

DEATH ENDS CAREER OF REP. J. R. MANN, LONG HOUSE LEADER

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Death last night ended the legislative career of Representative James R. Mann of the Second Illinois district, long rated as a giant of the house.

Returning here two weeks ago for the opening of the special session of Congress, Mr. Mann who has served his people for upwards of a quarter of a century took part in the preliminary work of the house. A week ago, however, he was forced to stay at home because of a cold, which he failed to shake off. His condition at first was not regarded as serious and it was not until yesterday afternoon after pneumonia had developed that it became alarming. Early in the evening, he rallied but there was a change for the worse as the night wore on. Shortly before midnight with his wife and his physicians at his bedside, the veteran of many a congressional battle died peacefully.

News Shocks House
News of Mr. Mann's death was a shock to the house, for few of his most intimate friends knew of his illness, beyond the statement that he had been confined to his home by a cold. On the eve of the house vote Wednesday on the shipping bill Mr. Mann wanted to get out of bed and go there to be counted on its side. He was told to stay at home and that while his wise counsel would be helpful there were votes enough in sight and he would be paired. But his thoughts were constantly on the work of the house where his record of service through 13 consecutive terms or 26 years had earned for him the reputation among friend and foe of the best informed man on the details of government that ever sat in either branch of congress. He was sent back for a 14th term by the people of his district in the election last month.

Lost Speakership
Minority leader in the House during the eight years of Democratic control, Representative Mann saw the Speakership go to Gillette, of Mass., when party galle came into power there but if the failure of his party in caucus to select him as speaker left any tinge of bitterness with the veteran members, his friends never saw an indication of it. Declining then the proffered leadership of the majority, Representative Mann thereafter continued to exercise a power equal to if not greater than that of the speaker himself as chairman of the committee of committees which controls the make up of the House committees.

End Move of Friends
Counting on his strength for a possible house upheaval when the Republican majority was cut to less than a score in the last election, his friends again set to work quietly in his behalf, but the Illinois member who months before had declared he never would accept the speakership or the leadership quickly ended the move, when he heard of it by reiterating what he said then. That it would have required a powerful effort to beat him if he had gone out for either of these places was the opinion freely held in the house. It was understood that services would be held at the late representative's home in Chicago and that Mr. Mann would be buried beside his son there who died four years ago.

Second Clothing Sale To Be Given Saturday

On account of the great success of the Community clothing sale held last Saturday in the old Richmond Baking company building on South Fifth street, another has been arranged for Saturday afternoon, Dec. 2, to be held in the same place. Much new clothing has been donated this last week, and the opportunity is now presented for buying shoes, coats, hats, suits and other articles of wearing apparel for the whole family. The sale is in charge of Mrs. Arthur M. Charles. The doors of the building will be open at 1:30 Saturday afternoon.

ECONOMY, Ind., Dec. 1—County officers are at work trying to apprehend the robbers who entered the Davis and Randall dry goods store and the P. O. Most of the loot was secured at the Davis and Randall store; while at the Beckman store only about $1.35 in pennies, and an old revolver were taken.
