THE COLORED CONSUL.

Reappointment to San Domingo—Opposition of Democrats—Substantial Indorsements from New York Merchants.

Mr. H. C. C. Astwood, a prominent citizen of New Orleans, La., was appointed by President Chester A. Arthur, Feb. 17, 1884, United States consul at San Domingo, West India, and since that time has been at his post discharging his duties faithfully and efficiently...

The Astwood arrived home on Feb. 15 last upon a sixty-day leave of absence, which expired on the 15th of this month and was extended until May 1. He had arrived at New York, and was preparing to sail for San Domingo, when on last Friday he received a dispatch from the Secretary of State calling him to this city immediately...

Since Monday last the Department of State has been hearing the protests of the Louisiana delegation, but they failed to make any charge against Mr. Astwood, except that he was a Republican, and they thought that the cause ought to be filed by a Democrat...

King, upon the request of F. S. Shields, secretary of the Louisiana delegation, withdrew his opposition to the retention of Mr. Astwood. During all the time that the department had determined after due consideration, to retain him, consequently he will leave this city in a few days for San Domingo. In addition to the testimonials from the board of underwriters of the cities of New York, Boston, and Philadelphia...

The Metford Gun Test. The Metford gun will be tested at the navy yard this afternoon at 3 o'clock under the supervision of the inventor. The test will be unofficial, but it is expected a large number of army and navy officers will be present...

Mr. Grant Smith, well known here as late business agent with Harrow and otherwise, will sail from New York on Thursday next for Europe in the steamer State of Indiana. His absence, to extend three months, will be filled by Mr. H. C. C. Astwood...

The above letter is also signed by W. C. C. Astwood, president of the National Insurance Company; H. C. C. Astwood, president of the National Insurance Company; H. C. C. Astwood, president of the National Insurance Company...

THE BLAIR BILL.

An Open Letter From Ex-Senator H. K. Bruce to Mr. McKinley on the Subject.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30, 1886.—HON. WM. MCKINLEY, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Dear Sir: I venture to call your attention to the Senate educational bill, commonly known as the Blair bill, and now pending before the House of Representatives.

The immediate need and the supreme importance of popular education, elementary and technical generally considered, is self-evident. The citizen, under our system, is the sovereign, and intelligence on the questions of his civil and political duties is as necessary to their satisfactory discharge as wisdom in the rulers of a country, is wisdom to good government.

Intelligent labor—embracing a practical knowledge of the best methods of production and familiarity with the best appliances to be used in the pursuit of industry—is essential to the creation of the material comforts and conveniences of a community. The demand for education for the masses is urgent in all of the political communities that constitute our republic; the needs and now necessities for technical education, however, vary in different localities.

Exceptional causes have conspired to swell the volume of popular ignorance in this country, and the colored citizens of the south, and the same causes have reduced the ability of these communities to meet the demands for technical education. While the population in the south is about one-third of the population of the whole country, the colored citizens constitute one-fourth of the population of the whole country.

The statistics furnished by the bureau of education show that in 1883-4 the school population in the formerly slave states was 1,338,920, while the enrollment was but 3,525,701. These estimates show the presence at school of a little more than one-half of the school age population. The period has only just begun when the aid of the national government is imperatively demanded.

I have watched with anxiety the fortunes of the several measures brought before Congress in favor of aid by the national government for popular education. For both races and all classes of the people I earnestly appeal to the statesmen and philanthropists of the country to give this question the immediate serious consideration to which its great importance entitles it.

Delay is full of mischief, because, no matter how speedily the act of Congress, the contemplated programme is so large, the difficulties to be overcome so great, and the progress of the practical development of the measure will be so gradual and slow that it will hardly be able to appreciate the benefits offered, ere they shall have reached a period in life when both the political and the social demands for technical education are most imperative.

If action be postponed, another generation of poor, ignorant, and uneducated men will be thrown on the community, and through life disabled by an ignorance that never can be remedied. Very respectfully, H. K. BRUCE.

Outward Bound. Mr. Grant Smith, well known here as late business agent with Harrow and otherwise, will sail from New York on Thursday next for Europe in the steamer State of Indiana. His absence, to extend three months, will be filled by Mr. H. C. C. Astwood...

SEND FOR SAMPLE COPY OF PUBLIC OPINION!

While the iron is hot; the season is opportune. Remember, delays are dangerous. "Aye, there's the rub." We are prone to procrastinate, and thus invite a "LUGGARD" fate. Come to "THE HUB," and learn the lesson of push and pluck. 'Tis the will to do and dare and not blind luck. That wins success, and leaves the fossils of fate upon a barren strand—A desert waste, a fruitless land—in deep distress.

Public Opinion contains in its twenty-four handsome pages printed and spoken opinions on all leading questions as they appear, without comment, and with due credit, from newspapers and periodicals, from organs of political parties, from the independent press, from the publications of various orders and associations, and the utterances of prominent public men—thus foreshadowing many and divergent views and opinions.

Public Opinion is the best epitome of American thought, in which the reader finds prepared and arranged for instant perusal and examination the most important comments and expressions on the foremost topics of the day, on all questions involved in the Field of Politics, Finance and Commerce, Labor and Capital, Science, Law, Religion, War, Art, Music, Drama, etc. They appear without bias toward any political party, commercial enterprise, religious sect, or contending influences. Resources are also laid to papers in this country printed in foreign languages, and to European publications, for matters and opinions thereon. Public Opinion, in brief, is the one medium through which is found current and contemporaneous opinions on subjects commanding public attention, together with a carefully-prepared miscellany, a chronological record, and items of general and special interest.

WHAT THE PRESS SAY ABOUT IT. "It is of unquestionable interest." N. Y. Journal of Commerce. "We wish the publication the success it deserves." Wall Street Daily Times. "The character of the publication is an earnestness of lasting success." Columbus, Ohio, Dispatch. "Public Opinion is the chief cornerstone of our republic, and no party can thrive except by faithful compliance with its demands." National Republican. "It is an excellent paper from the start. There never has been published a journal which gave so faithful a reflection of American thought." Washington Star. "An ingenious publication which represents American good sense." Courier des Etats Unis. "The value of such a publication can be better appreciated after one has seen it." Indianapolis Journal. "It is convenient in shape and attractive in style, and the selections show much judgment and discrimination." Philadelphia Record. "For thoughtful students of the times such a paper cannot fail to be valuable." Philadelphia Press. "It would be difficult to estimate the value of such a magazine of thought to the man of affairs and the student of our political and social history." Toledo, Ohio, Commercial. "It is convenient in shape and attractive in style, and the selections are made with judgment and discrimination." Rochester, N. H., Union. "The range of opinion is extensive, embracing politics, religion, metaphysics, religion, humor, etc. We can conscientiously advise sending for it." Pittsburg, Pa., Times. "It assists to elevate its readers out of the rut of merely partisan opinion, and is capable of doing important work in the way of public education." New Orleans Post. "It is admirable in contents and arrangement." Boston Pilot. "It is a valuable publication. We advise everybody to get it." Providence, R. I., Freeman. "The selections are made with care and impartiality, so that the best thoughts on all sides of great questions are presented." Omaha, Neb., Bee. "It is an exceedingly useful publication, and shows in every word the drift of prevailing thought." Buffalo Courier. "It is edited with great ability and discrimination." Pittsburg Press. "There is not a hand-asher paper so carefully edited in the United States." Washington Herald. "An interesting and valuable publication." Troy, N. Y., Telegram. "It gives the pith of prevailing thought, and thus is a public opinion in an important manner." Toledo, Ohio, Tribune. "It is the first publication of the kind in this country, and bids fair to become one of the leading papers of the day." Evansville, Ind., Tribune. "This is very readable and interesting, and shows a nice regard to the public interest in this thing; say. Its success is assured from the start." Quebec Chronicle. "It seems to be of the right sort—an epitome of current thought." Rochester, N. Y., Herald. "It is invaluable to the man who would keep posted." Lincoln, Neb., State Journal.

Ready-Made Clothing, HATS, and Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods. The Golden Eagle still pursues its natural course upward and onward, basking its bright plumage in the sunshine of the people's smiles, untroubled by the occasional sickly grunts of the White Elephant, whose keepers' hands are full in their frantic efforts to prevent the costly brute from eating his own head. The "bird of freedom," self-reliant and self-sustaining, soars aloft and revels in the clouds of business.

Great is the Word. That best describes the trade we have been doing and have every reason to expect a continuance of during the spring and summer months, and why should we not? When we sell a Child's All-wool Suit for $1.50 and keep them in all the intermediate grades up to the finest foreign fabrics, cut and made up with all the style and tone that artistic skill is capable of, as if of the making of them were a labor of love rather than of necessity. The highest grades will cost but 85¢.

Are the preparations we have made to anticipate the wants of our people of every condition in life. The millionaire, the mechanic, the laborer, and the merchant will have no difficulty in finding here just what they need in the clothing line. We sell an All-wool Suit for $9, and we have twenty different styles at that price. We keep suits so fine that we are obliged to charge $35 for them, and we have quantities of every intermediate quality and in every style, shape and shape between these two prices from which you can make your selection.

Great Indeed. Haven't we smote the vampire of high prices, "hip and thigh"? Our people have already realized what services we have rendered them in this regard, and we are correspondingly happy.
