

The Champion's Belt.—The presentation ceremonies of the Champion's Belt to Heenan and Sayers took place at the Albion Palace, London. The entertainment consisted of bigger songs and dances. Between the acts the men were brought in and the ceremony of presentation was performed. The men, who were in evening dress, then stripped off their coats, buckled on their belts, and walked round the ring, arm in arm. The performance, as it was called, is to be repeated twice a day this week.

How a Man's Boots Saved His Life.—Now that the name of Varnhagen Von Ense is brought so prominently forward, through the Humboldt correspondence, it may not be amiss to quote from one of his works a story about a pair of boots, which, by their opportune disappearance, did their owner better service than did ever boots before by the promptest attendance. It occurs in the author's account of Crab Schlaberndorf, a writer of no little power, who lived in a Paris garret, was miserly in trifles, and lavishly generous in great things; who was primarily a hearty friend of liberty, and secondarily a persevering, disinterested patriot. A friend of the Girondins, he speedily found his way to prison under the sway of Robespierre.

One morning the deathcart came for its usual number of daily victims, and Schlaberndorf's name was called out.—He immediately, with the greatest coolness and good humor, prepared for departure. Presence of mind in some shape, a grand stoicism or more indifference, were common to those terrible times. And Schlaberndorf was not the man to make an ungraceful departure when the unavoidable Must of fate stood sternly before him. He was soon dressed, only his boots were missing.—He sought, and sought, and sought, and the judge sought with him, in this corner and that; but they were not to be found. "Well," said Schlaberndorf, sharply, "this is too bad; to be guillotined without my boots will never do.—Hark, ye, my good friend," continued he, with simple good humor, to the jailer, "take me to-morrow; one day makes no difference; it is the man they want, not Tuesday or Wednesday." The jailer agreed. The wagon, full enough without that one head, went off to its destination. Schlaberndorf remained in prison. Next morning, at the usual hour, the vehicle returned; and the victim who had so strangely escaped on the previous day, was ready, boots and all, waiting the word of command. But, behold! his name was not heard that day, nor the third day, nor the fourth, and not at all. There was no mystery in the matter. It was naturally supposed he had fallen with the other victims named for the original day. In the multitude of sufferers no one could curiously inquire for an individual. For the days that followed there were enough of victims without him, and so he remained in prison till the fall of Robespierre, when, with so many others, he recovered his liberty. He owed this miraculous escape—not the least strange in the strange history of the Revolution—partly to the kindness of the jailer—partly and mainly to his good temper.—He was a universal favorite in the jail.

The Effects of Drink.—John D. Deeres, writing to the Indianapolis Journal, says: Twenty years ago I was a looker-on at the doings of Congress. The two men who attracted the most attention were William Cost Johnson, of Maryland, and Thomas F. Marshall, of Kentucky. They were the most brilliant orators—the "observed of all observers." Mr. Johnson died a few years ago, a pauper and an outcast, unnoticed and unlamented. The papers a few days ago informed us that Marshall is an inmate of a hospital at Buffalo, diseased and miserable, and about to die! Intemperance, of course, is the cause of all this.

A Wife's Duty.—With regard to proper companions and acquaintances, the wife should always be governed by the husband. What so disrespectful, nay, insulting, as to see a wife upon friendly terms with her husband's enemy? What so wounding to his feelings as to hear her lauding any one who has wronged him? His prejudices, even, ought to be respected by her. Although she may think that he has an unjust sentiment or antipathy toward one of her friends, yet she is bound to drop the friendship, and if required, the acquaintance of such a person. A sense of delicacy will prompt a faithful and devoted wife to this course of conduct. If she does not do so promptly and cheerfully, her heart is not in the right place, and she is not to be trusted. To pretend to do so, and yet not to do it is very bad indeed. But to meet privately, and seek conversation with persons not in favor with her husband, although it may be with innocent intentions, is insulting to the husband she professes to love, and is sufficient of itself to brand her in the eyes of all virtuous and honorable persons with inadmissible disgrace.

In the Gulf of Manar (Ceylon) turtles are frequently found of such a size as to measure six feet in length.—Sir Emerson Tennent states that, in riding along the shore one day, he saw a man in charge of some sheep, who was rearing under the shade of a turtle shell which he had erected on sticks to shield him from the rays of the sun.

How he Had Him. A man named Wells kept a tavern in one of our Western villages; but though his house had a very good name, it was more than he had himself; for it was surmised by his neighbors that he used a great deal of fodder, corn, etc., for which he never gave an equivalent, though it had never been clearly proved upon him.

Early one morning, he was met by an acquaintance named Wilkes, as he was driving before him a heifer, which he had most probably borrowed from some farmer.

"Hallo, Wells, where did you get that heifer?" cried Wilkes.

"Bought her of Col. Stevens," was the unhesitating reply.

"What did you pay for her?"

"Twenty dollars," said Wells, as he hurried on.

About an hour afterwards, as Wilkes was sitting in Wells's bar-room, Col. Stevens entered. After a few minutes' conversation, Wilkes said:

"A fine animal that you sold Wells?"

"I don't understand you; I never sold Wells any animal."

"Didn't you? Why, I met him this morning with a heifer, which he said he bought of you for twenty dollars."

"He did, eh? Well, since he said so, he has got to pay me for her," said Stevens.

Wells entered soon after, and Stevens, stepping up to him, said:

"Come, Wells, I'll trouble you for the money for that heifer; it was a cash bargain, you know."

"I never bought any heifer from you."

"Don't you remember you bought one of me for twenty dollars? Here's Wilkes can prove it."

"No, he can't," said Wells.

"You told me so this morning," said Wilkes.

A curious expression passed over Wells's face; he felt himself cornered; he had either to tell where he had got the animal, or lose twenty dollars; and thinking it not safe for him to do the first, he pulled out his wallet, counted out the money, and handed it to Stevens, saying:

"So I did—so I did. I had forgotten all about it; you must excuse me."

HORRIBLE.—A man with an umbrella in his hand called at Senator Sumner's lodgings on Monday and inquired if Mr. Sumner was in. Senator Wilson was immediately sent for, who, upon reaching the spot, at once asked the man standing in the entry what he wanted of Mr. Sumner. The man replied he had a little bill against him for tapping a pair of boots. Wilson examined the bill, said it was correct, and Sumner paid it, whereupon the worthy cobbler spread his umbrella and left. Burlington soon arrived, but found no blood upon the floor.

P. S.—Another man called the next day! But no danger is apprehended. Burlington is there!—Boston Post.

ANTICIPATING EVILS.—Enjoy the present, whatsoever it may be, and be not solicitous for the future; for if you take your foot from the present standing, and thrust it forward towards to-morrow's event, you are in a reckless condition; it is like refusing to quench your present thirst by fearing you should want drink the next day. If it be well to-day, it is madness to make the present miserable by fearing it may be ill to-morrow; when your belly is full of to-day's dinner, to fear you should want the next day's supper; for it may be you shall not, then to what purpose was this day's affliction? But if to-morrow you shall want, your sorrow will come time enough though you do not hasten it; let your trouble tarry till its day comes.—But if it chance to be ill to-day, do not increase it by the cares of to-morrow.—Enjoy the blessings of this day if God send them, and the evils of it bear patiently and sweetly; for this day only is ours—we are dead to yesterday, and we are not yet born to the morrow. He, therefore, that enjoys the present, if it be good, enjoy as much as possible; and if only that day's trouble leans upon him, it is singular and finite. "Sufficient to the day," said Christ, "is the evil thereof," sufficient, but not intolerable. But if we look abroad and bring into one day's thoughts the evil of many, certain and uncertain, what will be and what will never be our load will be as intolerable as it is unreasonable.—EMY TAYLOR.

MUST "VOTE THE TICKET."—Down in Egypt, Illinois, Deacon Smith was one day called upon to marry an old couple not less than sixty years of age. A crowd assembled at the old log school-house to see the happy couple joined together. The deacon and the marital candidates rose. "Mr. Jones," said the deacon, "and Sarah Long, stand up. Do you, Mr. Jones, take Sarah Long, whom you hold by the right hand, to be your lawful and wedded wife so long as you both shall live?" "No, sir, Deacon Smith," said Jones; "so long as we both shall agree." This matter being understood, the deacon proceeded:—"Do you, Sarah Long, take Mr. Jones whom you hold by the right hand, to be your lawful and wedded husband so long as you both shall live?" "No, sir, Deacon Smith; so long as Mr. Jones shall vote the Democratic ticket," replied the patriotic female. The happy couple were joined together, and went on their way rejoicing.

It is said that a wild child has been seen in the woods near the line of Howard and Carroll counties, Ind. A number of persons are looking out for the child, but it has not yet been captured.

CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.—Bathe the parts affected with water, in which potatoes have been boiled, as hot as can be borne just before going to bed; by the next morning the pain will be much relieved, if not removed. One application of this simple remedy has cured the most obstinate rheumatic pains. Family Herald.

RARE CHANCES FOR INVESTMENT.—Any persons having a cash capital of from $2000 to $10,000 can learn of three excellent opportunities, of more than ordinary prospects, by addressing a line to this office immediately. New York Weekly.

A generous man is more liable to imposition from the world, than the illiberal. They possess "that sweet pliability of temper," which ever falls a prey to the art, knavery and villain of man.

DIED.—On the 21st inst. BARTHELEMY, son of Barthelme and Adele Perron, aged three years.

AYER'S Ague Cure,

FOR THE SPEEDY CURE OF Intermittent Fever, or Fever and Ague, Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fevers, indeed for the whole class of diseases originating in biliary derangement, caused by the Malaria of miasmatic countries. No one remedy is louder called for by the necessities of the American people than a sure and safe cure for Fever and Ague. Such we are now enabled to offer, with a perfect certainty that it will eradicate the disease, and with assurance, founded on proof, that no harm can arise from its use in any quantity.

That which protects from or prevents this disorder must be of immense service in the communities where it prevails. Prevention is better than cure, for the patient escapes the risk which he must run in violent attacks of this baleful distemper. This "Cure" expels the miasmatic poison of Fever and Ague from the system and prevents the development of the disease, if taken on the first approach of its preliminary symptoms. It is not only the best remedy ever yet discovered for this class of complaints, but also the cheapest. The large quantity we supply for a dollar brings it within the reach of every body; and in bilious districts, where FEVER AND AGUE prevails, every body should have it and use it freely both for cure and protection. It is hoped this price will place it within the reach of all—the poor as well as the rich. A great superiority of this remedy over any other ever discovered for the speedy and certain cure of Intermittents is, that it contains no Quinine or mineral, consequently it produces no quinsism or other injurious effects whatever upon the constitution. Those cured by it are left as healthy as if they had never had the disease.

Fever and Ague is not alone the consequence of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of disorders arise from its irritation, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spleen, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Yersyasis, and Derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the intermittent type, or become periodical. This "Cure" expels the poison from the blood, and consequently cures them all like. It is an invaluable protection to immigrants and persons travelling or temporarily residing in the malarious districts. It taken occasionally or daily while exposed to the infection, that will be excreted from the system, and cannot accumulate in sufficient quantity to ripen into disease. Hence it is even more valuable for protection than cure, and few will ever suffer from Intermittents, if they avail themselves of the protection this remedy affords.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC, are so composed that disease within the range of their action can rarely withstand or evade them. Their penetrating properties search, and cleanse, and invigorate every portion of the human organism, correcting its diseased action, and restoring its healthy vitality. As a consequence of their properties, the invalid who is bowed down with pain or physical debility is astonished to find his health or energy restored by a remedy at once so simple and inviting.

Not only do they cure the every-day complaints of every body, but also many formidable and dangerous diseases. The agent below named is pleased to furnish gratis my American Almanac, containing certificates of their cures and directions for their use in the following complaints: Costiveness, Headache, Stomach arising from disordered Functions of the Bowels, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, Jaundice, and other kindred complaints, arising from a low state of the body or obstruction of its functions. They are an excellent alternative for the renovation of the blood and the restoration of tone and strength to the system debilitated by disease.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease.

So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous are the cases of its cures, that almost every section of country abounds in persons publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use. When once tried, its superiority over every other medicine of its kind is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs that are incident to our climate. While many inferior remedies thrust upon the community have failed and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, and its benefits on the afflicted they can never forget, and pronounced cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten.
