

From the N. O. Courier.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

In our columns, this morning, will be found the resolutions adopted by the Democratic Committee of the Parish of Orleans, relative to the Heron-Gray-Deloney scheme for disintegrating our forces, and introducing into our councils, those whose highest desire is to defeat the most cherished objects and aims of our political organization.

It was due to the true and tried Democracy of Louisiana, that this treacherous scheme should be unmasked and held up to public reprobation; and it is therefore gratifying, that those who have been placed in charge of the rights and interests of the Democracy of Orleans, have spoken out so plainly with reference to a contemptible plot, by which it was designed to convert an honest and respectable organization, which has always commanded the respect of its opponents, into a pie-bald, no-party-speculating combination, cemented by no other tie than the strife for place, and the division of the spoils of office.

Every sincere Democrat should regard it as his first duty to attend at the time and places indicated by the Committee for the election of our delegation to the State Convention, and to scrutinize closely the claims of all who are not known as reliable Democrats. We must send, to meet our country brethren in council on this important occasion, an honest, old-fashioned Democratic delegation, who will do their utmost to uphold party discipline and integrity, and not lend themselves to the promotion of the pitiful intrigues of those whose conduct clearly shows the attainment of place and profit, is the only motive which governs their political action.

The following are the Resolutions alluded to above by the Courier. We can assert, as the organ of the Democracy of Iberville, that they emphatically express the sentiments of the Democrats of this parish:

Resolved, That the recent overtures issued by Messrs. Deloney, Gray, Heron and others, to the New Nothing and other opponents of the Democratic party, to come into the Democratic primary meetings on equal terms with Democrats, in the selection of Delegates to the Democratic State Convention at Baton Rouge, is a proposition for the dissolution of the Democratic party, which we condemn as a faithless and presumptuous.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this committee, no man can rightfully vote in the approaching Democratic meeting, who has not heretofore subscribed to its principles and voted for its candidates regularly nominated according to the usages of the party; and that to receive adhering members of an adverse or ganization as free to vote in our meetings, is to put the party, its principles, and its candidates, at the mercy of its enemies.

Resolved, That the effect of not the design in the city of New Orleans, would be to throw the control of the election of delegates to the Democratic State Convention into the hands of that organization of their adversaries which has so long ruled the city by secret discipline and intimidation—a result not to be desired by any Democrat who has not disappointments to avenge by the destruction of the party.

Resolved, That this committee earnestly recommend to the Democracy of this parish to be vigilant at the polls on the day fixed for the selection of delegates to the Baton Rouge Convention, and to scrutinize carefully the claims of all who may present themselves to vote, and who are not known as members of our organization.

DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.—A man named Thos. Faulkner, of Halifax county, Virginia, who, while intoxicated, had a habit of amusing himself by frightening his wife, carried his joke a little too far a few days since. The Halifax Echo says:

On this, as on previous occasions, he declared his intention of hanging himself. This he had done before, and had tied the rope to the joist and then around his neck, always taking care, however, to have it long enough, so that in stepping from the chair, box or whatever he used on this occasion to elevate himself, he would easily reach the floor. On this occasion he tied the rope too short, and when he stepped from his elevation, instead of reaching the floor, broke his neck.

Love a Wife and Care for a Wife.

I wish every husband would copy into his memorandum book this sentence, from a recently published work:

"Woman must be constituted very differently from men. A word said, a line written, and we are happy; omitted, our hearts ache, as if for a great misfortune. Men cannot feel it, or guess at it; if they did, they would be the most careless of them would be slow to wound us so."

The grave hides many a heart which has been stung to death, because one who might, after all, have loved it after a certain fashion, was dead, dumb, and blind to the truth in the sentence we have just quoted, or, if not, was at least restive and impatient with regard to it. Many men, marrying late in life, being accustomed only to take care of themselves, and that in the most erratic, rambling, exciting fashion, eating, drinking, sleeping and walking whenever their fancy or good cheer and amusement, questionable or unquestionable, prompted, come at last, when they get tired of this, with their selfish habits fixed as fast to matrimony. For a while it is novelty. Shortly, it is strange as inkstone, this always being obliged to consider the comfort and happiness of another. To have something always hanging on the arm, which used to swing free, or at most, but twice a cane. Then they think their duty done if they provide food and clothing, and refrain (possibly) from harsh words. Ah, is it? Listen to that sigh as you close the door. Watch the gradual fading of the eye, the paling of the cheek, not from age—she should be yet young—but that gnawing pain at the heart, born of the settled conviction that the great craving of her soul, as far as you are concerned, must go forever unsatisfied—God help such wives, and keep them from attempting to shake their soul's thirst at poisoned fountains.

Think you, her husband, how little a kind word, a smile, a caress to you, how much to her. If you call these things "childish," and beneath your notice, then you should never have married. There are men who should remain forever single. You are one. You have no right to require of a woman her health, strength, time and devotion, to mock her with this slow way unsatisfying return. A new coat, a dress, a shawl, a watch, anything, everything but what a true woman's heart must crave, sympathy, appreciation, love. She may be rich in everything else, but if she is poor in these, and is a good woman, she had better die.

There are hard, unloving, cold, men-spirited women, (rare exceptions,) who neither require love nor know how to give it. We are not speaking of these. That big-hearted loving, noble men have occasionally been thrown away upon such, does not disprove what we have been saying. But even a man thus situated has greatly the advantage of a woman in a similar position, because, over the needle, a woman may think herself into an insane asylum, while the active out door toil of business life is at least a sometime reprieve to them.

Do you ask me, "are there no happy wives?" God be praised, yes, and glorious, lovable husbands, too, who know how to treat a woman, and would have neither fool nor drudge. Almost every wife would be a good and happy wife were she only loved enough. Let husbands, present and prospective, think of this.

CURIOUS FACTS.—Bees are geneticians. The cells are so constructed that, with the least quantity of material, to have the largest-sized spaces and the least possible interstice. The mole is a meteorologist. The bird called the nine-killer is an arithmetician; also the crow, the wild turkey and some other birds. The torpedo, the ray and the electric eel are electricians. The nautilus is a navigator. He raises and lowers his sails, and weighs anchor, and performs nautical feats. Whole tribes of birds are musicians. The beaver is an architect, builder and wood cutter. He cuts down trees and erects houses and dams. The narwhal is a civil engineer. He does not only build houses, but constructs aqueducts and drains to keep them dry. Wasps are paper manufacturers. Caterpillars are silk spinners. The squirrel is a ferryman. With a chip or a piece of bark for a boat, and his tail for a sail, he crosses a stream. Dogs, wolves, jackals, and many others, are hunters. The black bear and heron are fishermen. The ants are day laborers. The monkey is a rope-dancer.

INCREASED VALUE OF SLAVE PROPERTY.—A phenomenon well calculated to confound the Abolitionists is now presented throughout the slaveholding States.—Just at that period when the anti-slavery doctrines seem to have reached their most complete development, so that one more advance step must prove decisive in its consequences, and when, if ever, we might reasonably expect to discover some promise of realizing the blessed fruits so long promised by agitators—what is the actual state of things?—Does the institution of slavery betray signs of dissolution? Are the slaveholders apprehensive of a depreciation of their property, and so, seized with panic, willing to sell out at any price? Exactly the reverse is true in every respect. Everywhere in the slaveholding States, South and Southwest, an extraordinary advance in the price of slaves has taken place since the commencement of the present year. In some instances, the prices realized would have been deemed fabulous a short time ago, and as insuring the ruin of the purchaser

"WORMS" ON THE FACE.—An English

editor informs a correspondent who signs himself "A Troubled One," as follows:

Little black specks are occasionally observed upon the nose and forehead of some individuals. These specks, when they exist in any number, are a cause of much unsightliness. They are minute corks, if we may use the term, of coagulated lymph, which close the orifices of the pores or inhaled vessels of the skin. On the skin, immediately adjacent to them, but being pressed with the finger nails, these bits of coagulated lymph will come from it in a vermicular form. They are vulgarly called "flesh-worms," many persons fancying them to be living creatures. These may be got rid of, and prevented from returning, by washing with tepid water; by proper friction with a towel, and by the application of a little cold cream. The longer these piles are permitted to remain in the skin the more firmly they become fixed; and after a time, when they lose their moisture, they are converted into little bone spines, as dense as bristles, and having much of that character.

They should be thoroughly but cautiously squeezed, says another author, and on retiring to rest, a paste should be applied to the part affected. Recipe for the paste: Take one ounce of powdered bitter almonds, and once ounce of barley flour, and enough honey to make the above ingredients into paste. There is another and still more simple remedy with which you may prefer. Bathe the spots several times a day with lukewarm water and a sponge—rubbing the sponge over with a piece of yellow soap.—There is a healing power in soap distilled from its cleansing properties.

Paris fashions say the shade of bonnets is at length decided. The front is long, round, advancing over the forehead, and very much thrown back at the ears. The curtain is very narrow. In general they are very much trimmed—indeed, overcharged with trimmings.

So great is the pressure to obtain divorces in England that the present organization of the Courts is inadequate for the discharge of the duties required, and it is stated that ere long additional judges will have to be appointed. There are now six hundred divorce cases waiting adjudication.

A church is about to be erected by the Russian Government near Inkerman, the funds of which are supplied by the sale of cannon balls which have been picked up at Inkerman and Sebastopol.

One of the Utica papers states that the girls of that city have brought out a new fashion—flannel neck ties—narrow strips of flannel, worn tight around the throat. The gentlemen follow suit. White is the prevailing color, although a few are indulging in red and yellow.

If you must find fault, do it in private if possible, and some time after the offence rather than at the time; the embarras are less inclined to resist when they are blamed without witness.
