OHIO HALF-BREDS have a splendid opportunity to try their hands at reading the Ohio Stalwarts out to-day at the State convention.

THERE is a sort of delirium tremens of lying with which most of the Administration organs are suffering. They scorn the truth when alluding to Conkling.

If THE Administration desires to have its follies forgotten and its offenses condoned let it prompt its managers in the Ohio Republican State convention to express warm fellowship with all who are opposed to the restoration of the Democratic party to power, and advise harmony and a caucus in the New York Legislature.

Gibson and His Trade. When "the broad fabric of the President sank sentiment," as a correspondent felicitously expressed it, and heartily approved the appointment of A. M. Gibson, late of the New York Sun, as an assistant in the Department of Justice to "prepare evidence" in the star-route investigation, he may or may not have been fully aware of the part Gibson played in 1878 as a "preparer of evidence." If he kept the run of the proceedings of the Potter investigating committee he knew that Gibson was in the lead of a gang most expert in the business, preparing evidence to show to that committee that Hayes was a fraud and Tilden a martyr.

J. S. Dula swore before the subcommittee at New Orleans that he arranged with the Tilden side to swear falsely in their interest for $500. He arranged this with one Weber, a renegade Republican, who told him that the money was coming from a man sent from New York on that business. Gibson turned out to be the only man from New York engaged on Tilden's business. He was operating with Weber. When Dula told this story on the witness stand it alarmed Gibson, who appealed to one St. Martin in reference to it. This man St. Martin was a very useful person. He was employed in Louisiana as a deputy sergeant-at-arms of the United States House of Representatives to subpoena witnesses for the committee. The man Weber had selected him and brought him to Gibson & Co. and the committee. He could find the witnesses that were wanted, and could bring them to the St. Martin committee to be prepared before reaching the congressional committee. This officer of the House of Representatives, S. H. St. Martin, does not deny with Mr. Gibson, as to what passed between them at the time that Dula made the revelation above described. Gibson swears he asked St. Martin whether Dula's statement contained any truth, and that he replied that it did not. But St. Martin declares under oath that Gibson took him outside of the room and paid him $500 to go upon the stand immediately and swear falsely in contradiction of Dula's testimony. There is much of this sort of testimony. Of course Gibson denied having bribed witnesses. He confesses, however, to have been in such company as Maddox, Weber, St. Martin, and the like, receiving from Maddox, in advance of the examination of witnesses, the evidence they were to give, written on slips of paper. The Republican members of the Potter committee—Hon. J. D. Cox, of Ohio, T. B. Reed, of Maine, and Frank Hiscock, of New York—were fully convinced that witnesses were bought and perjury suborned ad libitum before the Potter committee; and, as Gibson superintended the preparation of evidence, no room is left for doubt as to who they regarded as guilty of the work. They say in their minority report:

We take into consideration the testimony of Dula, Swager, and St. Martin as to the bribery and systematic subornation of perjury which went on in New Orleans, we cannot but appreciate the facility of summoning other witnesses to pass through the same corrupting channels.

The President and his advisers may regard the employment of Mr. Tilden's agent of 1878 to conduct an investigation into alleged wrongdoing in the public service as decent and proper. The public may, under the excitement of the time, be indifferent. But that a malignant, partisan Democrat, himself accused of subornation of perjury, and admittedly the busy-funder of the revolutionary investigation of 1878, should be selected to get up evidence to bolster up a case made in the newspapers in advance of knowledge as to facts, will form a chapter of infamy in the history of the Government by which the administration of James A. Garfield will chiefly be remembered.

Ohio To-Day.

The exhilarating attendant upon demolishing the Stalwarts so possesses the President and his flatterers that there is some probability of a final war-dance over the victims in the Republican State convention of Ohio, which meets at Cleveland to-day. When treachery and corruption had prevailed at Chicago last June, and the stolen nomination for the Presidency had been whisked off by Charlie Foster and General Sheldon and bestowed on Garfield, there was a triumphal march to Ohio. General Garfield returned home as the conquering hero, and being called on for a speech, twice he put Governor Foster forward to do his talking. Twice did this exuberant spokesman mount the platform and devote his remarks to ill-timed jests at the expense of Conkling and to exultation over Grant's defeat. He went so far as to recognize the hand of Providence in the result and to speak of General Grant in tones of unmistakable disparagement. He was not rebuked by General Garfield, but was put forward a second time after he had thus offended. To-day it is said that the convention is to renominate him for Governor. If he believes now that Grant and his friends are unworthy political associates, it would be well to have the fact proclaimed. There are soldiers of the Union in Ohio and citizens who were not soldiers who believe that Grant is as able a man as Foster, and as truthful, courageous, and patriotic as the President himself. They have seen the Administration's attempts to make hostility to Grant and Conkling a test in the Republican party, and they will not be taken for fools in Ohio. We hope it will speak out loudly on the subject of the Robertson outrage, one way or the other. Let Murat Halstead himself draft the resolution which shall declare that "the only way to deal with Conkling is to knock him down and drag him out." Then place Foster on this platform, and let Republicans in Ohio vote as they please, just as the Republicans were exhorted to do to-day in New York.

The Administration members of the New York State convention to caucus on Senators with the Stalwarts. We sincerely hope that until this wrong is righted no Stalwart Republican will feel bound by any caucus or convention to vote for any man who is not a Stalwart. If that element is not good company in New York, it cannot be in Ohio, and it will not trust itself among its enemies to serve them. Let the Half-Breeds have the full benefit of their own disorganizing policy if they insist upon it.

Virginia and the President.

The best information that we are able to obtain from various sources is that the President favors the coalition of Republicans and Readjusters in Virginia, and will lend all possible support to the ticket nominated at the Readjuster convention last week. The sentiment of the leading Northern papers is unmistakably for that ticket. Indeed, there seems to be no exception of any consequence. The Administration organs are emphatic in their support. The New York Times and Tribune, Boston Advertiser and Journal, Philadelphia Press, Cincinnati Gazette, and others are most outspoken. The Stalwart papers, without exception, are for Mahone and the Readjuster ticket. The outlook is most hopeful.

The Virginia Republicans who will resist the general opinion of the Republican leaders, masses, and press will be reduced to a handful. The black men in Virginia know their friends and will adhere to them.

General Mahone is to be rewarded for his labors and trials by seeing the movement he inaugurated spread through the South and fully accepted at the North. If the cause of a fair ballot has become tedious and uninteresting to a certain class of whilom Republicans, it is well that it has fallen into good hands in the South.

The moon took pity upon benighted Washingtonians last night and shed her radiant light upon the streets, which for two nights had been shrouded in Plutonian darkness.

As order from the Treasury Department relative to the overruling of excursion boats has been issued. Now let the proper officers see that it is rigidly enforced.

Forty young lawyers were launched upon an unoffending community last night.

SARA BERNHART arrived in London yesterday.

The Athletic Base-Ball Club, of Philadelphia, is at the Imperial.

FRED S. MOSHER, chief clerk Planters' Hotel, Augusta, Ga., is at the St. James Hotel.

EX-MAYOR STOKLEY has been placed on the Fairmount Park Commission in place of Colonel Thomas A. Scott, deceased.

The Harvard Greek play will not be repeated until autumn at least. Some of the actors have been getting "conditioned" in Greek.

Mr. W. D. HOWELLS has agreed to write for Mr. Lawrence Barrett an original play founded on incidents of early colonial life. The play is to be ready for the coming winter season.

DR. JOSHUA B. CHAPIN, formerly State commissioner of public schools, was found dead in his bed yesterday morning at Providence, R. I. The cause was probably heat disease.

EX-GOVERNOR B. F. PERRY, of South Carolina, is a thorough-going opponent of the doctrine of prohibition of liquor manufacturing. The State, he says, may tax but forbid these industries.

SIEMENS, the European electrician, has cleared $2,000,000 from his inventions, and expects to make as much more from the electric railroad which has put in operation so successfully in Berlin.

EX-JUDGE HILTON is soon to have built for him in fifth Upper a magnificent private residence, to cost $300,000. It is said that the style of architecture will be altogether new in this country.

J. H. WOODARD, of Indiana (the "Jayhawk" of the Cincinnati Enquirer) is at the Riggs. Mr. Woodard having been an influential actor in the Indiana campaign last fall, is under suspicion of having been in his Hoosier eye.

PRIVATE WINFIELD SCOTT, worthily bearing his name, of the Ohio State University Battalion, carried off last week the first prize for perfection in drill, the judges being United States army officers and officials from the Ohio adjutant-general's office.

The Mikado of Japan has lately done a thing which, if done thirty years ago, would have caused every high-souled Japanese who was sensitive to the honor of his country to commit hara-kiri. His Majesty has attended the foreign race-meeting at Yokohama.

COLONEL INGERSOLL will probably go into mourning over the restoration of one of the "Jayhawk" of the Cincinnati Enquirer, as he is at the Riggs. Mr. Woodard having been an influential actor in the Indiana campaign last fall, is under suspicion of having been in his Hoosier eye.

EDMUND BURKE and Walter, the poet, both lived in the town of Beaconsfield, in Buckinghamshire. The peerage of Beaconsfield was first designed by George III. for Burke. The name Beaconsfield is a modern introduction, and no native ever pronounced the name otherwise than Becken-sfield. It is thought that the word has no connection with the title of a beaumont, meaning much further back, like Oakfield, Ashfield, &c., indicates a clearing in the dense beech woods (beacon) which once covered the whole Chiltern range.
