MASONRY.
BY W. C. CAPERS.

Three thousand years have rolled away
Upon the tide of Time,
Since Masonry began her march
Of noble deeds, sublime,
And though the angry storms of war
Have swept the earth with fire,
Her temple stands, unscathed, unharmed,
With sunlight on its spire.

Old empires, long the prizes of man,
Have faded from the earth;
Kings, with their thrones, have passed away
Since Masonry had birth.
The sceptered monarch, in his pride,
Has long since met his doom,
And none is left of his domain
But solitude and gloom.

Proud Egypt, with her wondrous arts,
Her mysteries of old,
Has slept beneath the tide of Time,
As swift his current rolled.
And Greece, with all her splendid wealth,
Of genius and of fame,
Scarcely holds amid the nations now,
The honor of a name.

The glittering towers of Troy, to which
The fates of Præm came,
To meet a welcome for their dead
From lips of Spartan dame;
Have long since toppled from their base,
And mouldered to decay;
The glory of that mighty race,
With them have passed away.

Amid the ravages that sweep
The cities of the plain;
Mid crumbling of imperial thrones,
The fall of tower and fame;
Fair Masonry has still survived
The nations' horrid doom,
A beacon 'mid the night of years,
To guide the clouds of gloom.

Through every age, stern bigotry
Has sought to crush her form;
But, unscathed, she bravely met
The tempest and the storm.
The clouds of persecution fled
Before her steady ray,
As shadows of deep night before
The rising orb of day.

From Oriental climes she came,
To bless this Western world,
And rear the temple 'neath the flag
That Liberty unfurled.
Fair Freedom welcomed to our shores,
This maid of heavenly birth;
While thousands of our humble poor,
Now own her generous worth.

Ten thousand widows, in their weals,
Have blessed her advent here,
And many a homeless orphan's heart
Has owned her tender care.
Full many a frail and erring son,
To dissipation given,
Has heard her warning voice, and turned
His wayward thoughts to heaven.

Long may her beauteous temple stand,
To light this darkened age;
To guide the gloom of error's night,
And dry the mourner's tear.
And when the final winds of Time
Shall sweep this restless ball,
Oh, may its glittering spire be
The last on earth to fall.

The Mormons have done something worth talking about. They have founded the largest city west of the Mississippi and east of Sacramento, a city with a resident population of 43,000, the largest church building on this continent, the costliest residences, the best graded streets, the loveliest fruit and flower yards and gardens, the most orderly people, the best disciplined churches and the finest watered city anywhere.

A Norfolk, Va., editor received last week a present of a quart of strawberries, and it required only fifteen to make it. Each berry measured over 3 1/2 inches in circumference.
