as one of the new features of this school, that the children are furnished with a boarding school in connection with the day school.

From the new catalogue for the year 1878-'80, we are glad to note Mr. Kellogg's success and the evidence of his prosperity. The service which he is rendering society certainly merits the warmest and most generous public thanks. We quote from an article in the leading "Rapid Transit in the School Room," from the National Journal of Education, of Boston, the following: "In our day schools, under the old regime, requires from two to three years to teach children the reading, writing and arithmetic, and the reading, writing and arithmetic, and the advantages of this method are held out alike to both sexes. We observe as one of the new features of this school, that the children are furnished with a boarding school in connection with the day school.

"It was found that rapid transit in the city thoroughfares could not be secured by cramping the old-fashioned Metropolitan road. Great care is exercised to withhold the supplies and the wheels of the Government unless all their demands were complied with, in wondrously quick succession. Of all its proposed overhauls of established laws, not one has been accomplished.

principles—in the natural and direct result of the principal's own peculiar method of training. All the steps are wrought out with the utmost tenderness, and are based upon the philosophy of mind. Such progress is attained (and, in fact, in no other way is it possible) by presenting the subject with the utmost simplicity, so that the principles involved may be readily received, and assimilated into a really good mental constitution.
