MISCELLANEOUS.

THE GEM.

THE undersigned would respectfully announce to their friends and the public generally, that they have just purchased the Coffee-house and fixtures formerly kept by Philip Heelin opposite the steamboat landing, and having been to considerable expense in papering all the rooms so that they are neat and pleasant, and having the best brands of Liquors and Wines to be had in New Orleans, and further, pledging ourselves to spare no pains to please all who call to see us, we shall expect a small share of the public patronage.

GEORGE TURIN,
CHARLES SEIPPLE,
TURIN & SEIPPLE,
Plaquemine, May 19, 1860.

The Rainbow.

SOLOMON FREY presents his compliments to his friends and the public, and respectfully informs them that he has opened in the building on Main street, formerly occupied by Stockley & Delavallade, a Coffee House and Lager Beer Saloon, where good liquors and good beer can be had, and where he hopes his old patrons and the public will call and see him.

Rhine Wine.

The undersigned would say to his friends and to the public generally that he has just received a new supply of White and Red Rhine Wine, of a quality much superior to that received last year. The public may rely upon this wine being the true and actual juice of the grape, as it came from the vineyards on the Rhine. Call and try it.

Magnolia Coffee-House.
Plaquemine Street.

THE undersigned having opened the above establishment on Plaquemine street, opposite the Market house, trusts that his friends and the public will continue the patronage they have so liberally bestowed heretofore. He will always keep on hand the Best of Liquors, and feels assured that he will always be able to satisfy the tastes and judgment of his customers.

Coffee House, Boarding House, Livery Stable.

MAURICE MARIN informs his friends and the public generally, that he has opened his new house, on Bank street, since the 4th of July, where he is finely situated to accommodate Boarders and transient visitors, on reasonable terms. His table shall always be furnished with the best of the market affords.

His COFFEE HOUSE will always be supplied with the best of Liquors, Wine, Lager Beer, &c.

He has a BIARD TABLE kept in a separate room from the Bar, handsomely fitted up. His STABLE cannot be surpassed; and all animals entrusted to his care shall meet with the most diligent attention.

He confidently hopes that his old friends will not forget him. Planters and others from the country will have their horses and luges properly taken care of at all times, and as good a dinner and wine as the town affords, for themselves and friends.

Court House Exchange.
David Levy.

HAVING purchased out the interest of his partner, will continue to carry on the business at the old stand, where he will always have Good Liquors and Fine Lager.

Thankful for past patronage, he trusts to receive a continuance of the same from his old friends and the public in general.

The Present Distractions.

The great leader of the Northern hosts which are now mustering and advancing to seize upon the strongholds of the Government, for our destruction, proclaims that the battle of the sections has already been fought, the victory won, and that the inauguration of Lincoln, on the 4th of March, 1861, seals the doom of the vital institutions of the South. It has been stated that this Seward was thrust aside in the nominating Convention, because he was disposed to temporize with the South, and lacked the necessary nerve to carry through measures of Southern judgment. Lincoln was believed to possess the decision of character and earnestness required, and to be fully equal to any emergency originating in Southern attempts at resistance. Nor will any one who has examined the lineaments of his countenance, as depicted in the engravings of his admirers, doubt his being a proper tool to accomplish the purposes of our enemies. The bona fide ideal of a relentless, dogged, free-soil border ruffian—a Southerner by birth, and a Northerner in feeling and association—a fanatic in philanthropy, and a vulgar nobocrat and a Southern hater in political opinions—he is the very man for the occasion. If ever in possession of the executive powers of the Government, he will neither turn back from his work, nor do it by halves—fit chieftain of those who selected him—the author who first gave expression to the doctrine of the "irrepressible conflict," now chosen to be the finisher of that faith.

In the face of the grave difficulties before us, it is discouraging to observe the petty policies and insignificant motives which absorb a portion of the people of the South. It is distressing to see men who should appreciate the dangers by which we are encompassed, and who should be united in seeking safety, wrangling over the dead ideas of the past. Democrat and anti-Democrat, with the small prejudices and jealousies of a bygone time—party success, and party spoils and offices,—which will never be reached—consume the mortal energies, and quench the flow of patriotism in the Southern heart, in many places. It is a melancholy sight; and there are men who, perceiving the impending ruin, and the miserable divisions and distractions prevalent in sections of the South, and paralyzing to any thing like prompt and efficient resistance, despair of the South and of her deliverance. To us, such persons appear unphilosophic, and lacking in experience. Men must be taken as they are. Not all are wise—not all are pure, or patriotic. The small games of personal advantage and the little interests that concern each in his narrow circle, are too apt to fill the thoughts of all, to the displacement of nobler objects and higher aims. This is the dark side of the picture, but it is one that is very commonly seen. It stands forth in a strong light now. But we are of those who believe that there are better traits which may be developed by events, and that without difficulty. The dangers of our position are sufficiently manifest, and an adequate proportion of the people of the South are alive to their existence to leave the whole lump, and bring us into measures of resistance and security against the North. But there must be something to start the leavening. Some definite and decided event must occur to excite the common sympathy and develop the Southern feeling. When that occurs, the better parts of our human nature will appear. The people of the South are brave and generous people, and their cause is one and the same. Whenever a definite cause is made, it will be espoused as common. It was so in 1812, when a timid and shrinking spirit brooded over the land, and many were discouraged at the low tone of the country. It was so in 1776, when there was only a principle at stake, the most trifling pecuniary interest involved, and when war was imminent, and the odds of battle fearful. As faint heart never won fair lady, so the croakers of the present crisis are not the men to succeed in inaugurating our deliverance. We believe that the spirit of the Southern people is on the rise, and that, with a little discreet and statesmanlike courage the day of our redemption is at hand. "The darkest hour before the dawn."—Charl. Mercury.

Ten Years.
The changes which have taken place between 1850 and 1860 in the economic condition of our country are very great. In that period the gold mines have been discovered in California and Australia. In 1840 we had $4 paper circulation to $1 of specie; in 1850, only 3 to 1; in 1860, less than 2 to 1. In 1849, the product of precious metals was $96,000,000; in 1859 it was $264,000,000! The whole amount now in the world is estimated at $10,000,000,000, of which six-tenths are silver. It was always supposed that a sudden increase in the quantity of money increases prices. This has not proved true; for, in spite of the influx of gold, and in spite of the repeal of the English corn laws, which has enabled us to export immense quantities of flour and grain, prices in general are lower, and wages higher, than they ever were before. Tables show that prices generally, during forty years, were highest in 1837, and lowest about 1843. Flour was so scarce in 1837, that we imported $5,000,000 worth; its average price, for forty years, has been $6 54 per barrel. The sale of tea has increased in 25 years from 13,000,000 to 36,000,000 lbs; the average price for that period has been 48 cents. The cotton crop has increased in 40 years from 180,000,000 lbs. to 1,800,000,000 lbs. A great demand for breadstuffs from 1850 to '57, occasioned by railway labor, and the repeal of the British corn laws, kept prices generally on the advance; but in '57, on account of the abundant crops, the slackening of the shipping and railway interest, and a glutted cotton market, a downward tendency prevailed. Prices don't seem generally to be affected by the fluctuations of paper currency. In 1849, the bank note circulation was $119,000,000; in 1852, $173,000,000; in March 1858, it was $120,000,000, shortly after which it rose $156,000,000. The balance of trade in favor of the United States, in the last ten years is $62,058,884, although our coffee, tea and sugar, cost us $40,000,000 annually. The consumption of coffee in 1834 was 3 lbs per head; it is now 8 lbs. per head. Our exports of breadstuffs from 1850 to '60, were $480,000,000.

A SMART BOY.—One of the successful applicants for admission into the Naval Academy at Annapolis, and the brightest boy of the whole class, says the Baltimore American, was a little fellow from Texas, about fifteen years of age, who had been three years setting type in a newspaper office, and had studied mathematics and arithmetic with a dip candle in the garret of a log cabin at night. He was poorly clad when he reached Annapolis, and on being asked how he obtained the means to reach Annapolis, replied that he had worked for it, and that his money falling short on the route, he had got some small jobs at type-setting in New Orleans and other points of his journey. If he should not be admitted, he expected to work his way home again. We saw him on Saturday on board the "Constitution," in his naval uniform, with his gilt buttons and anchors, looking as bright and hopeful as if he anticipated becoming a commodore.

By SECTIONS TO BRECKINRIDGE.—On all sides, Southern men heretofore acting with the Bell party, are coming out for Breckinridge—as it is evident the contest is between him and Lincoln, and that all others are out of the race. In Macon county, we learn that seven or eight respectable and intelligent citizens have taken this view of the matter—all neighbors are acting together. We think this will be the course adopted generally by the South.—Montgomery Mail.

The "Miss B., of Natchez," whom the Prince of Wales danced with at Montreal, and whom he afterward inquired for and expressed a desire to meet again, is said to be Miss Shelby Blackburn, of that place. Her sister is the wife of Gov. Morehead's son, of Kentucky. She is represented as being very beautiful, and probably created a slight sensation underneath the Prince's ribs.

The Prince of Wales doesn't crook his elbow. At Mount Vernon Mr. Washington tendered him a genuine glass of "old rye." The Prince merely tasted it and set it aside.

The N. Y. Daily News, Oct. 6th, says: "The 'Belle of the South,' an exceedingly beautiful blonde of 27, visited Wallack's Theatre last night, and was the 'observed of all observers.' It would not be exactly comme il faut to name the fair one. Suffice it to say that she is the spouse of a fast medical practitioner who evidently appreciates his prize.

Who is she?
"Pray, madam, why do you name your old hen Macduff?" "Because, sir, I want her to 'lay on?'"

A Boston reporter lately listened to a speech twenty-six miles long, on a railroad car.
