Lodge Meetings To-Night. The following lodges meet to-night at the places named.

Masonic-Federal, No. 1, Masonic Temple; De Moley Commandery, No. 4, Masonic Temple; Royal Arch, No. 8, Georgetown.

Knights of Pythias-Deatur, No. 9, Georgetown, Excelsior, No. 14, Pennsylvania avenue and Ninth street; Germania, No. 15, 672 C street northwest; Occident, No. 19, 902 C street northwest; No. 20, Washington street and Seventh street northwest; Grand Association of Metropolitan Lodge, No. 16, Moore's Hall, Ninth street.

I. O. O. F.-Anacostia Tent, No. 18, Hays's Hall, 209 Pennsylvania avenue southeast; Col. W. G. Moore gave the residence of Mrs. Wyrone, where Mrs. Godfrey, it was asserted, had roomed, a most excellent reputation.

Mr. Frank T. Browning, the other commissioner, testified in the manner in which Jackson had been sworn, his testifying, and the testimony being taken by a stenographer. The testimony was subsequently reproduced in typewriting and signed by the defendant, who made his mark to it, which was witnessed by Mr. Lewis. Wm. H. Stubbins, stenographer, testified to the testimony of the defendant, and it being translated as correct as the witness personally reviewed it. He also took down the corrections made by the accused. The testimony given by Jackson before the commission, which it is alleged was false, was then read to the jury. It is testified to recognizing a photograph (shown him as that of Mrs. Godfrey) as that of a woman he saw in the house, and to seeing her going in and out of the house at all hours of the night, carriages standing in front of it, horses frequenting it, and that he has often carried liquor and beer into the house, that he had frequently carried notes from gentlemen at the Arlington to the house to the only picture he had recognized, and afterwards seeing a gentleman with black side whiskers who sent notes come there in a buggy.

The reading of the "correction" then followed, which Jackson took back every word he had said. He admitted meeting Ferguson, Donohue, and Cunningham at different times at Golley's, and that the latter promised him $50 for testifying in this case, and all he had sworn to was put up to him to swear to. He further testified that Ferguson came after him to get to see Cunningham, and Ferguson showed him the picture he was to testify to as having seen the woman in the house, and that he would have seen her if he had seen her.

At the conclusion of the reading of the deposition the court adjourned for the day.

THE BELT DIVORCE CASE.

Samuel Jackson, colored, was placed on trial in the criminal court yesterday morning to answer to an indictment charging him with perjury. District Attorney Worthington and his first assistant, Mr. Tappan, appeared for the government, and Mr. Joseph Shillington, Jr., for the defendant.

This is one of the cases growing out of the trial of testimony in the divorce suit of Mrs. Gregory against Eugene N. Bell, of Baltimore, Md., and cross by the defendant. The suit was instituted in the circuit court of the city of Baltimore by the wife, on a charge of desertion by the husband. This was denied, and, in a cross bill, Mr. Bell complained of immoral conduct on the part of his wife prior to their marriage, and of the production of proof to sustain it. The taking of testimony was entered upon, and both parties anxious to have witnesses examined in this District, the commission named was agreed upon and evidence taken. During the course of the examination under the cross bill Samuel Jackson, Benjamin Golley, and Baito Minor gave evidence which subsequently they came forward and admitted was false; that they were not acquainted with Mrs. Bell; never knew her as Mrs. Godfrey; neither had they seen her at the house where their testimony located her, and they did not know anything against the reputation of the house in question. Two of the false witnesses went further, and disclosed how they produced the perjury, being hired to do so by a private detective named Cunningham, who entered into an agreement with Mr. Bell to secure adverse testimony against his wife.

Shortly after the trial of Jackson was entered upon yesterday the point was raised that no perjury had been committed against the law of this District or in any cause pending before any court of this jurisdiction, and therefore the testimony against the defendant would not hold good. The court did not sustain the objection.

Mr. G. T. Lewis, of Baltimore, one of the commissioners, testified to Jackson being sworn on the "Holy Evangelist of Almighty God to tell the truth," &c., and then giving him the money to go to the residence of Mrs. Wyrone, where Mrs. Godfrey, it was asserted, had roomed, a most excellent reputation.

Mr. Frank T. Browning, the other commissioner, testified in the manner in which Jackson had been sworn, his testifying, and the testimony being taken by a stenographer. The testimony was subsequently reproduced in typewriting and signed by the defendant, who made his mark to it, which was witnessed by Mr. Lewis. Wm. H. Stubbins, stenographer, testified to the testimony of the defendant, and it being translated as correct as the witness personally reviewed it. He also took down the corrections made by the accused. The testimony given by Jackson before the commission, which it is alleged was false, was then read to the jury. It is testified to recognizing a photograph (shown him as that of Mrs. Godfrey) as that of a woman he saw in the house, and to seeing her going in and out of the house at all hours of the night, carriages standing in front of it, horses frequenting it, and that he has often carried liquor and beer into the house, that he had frequently carried notes from gentlemen at the Arlington to the house to the only picture he had recognized, and afterwards seeing a gentleman with black side whiskers who sent notes come there in a buggy.

The reading of the "correction" then followed, which Jackson took back every word he had said. He admitted meeting Ferguson, Donohue, and Cunningham at different times at Golley's, and that the latter promised him $50 for testifying in this case, and all he had sworn to was put up to him to swear to. He further testified that Ferguson came after him to get to see Cunningham, and Ferguson showed him the picture he was to testify to as having seen the woman in the house, and that he would have seen her if he had seen her.

At the conclusion of the reading of the deposition the court adjourned for the day.

The Arlington Roller Mills. Among the many flourishing enterprises which Washington boasts there is, perhaps, not one which reflects more credit in the general arrangement and management than the Arlington Roller Mills. It is a sort through the mills shows that the firm is thoroughly abreast of the times. Now improvements are in progress; the latest and most improved machinery is being installed, and the output, aggregating 300 barrels per day, is turned out. Having the advantage of water power they are enabled to compete in price with any mills in the country, while their carefully selected rollers insure a maintenance of and demand for their well known brands of flour.

Arrested for Criminal Libel. Mr. James K. Clements, commonwealth's attorney for Alexandria county, was yesterday arrested on a warrant sworn out by Mr. Benjamin Austin, clerk of the county court, and taken before Judge Adams, on the charge of criminal libel, in making public a telegram to Attorney General Ames, which stated that the records of the court had been created. Mr. Clements and his attorney, Mr. G. H. Reed, appeared before Judge Adams and had the case postponed till May 6 next, pending for his appearance at the trial of the sum of $200. Mr. Austin has prepared a paper which he has forwarded to Attorney General Ames, charging every charge made by Mr. Clements, and denouncing the latter as a liar, &c.
