

CHARITIES MAKES APPEAL FOR FUNDS

Organized Effort to Obtain
$2,000 For Winter's Work.

Today the annual appeal for funds to carry on the work of the Associated Charities goes forth to the people of Richmond. The appeal says $2,000 will be needed to carry on the work of the organization during the coming year.

Circular letters will be mailed this evening to those who have contributed to the work in years past and others whom the committee believes might be interested in the alleviation of suffering among the poor. Contributors are asked to send their donations to Mrs. Emma E. Mather, 325 North Twelfth street.

In former years the people of Richmond dispensed charity in an unsystematic and indiscriminate way, which resulted in the city being overrun with beggars, and in the encouragement of idleness among the shiftless of the city. People, since the Associated Charities has been organized, have been taught to refer mendicants to this body for relief, and as a result a large portion of the city's relieving charity have been done away with.

The organization is conducted by a number of charitable women of this city, only one of whom, the city missionary, receives any recompense for the labor. She must give all her time to the work and furnish her own conveyance for $30 a month. While the trustee extends a large amount of money for relief, he is limited by law to $5 a month. Where a needy family is large this amount of money is entirely too small. All such cases come within the scope of the Associated Charities. The city missionary makes an investigation, and if the case is found worthy, the necessary assistance is given.

The appeal for financial assistance is signed by the finance committee, composed of the following members: Benjamin Johnson, George H. Knollenberg, Samuel W. Gaar, Walter J. Doan, Jesse A. Bailey, James A. Carr, Arthur L. Smith, Dr. Charles S. Bond, N. C. Heironimus and S. E. Swayne.

INHERITANCE TAX AMOUNTS TO $131

C. Rieser, Valued At $14,000.

Approximately $5,131.60 will be paid as inheritance tax on the estate of William C. Rieser, late of East Germantown, who left property and real estate valued at about $14,000 to his widow, Katherine, and his son, Curtis. The valuation of the estate will be made final by Judge Fox, who heard the sworn statements as to the value of the stocks, bonds and real estate which Rieser left, in circuit court today.

The bulk of the property was left to the widow, who received more than two-thirds. Rieser's wealth consisted entirely of paper and real estate, having had not more than $130 in cash when he died.

The valuation was heard by Judge Fox today for the purpose of determining what amount the heirs will pay as inheritance tax.

Rieser, owned real estate valued at $3,700 near Cambridge City, a small amount in Chattanooga, Tenn., and a large number of free gravel road bonds and bank stocks. He died at his home in East Germantown September 1.

ELECTION OFFICIALS CALL FOR SUPPLIES

Election officials called at the city clerk's office today for their election supplies, which have been counted and sealed for distribution. The law requires the distribution of the supplies two days before the election. City Controller McMahan is acting on the election board in place of Balts Bescher, who because he is a candidate for re-election, cannot serve. Each package contains two ballots for each vote cast in the precinct at the last city election, tally sheets, sample ballots, blank forms for all kinds of election affidavits and reports.
