

BEVERIDGE EXPLAINS ORATORY TO PUPILS; URGES GOOD CONDUCT

"Let ethical and moral principles guide you if you would be successful. If you proceed by your wit and let your ethical and moral guidance drop, you will fail," declared Albert J. Beveridge, Republican nominee for United States senator from Indiana, in a talk Friday to the high school students.

Mr. Beveridge, although hoarse from his numerous speeches, consented, upon Principal Cline's request, to give a short talk Friday morning to the students before he left the city. Mr. Beveridge's subject was "The Art of Public Speaking."

"There are various forms of creating public opinion through the newspaper and by public speaking," he said. "At times you can't trust certain newspapers for such public opinion."

Explains Difference. "Americans imagine that anybody can get up in front of the public without training. The knowledge of drawing, art and of music is by no means as refined as that of public speaking. Now, I will try to bring before you the difference between oratory and public speaking."

"When I was a boy in a small country town, political fights were common. The Republicans and Democrats would hold meetings apart, celebrating with big barbecues. My father was a wonderful looking, impressive man. He spoke of the Democratic party at one of these big meetings, and first thing, off would come his coat, then his collar, and then his bandana handkerchief from around his neck. He would say that the Democrats shunned the flag, that they were traitors and that if he had a chance he would hang them by the hair of his head. There extreme statements formed the idea which I had of oratory when I was a boy," said Mr. Beveridge.

Both Sides Radical. "On the other hand, the Democrats were just as radical about their opinions of the Republicans. The Democrats declared in those days that the Republicans were thieves, rascals, scoundrels, and that their distant relatives had been the same."

"It was while I was working my way through DePauw university that I got another version of public speaking. I learned that all audiences are alike—makes no difference if you are talking at Madison Square Garden where 10,000 faces are looking at you. It is merely a larger personality facing you, for you to talk to."

"When I went to school, I sold books in the summer time to pay my way through college in the winter. I sold books in Tippecanoe county to farmers. In some instances the wives would buy these books for $1 and the husbands would give them for their husbands' names engraved in gold on the front."

Heard Ingersoll. "During this period, Robert Ingersoll was the greatest orator of the day. He was notorious for his attack on the Christian religion. I was a country boy and had never seen an evening suit, dancing pumps and silk hose. Ingersoll spoke to an audience of which I was fortunate to be a member. "Ingersoll made an eloquent appearance when he came on the stage to speak to us. He was perfect in attire, finish and was dressed in full evening dress which fit him exquisitely. He was a specimen of a real, finished gentleman. In beginning his address this great orator started in this manner, 'Ladies and gentlemen, everything in this world dies. In all the universe, everything decays at some time. So, will religion die.'

"The infidel made his talk in a manner which was without emotion and carried the word to his audience with simplicity. But he was the attitude of such a great orator."

Gives Four Rules. Mr. Beveridge gave four rules in the important subject of "Public Speaking." They follow: "No. 1. Never speak on any occasion or under any circumstances unless you have something to say. Be sure you have a subject well in mind. Master your subject. Be sure you know more about the subject than all the rest of the people in the audience put together. The greatest artist was Jesus, who taught the people in a great manner. Get all the facts, then think it out."

"No. 2. Be as plain, clear and simple as the dumbest person in an audience will know just what you are talking about. Speak to the audience. Be able to speak to a child in the front row, so that that child can go to school the next day and tell his mates just what you said."

"No. 3.—Be so fair, so just with the other side that your greatest political enemy, of otherwise, will leave with the satisfaction that you were on the level and make them give you credit for squareness. Tell your facts so that your audience will know that you are profoundly sincere."

"No. 4.—Don't ever let anybody persuade you to speak for a cause in which you don't earnestly believe. Many plead for a cause they don't really care much about. In your delivery, stand still, don't rage, don't pound on a desk, don't yell, but talk like a human being. Many ministers spoil their sermons by their wildness."

Mr. Beveridge urged that in public speaking, one should talk simply, avoid needless repetition, refrain from using methods to obtain applause.

CAMPAIGN AMONG HAGERSTOWN BOYS WILL END TONIGHT

HAGERSTOWN, Ind., Oct. 13.—The Boys' Friend campaign, conducted by W. A. Conner, of Indianapolis, which began here Monday, ends Friday night with a lecture by Mr. Conner in Community hall on "The Heart Bindings of a Boy." Friday afternoon Mr. Conner will award to the boys and girls who have participated in the campaign, numbering practically every school child in Jefferson township, the degrees of "Princely Knights" and "Queenly Daughters."

"People of Hagerstown and New Garden township are well pleased with the fine work which Mr. Conner has carried on in our schools and in the community in the interest of our boys and girls," said W. J. Stahr of the Hagerstown school.

Mr. Conner divides a boy's life into three periods, namely, childhood, from one to seven years; boyhood, from eight to 14 years, and hedonism (pleasure-seeking age) from 15 to 21 years.

Baby Until Three. In childhood one is a baby until he reaches the age of three. From four to seven years, Mr. Conner says, is the dramatic age, childhood is also the period of confidence. During his childhood, the average boy is 60 per cent innocent and he is 35 per cent mimic. He has 100 per cent faith. And he spends 15 per cent of his time at play. A boy during childhood, Mr. Conner finds, spends 3,702 hours at play, 912 hours at school, and 158 hours at church.

In boyhood, says Mr. Conner, the half orphan ages from 8 to 11 years, and from 12 to 14 years is the agonizing awkward age. "Boyhood, he says, is also the period of comradeship, and during that period the average boy devotes his time 50 per cent to fun, 20 per cent to fighting, 15 per cent to mystery, 10 per cent to work, three per cent to reason and two per cent to religion. He is 100 per cent loyal to his friends. During the comradeship period the average boy spends 20,760 hours at home, the greater part of the time with his mother. He sleeps 18,849 hours. He devotes 16,000 hours to play, 5,390 to school and 364 to the church.

Wild West Age. During the hedonism period the "wild west" age occurs between the ages of 15 and 17 years, Mr. Conner states. From 18 to 21 years the average boy is a hero worshiper. During this delight gratification period of life the average boy is 50 per cent selfish, 20 per cent fearless, 15 per cent reasonable, 15 per cent religious and 20 per cent willful. Of the 11,780 hours the average boy spends at home during hedonism, 10,000 hours are with his mother, 4,712 hours, his father 2,356 hours, and 4,712 hours with others.

He sleeps 16,492 hours, works 7,466 hours, goes to school 5,390 hours, and attends church 110 hours. He devotes 20,122 hours to comradeship and to amusement, nearly twice as much time as he spends at home.

BATCHELOR IS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

John Batchelor, widely known Wayne county dairy farmer, who narrowly escaped death in an auto accident a mile and a half west of Green's Fork late Thursday afternoon, Friday was suffering from injuries which were said to be less serious than was thought immediately after the collision. It was thought that serious internal injuries had been sustained but later examination revealed that his hurts consisted of two broken ribs, a wrenched thigh, bruises on his arms, and severe lacerations on his right hand.

Mr. Batchelor was turning north on to the Green's Fork-Williamsburg pike when the front of the roadster which he was driving was struck by an automobile which was driven by Marcel King, garage owner of Green's Fork. Mr. Batchelor's car was overturned and thrown against a telephone pole. When taken from the wreckage Mr. Batchelor was found to be unconscious and he remained in this condition for 20 minutes. He was removed to John Ellis' store at Green's Fork by James Kiser, and later taken to his home here at 208 South Fourteenth street. The roadster driven by Mr. Batchelor was completely dismantled by the accident, while the automobile which Mr. King was driving suffered only a broken front wheel.
