DEATH OF MR. TILDEN.

Manifestations of Sincere Regret—Telegrams of Sympathy—Last Moments.

The news of Mr. Tilden's death was received at the capital yesterday with every manifestation of sincere regret.

No one in this city had received any intimation of the precarious condition of the deceased statesman, and many of the members of Congress, including even Mr. Hewitt, first heard of the sad event when the resolution of regret, offered by Mr. Morrison, was read from the clerk's desk in the House.

The Associated Press bulletin was flashed over a special wire to President Cleveland immediately upon its receipt in Washington, and caused a sensation when received by the white house.

Mr. Tilden's death and his illness had not the impression obtained that this would be the last day of the session, the resolution adopted in the House yesterday afternoon, which provided for an immediate adjournment of that body.

MR. TILDEN'S COURSE OF LIFE. Samuel J. Tilden was born in New Lebanon, N. Y., on the 4th of April, 1814. He was educated at the University of New York, and in 1836 he entered the public life when he became a member of the New York State Legislature.

In 1850 Mr. Tilden ran as the Democratic candidate for attorney general of his state, but was defeated. He was again elected in 1854, and in 1858 he was elected to the United States Senate.

He was nominated for President in 1876, but was defeated by Rutherford B. Hayes. He was again elected to the United States Senate in 1878, and served until 1885.

CONGRESSIONAL SUMMARY.

THE SURPLUS RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY BOTH HOUSES.

Its Meaning Defined—The Cutting Case—A Mischief-Making United States Counsel—Grant Memos for the National Museum.

In the Senate yesterday Mr. Sewell, from the committee on the library, reported a joint resolution accepting from William H. Vanderbilt and Julia Dent Grant objects of value and art presented by various foreign governments for the late Clydes S. Grant.

Mr. Beck dissented altogether from Mr. Allison's resolution that the joint resolution, there was any dedication of a hundred millions, or any change of the law which would relate to the treasury.

Mr. Edmunds agreed with Mr. Beck that all the available balance in the treasury should be used to reduce the public debt, and that it should be applied to the public interests.

Mr. Edmunds proposed the suggestion, saying that the greatest service which the Senate could render to the country would be not to pass any bill at all.

Mr. Edmunds explained the status of each of the pending appropriation bills. The fortification bill, he said, had passed both houses, and the Senate had passed the bill.

At noon, on motion of Mr. Edmunds, the Senate went into executive session, and after forty minutes spent the doors were closed.

THE HOUSE. At the opening of the session yesterday Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, offered, and the House unanimously adopted, the following resolution:

Resolved, That a House of Representatives of the United States be and is hereby authorized to do all such things as may be necessary and proper to carry out the purposes of this resolution.

Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, called up the conference report on the surplus joint resolution. He thought that the resolution as reported by the conference was a conservative measure of public interest.

Mr. Edmunds, of New York, called up the bill to declare forfeiture of the New Orleans and Vicksburg land grant. He said that the bill was a conservative measure of public interest.
