MISCELLANEOUS.
Wolfe's Genuine Cognac Brandy,
Wolfe's Genuine Port Wine,
Wolfe's Genuine Madeira Wine,
Wolfe's Genuine Sherry Wine.
I am now supplying the trade with pure Cognac Brandy, in bottles, both for medical and private use. The immense success that has crowned my efforts to place a pure Gin within the reach of all, under the name of Aromatic Schiedam Schnapps, and to drive out of the market the pernicious compounds sold as Gin throughout the country, led many leading druggists, apothecaries and medical men, for some years past, to solicit me to pursue the same course in regard to the article of Brandy. I should have complied with these requests from all quarters long ago, but was deterred from it by the fact, that owing to the exorbitant prices of Brandy in France, consequent upon the shortness of the grape crop for some years, there was no chance of my being able to import the choicest Brandy, bottle it and sell it at moderate prices. Fortunately for me, the grape crop for the last and previous year (and the prospect for this) was abundant, and prices of Brandy have fallen to the standard of ten years ago. The duty on Brandy is seventy per cent lower, and I have now made arrangements with four Brandy exporters in France, of the highest repute, and am regularly receiving consignments of the best Cognac Brandy, which I am bottling and selling as Wolfe's Genuine Cognac Brandy. I guarantee with my seal, labels and certificates, the Brandy so bottled by me, as the pure, unadulterated article, and it will be found, when used as a medicine, a beverage, or a cordial, healthful and invigorating. It has been a matter of universal complaint, that a bottle of pure, unadulterated French Brandy, was very difficult to obtain, and the purchaser, nine times in ten, was deceived with a vile manufactured imitation. Of all descriptions of ardent spirits, Brandy, from its high price, has been the one article that mixers and sellers have turned their attention to, and millions of gallons of the so-called French Brandy have been scattered annually through the land, and have been the primary cause of murders, cruelties and crimes, and have sent thousands to an early grave, self-destructors, from delirium tremens, mania-a-potu and horrors, names unknown, until unprincipled men began to make madening compounds and sell it as the pure French Brandy.
The virtues of pure French Brandy need not be told by me. They are known throughout the world as a medicine or mild stimulant. It is, as the French nation poetically call it "Eau de la vie," the water of life. But this applies to it only when pure and unadulterated. Manufactured with the fearful ingredients that make a good imitation, it becomes a death drink to innocent tens of thousands of our race. To remedy a fearful evil, I have commenced importing Brandy, bottling it, and selling it as "Wolfe's Genuine Cognac Brandy." I am daily receiving orders from the druggists and apothecaries in all parts of the Union, to sell it for medicinal purposes.

BUGGING AN OVERSEER—OVER THE LEFT.
We shall tell the tale "as 'twas told to us," by a jolly steamboat captain, at the theater, a night or two since, substituting fictitious for real names:
Down the Alabama river, in a county which we shall name Derby, lives an enormously rich and very clever young planter, who sometimes takes a grand frolic, and who, when whisky is in his head, cuts up tricks and capers the most fantastical that ever generated by heated brain. His family, when he goes off, invariably send with him a trusty "mus-tee" servant, a stout fellow, who cares religiously for his master's welfare, at times when he can't look after it himself.
A week or two since, our eccentric, whom we shall call Hudgins, attended by Cub, his servant, started on a general frolic, being equipped with two bottles of the "royal blood of France." The twain traveled south-west-wardly, about fifty miles, into the county of Cumberland, (we'll say,) where Hudgins was unknown. Joggling along, they came to an overseer sitting on the top rail of the fence of a cotton field, overseer-fashion, watching his hands, at some sort of work within. To stop, have a chat, and treat the overseer, was the first impulse of the eccentric; and speedily all hands were growing merry over the superior Bourbon, in a corner of the fence. But, in an evil moment, an unhappy idea struck Hudgins. He would quiz the overseer by making him believe that he, the eccentric, was "one of Brown's men," and Cub, a boy that he had stolen—so he would! And he did, in the most confidential manner, and with many injunctions of secrecy, relate such a tale to the overseer, urging him to "join."
The astounded overseer stood a second or two, with distended eyes and mouth, pale, silent, statuesque.
At length he shouted to one of his "Drivers" in the field: "Ned, come here, and bring Big Peter and Jake."
In a trice, three stout negroes jumped over the fence. Said the overseer: "Harness that d—d white Abolitionist!"
And immediately upon giving the order, himself took hold of Cub and quickly had his hands tied behind his back, the boy knowing his place too well to resist.
Hudgins at first was taken by surprise, and his laugh began to grow wonderfully weak, as the negroes seized him.
"Hold on, stand off, you d—d fools," he said; "I was only 'bugging' that squash-head there!"
"Tie him!" thundered the overseer; and they did tie him, and that in double quick time.
The overseer drew a long breath, as he surveyed his captives. Eccentric wished to explain the little joke, and told who he was and what his object was, just to have some fun. The overseer didn't believe one word of it—not he.
"Oh, d—n you," said he to Hudgins, now a very pale man, "it's reasonable to s'pose you'd deny it when I wouldn't go in with you, you cussed white-livered scoundrel, that wants to make a free nigger of yourself! But right off you go to Cumberland county jail. I've been watching just twenty-seven days for a man like you; and, for fear the town-folks 'll let you slip, I'll make the niggers hit you a hundred before we start!"
And right then and there, that trusty guardian of another's property, strung up Eccentric and made one of the negroes "draw him" one hundred times, with a keen-cracking driver's whip. The yells, groans and protestations of Eccentric were awful to hear. He swore he was "sound on the goose."
"Yes!" said the overseer; "but you'll be a heap sounder when we've done with you, down yonder at town!"
Mules were brought, and the horses of Hudgins and Cub led away, and themselves mounted on the hybrids; and forthwith the resolute overseer trotted them (ten miles) to town, securely bound and watched by himself and a trusty negro, each armed with a double-barrel. Arrived, the Eccentric was safely jailed, amid the execrations of the populace, who wanted to tear him to pieces.
A few hours only had elapsed when Hudgins, now duly sobered and ashamed, contrived to communicate with a friend in town, who knew his family; and, on a full explanation of the affair, (and his doing the overseer the justice to say that he had only done his duty,) he and Cub were released from imprisonment.
The overseer, on hearing the denouncement, very foolishly ran off, fearing vengeance; but will no doubt return as soon as he gets over his fright and learns how his conduct is viewed.
MORAL.—Never trifle with so grave a subject as tampering with slaves. A rope, instead of the whip, might be the reward of the joker.—[Montgomery Mail.

THE WIFE.—It needs no guilt to break a husband's heart. The absence of content, the nutterings of spleen, the untidy dress and cheerless home, the forbidding scowl and deserted hearth—these, and other nameless neglects, without a crime among them, have harrowed to the quick the heart's core of many a man, and planted there, beyond the reach of cure, the germ of dark despair. O, may woman, before that sight arrives, dwell on the recollections of her youth, and cherishing the dear idea of that tuneful time, awaken and keep alive the promise she so kindly gave. And though she may be the injured, not the injuring one—the forgotten and not the forgetting wife—a happy allusion to the hour of peaceful love—a kindly welcome to a comfortable home—a smile of love to banish hostile words—a kiss of peace to pardon all the past, and the hardest heart that ever locked itself within the breast of selfish man, will soften to her charms, and bid her live, as she had hoped, her years of matchless bliss—loved, loving and content—the source of comfort and the spring of joy.—[Chambers' Journal.

THE HAIR.—As to men, we say, when the hair begins to fall out, the best plan is to have it cut short, give it a good brushing with a moderately hard brush while the hair is dry; then wash it well with warm soap-suds, and rub into the scalp, about the roots of the hair, a little bay rum brandy, or camphor-water. Do these things twice a month—the brushing of the scalp may be profitably done twice a week. Damp the hair with water every time the toilet is made. Nothing ever made is better for the hair than pure soft water, if the scalp is kept clean in the way we have named. The use of oils, pomatums, or grease of any kind, is ruinous to the hair of man or woman. We consider it a filthy practice, almost universal though it be, for it gathers dust and dirt, and soils whatever it touches. Nothing but pure soft water should ever be allowed on the heads of our children. It is a different practice that robs our women of their most beautiful ornament long before their prime. The hair of our daughters should be kept within two inches until the twelfth year.
