HAIR DYE, PERFUMERY, PASSMANN'S PATENT IRON TIES,

FOR COTTON BALES.

J. MOUTON & CO. AGENTS, NATCHITOCHESES, LA.

J. MOUTON & CO. AGENTS, NATCHITOCHESES, LA.

UNITED STATES PATENT, APRIL, 1865.

The above centre cut represents three of the Button and three of the Buckle Ties as they appear on a bale of cotton. The hoop for the button is punched with two holes at one end and fifteen at the other. The hole on top--and the button inserted. One button will answer, but it is better to insert two. With the Buckle Tie, one end of the hoops is fastened to one section of the Buckle, the other end is inserted in the other section, and simply shoved through it under the other end as long as there is any slack. A bit on the buckle holds it securely to its place. The hoops are painted to prevent rust and cut in lengths of 10, 10 1/2 and 11 feet. Ten feet are most generally used, but 10 1/2 and 11 are sometimes required for large bales. The buckles are fastened to the hoops: the buttons will be put in small boxes.

The Weight is About 10 Pounds to the Bale of Cotton.

My Button Tie was the first offered for sale to any extent in the South, and has been used by thousands of Planters with universal approval. I have made a valuable improvement in the shape of the button since it was first introduced; and have also procured a patent for a BUCKLE TIE which for simplicity of fastening and expedition of adjustment to bales of any or unequal sizes, and for security of holding is, I think, superior to any offered to the public.

The advantages of iron over rope for baling cotton are now universally acknowledged. I hold the bale in a much smaller compass; is applied and fastened with as much facility, both in the country pressing and the sea ports; lessens immensely the risk from fire; is strong, and its strength is not impaired by time and exposure as is that of rope. This last advantage has been strikingly manifested during the war. Thousands of bales of Cotton have been lost by rotting and breaking of Rope which could have been preserved if iron hoops had been used. In addition to this, it can be furnished cheaper than Rope. The deterioration of labor in the hemp growing states has reduced the supply of hemp to such an extent as to cause prices to rule unreasonably high; indeed a sufficiency for baling a moderate cotton crop, cannot be relied on at any price. I have arranged for the importation of a large quantity of the best English Iron, and have made arrangements with Messrs. Chambers & Latting for the sale and delivery of my Ties.

SHIP REFUGE, NEW ORLEANS, July 7th, 1859.

H. Fassmann, Esq., Orleans Cotton Press, Sir:--In January last I received from your Press 1200 bales of cotton, of which about 1000 were compressed and bound with your new "Iron Tie." I can safely affirm that the cotton so bound was received in better order than it generally comes from the Presses, and that it stowed better, and enabled the ship to carry more than on any previous voyage. The cotton when discharged from the ship in Liverpool was in better order than the rope bound cotton; it is highly preferable for a ground tier, as the damp arising from the ballast has no effect upon it, for it is well known by practical men that dampness will rot the rope-bound. I can confidently recommend your "Iron Tie," as I took this lot for an experiment and carefully watched it both in loading and discharging. I am Sir, Yours Respectfully,

JOHN HOWARD, Master. Parties ordering or desiring further information on the subject will please address,
