THE NATIONAL PATRIOT DEAD

DECORATION DAY AS OBSERVED IN THE LOCAL CEMETERIES.

The Grand Army Out in Force Despite the Dismal Weather—Miss Cleveland Drops a Bouquet at the Tomb of the Unknown—An Ex-Confederate Contributes the Arlington Poem.

Nobody but a G. A. R. man would have thought of marching five miles in the rain that made Saturday a miserable day.

These patriotic citizens did not feel at all discouraged when they came out of their houses early Saturday and saw the big water clouds that hung low in the heavens, casting a melancholy shadow of gloom over the city.

THE PRESIDENT'S RETURN.

He Drives Behind the Seal Browns to the White House With Col. McMichael.

The slight indisposition which confined the seal browns to their stalls for nearly two weeks has passed away, and the noble animals never looked better than they did last night, when they were attached to the President's carriage and driven to the Baltimore and Potomac depot to await the latter's coming.
