

IN HOCKING VALLEY.

MR. BLAINE PAYS THE MINERS A VISIT AND TALKS TO THEM.

He is Enthusiastically Received—Both Parties Anxiously Awaiting the Result of To-Morrow's Election in Ohio and West Virginia—The Movements and Sayings of Politicians High and Low.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 12.—The state campaign was practically closed last night, with both parties claiming the state—the republicans by 10,000 and the democrats by 8,000 majority. Both claim a majority of the twenty-one congressmen. The organization of both parties is 90 per cent. better in completeness and efficiency than ever before. More work has been done than in any campaign, and the claims of each party are based on what on the knowledge of the perfection of their respective organization and favorable reports from their co-workers. Each party claims that it will have the state under the other cheats them out of it by fraud or purchase. The republican state committee has offered a reward of $100 for the detection of illegal votes. The indications are that there will be a Tuesday in the leading cities—a full vote and such a close result that the majority will be less than 10,000 either way, and that the republican state committee has offered a reward of $100 for the detection of illegal votes.

BLAINE AMONG THE MINERS.

His Speech to the Workmen in the Hocking Valley Saturday Evening.

LANCASTER, O., Oct. 12.—At Nelsonville, the center of the mining district in the Hocking valley, Mr. Blaine delivered the following speech on Saturday night. I am born and brought up in a coal region in the valley of the Monongahela and I know something about coal. I have been an owner of coal lands nearly all my adult life, and the greater part of what I live property I have in this world in coal lands. I have also been to some extent engaged in the mining of coal. I am now interested in a stockholder and a director in a company in West Virginia. I have had twenty-seven years' experience in connection with the coal industry and I count it a piece of remarkable good fortune that neither myself or any company I have ever had a strike, or a quarrel, or dispute, or trouble of any kind with any man. I never had a strike, or a quarrel, or dispute, or trouble of any kind with any man. I never had a strike, or a quarrel, or dispute, or trouble of any kind with any man.

MR. BLAINE'S OLD FRIENDS.

His Speech to the People of Lancaster—Recollections of Grant, Sheridan, and the Sheremans as Boys.

LANCASTER, Ohio, Oct. 12.—At a public reception given him on Saturday night here, in response to a serenade by the republican club of the town, Mr. Blaine delivered the following speech: MY FRIENDS: I confess that in this place I have many old friends. I have never made any allusion to public affairs. Recollections that rush upon me as I stand here, carry me back many years to a time before most of you were born. In fact I was a school boy in this town attending the school of Wm. Brewster, an English gentleman, a younger brother of Lord Lyons, and uncle of the late British minister at Washington, who taught with great success the youth of this vicinity. I know not whether this is the case here or elsewhere, but I beg to make my acknowledgments to you as an instructor. As I look upon your faces I am carried back to those days, to Lancaster as it was then, a little town of dwellings on the opposite side of the street, in one of which I lived. I have many old friends here, the first lawyers of Ohio, Thomas Ewing, Henry Shipherd, and Hocking Hunt. I vividly recollect the chambers where they met, and shortly before that time there had some been a man, straight as an arrow, with a sharp face and a full suit of red hair. His name was John Sherman. I have heard much of him since, and he will be heard of as the march through Georgia bids its heart of him. I have heard much of him since, and he will be heard of as the march through Georgia bids its heart of him. I have heard much of him since, and he will be heard of as the march through Georgia bids its heart of him.

OLD WORLD DOINGS.

MORE ABOUT MR. GLADSTONE'S PROPOSED REDISTRIBUTION SCHEME.

Socialist Fires in Berlin—A Series of Duels Between First-Rating Parliamen Journalists—The Whereabouts of Gordon and Party—European Gossip.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The marquis of Hartington, secretary of state for war, in a speech delivered at Chatsworth park to-day admitted that he had seen the draft of the government redistribution bill before it was published in the London Standard. It had been submitted to the committee as an endeavor to put the proposals of Mr. Gladstone into practical shape. He contrasted the method which the Standard obtained a copy of the scheme. Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt, home secretary, also addressed the meeting. The marquis of Salisbury, conservative leader in the house of lords, in an address to-day at Kelso, said that he felt uncertain whether the Standard's version of the redistribution bill was a genuine one, but if it was the scheme was likely to fail. Consultations among the conservative leaders have resulted in a decision on their part to reject the redistribution scheme, to maintain their opposition to the franchise bill, and to force a dissolution of parliament. The queen's speech mentions a proposal to increase the strength of the navy. Lord Henry Lennox, Liberal leader in the house of commons, will move an amendment to the adjournment of the house of commons, which will move amendments concerning the government for refusing to inquire into the Massachusetts scandal, and for the trial of the Dublin scandal cases was conducted.

A GHOSTLY TALE.

An Express Messenger Sees, or Thinks He Sees, a Visitor from the Other World—His Strange Story.

SAIT LAKE, Oct. 12.—Aaron Ross, the express messenger of the Central Pacific who recently made a demand for a new car, averring that the old one in which he had been on duty so long was haunted, sticks to it that he was not mistaken as to what he saw and heard. He is a brave and intelligent man, and his story is a very interesting one. He says that he saw a man who he thought was a ghost, and that he saw a woman who he thought was a ghost. He says that he saw a man who he thought was a ghost, and that he saw a woman who he thought was a ghost. He says that he saw a man who he thought was a ghost, and that he saw a woman who he thought was a ghost.

THE SCIENCE OF MAN.

An English Anthropologist upon American Old-Fashionedness—The Quakers in Error About Their Origin—A Zuni Woman's Bark Fetishism as a Study.

A tall man, with a rich, healthy color in his cheeks, a thick beard of brown hair, and a two foot beard, faced an audience of exceptional intelligence at the Columbian university lecture hall on Saturday night. He had been introduced at a ten minute address by Mr. Powell, the president of the Anthropological society, under whose auspices the gathering took place, as a scientist of the first rank in English natural history. He was Dr. H. H. Henshaw, of the University of Oxford, a classic reader, and of low table-stone by side by side, but as Prof. E. H. Taylor had nothing to do but some fragmentary notes he used the time for getting up a very interesting paper. After an apparently very genuine apology for his unprepared condition, by reason of the short notice and preoccupation of his mind with the wonders he had seen, he commenced his address. Old-fashionedness, he asserted, was the most prominent characteristic of this country, or of any section of it he had observed. "Times that are gone are fastened to modern Europe by a chain of their own hair, and if he wanted a spinning wheel to ornament his parlor he had to look back to the days of the spinning wheel. He said that he had seen a spinning wheel in the house of a Quaker in the West Indies, and that he had seen a spinning wheel in the house of a Quaker in the West Indies, and that he had seen a spinning wheel in the house of a Quaker in the West Indies.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Some Figures That Show the Republicans Have a Chance to Carry the State.

WHEELING, Oct. 12.—The heavy work of the West Virginia campaign has been done and little now remains for the party to do except to await the counting of the ballots. The notes that come from all parts of the state suffice to inspire the republicans with high hopes of a splendid victory. Tuesday night a few facts may serve to make plain some of the important matters connected with West Virginia. The outside world has received the impression that the democratic majority in the state election approximated 10,000. The party was indeed that, but Gov. Jackson had been elected by a narrow margin. The republican majority was estimated at 10,000. The party was indeed that, but Gov. Jackson had been elected by a narrow margin. The republican majority was estimated at 10,000. THE GRAVE ROBBERS.

A STRANGE MISTAKE OF THE RESURRECTIONISTS DISCOVERED.

A Long-Buried Body Unearthed, Found Unfit for Use, and Thrown Into the Grave From Which a Better Subject Had Just Been Taken—The Prisoners Committed.

The Young Men's Burial Ground, the scene of Jesus's ghastly work on Friday night, yesterday visited by a large number of colored people, some attracted by curiosity, while others were anxious to ascertain if the graves of relatives or friends had been despoiled, but no requests have been made as yet to have any graves opened. It would be difficult to determine the exact location of the exterior of the graves, whether the bodies had been tampered with, as the sexton says that these grave robbers make a better job of their work than he. He said that he had seen some of the graves, but he had not seen any of the graves. He said that he had seen some of the graves, but he had not seen any of the graves.
