NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

If you fail to receive your copy of The Times as promptly as you have in the past, please do not think it has been lost or was not sent on time.

That most remarkable of octogenarians, Georges Clemenceau, is packing up his kit with a view to scaling the Himalayas and doing a little tiger hunting.

What a man!

Just consider the effect of the rigors of the peace conference on most of the men who bore its heaviest burdens.

President Wilson's health was wrecked; Orlando of Italy was politically extinguished; Lloyd George is still desperately trying to extricate himself from its consequence, and is facing unheard of problems.

Desch, the "peace president" of France, has been forced to sacrifice his life-long ambition in one of the most pathetic incidents of recent history.

And here is this indomitable old man, with a bullet inside him, running rings around the Pyramids, riding a donkey in the Holy Land, trotting back home again, packing his grip and off and away like a kid of forty for the tall peaks and the tiger lairs.

None worked harder than he at Versailles, and he was years the senior of them all.

None bore more of criticism and anxiety. He is an old man, with an utterly cynical view of his own and everyone else's performances.

But if he returns safe from his Indian adventure the world need not be surprised if he announces his intention to check up Amundsen's figures on the South Pole.

No wonder the plenipotentiaries at Paris said he was a tough one. He is.

BLAMING WILSON

We do not find all the blame for democratic shortcomings on the republican side.

The Lafayette Journal points out that one of the influential democratic newspapers of Georgia, the Macon News, commenting on the nomination of Tom Watson, former populist, as the senatorial candidate in Georgia, confesses that

Watson won his nomination because two-thirds of the democrats in Georgia are opposed to the league of nations covenant and to what is called "Wilsonism."

The Macon News interprets it that the "autocratic manner in which the president sought to thrust this unqualified document (the covenant) down the throats of the American people aroused against him a keen hostility."

The fact that it is the business of the senate to use its best judgment on treaties and that majority of the democratic senators differed with the president was a factor he could not patriotically ignore.

MOTOR TRUCKS AND WATERWAYS.

Let the railroads increase their rates, there are other means of transportation. Motor trucks are solving the problem and the nation's waterways, unused for half a century, may also be relied upon to bring up the railroads with a round turn in short order.

All over America there is a great demand for improved highways and for navigable channels. This demand is being met in Illinois by two large bond issues. Hundreds of miles of cement roads are to be built and the Illinois waterway has also been started.

Other states will follow suit if they have not already. The railroads will not continue to dominate this country. There are other and more convenient ways to handle freight. The next five years will see a fine illustration of the law of supply and demand in this matter, a result brought about by the roads' greed, and the whole country will benefit, says Major Lee in the Calumet Record.

THE TRAIL-BLAZERS.

The thirty nine republican senators who attached their names to the Second Declaration of Independence on March 3, 1919, blazed the way for a revolution against Wilson's internationalism that is being eagerly followed by the voters as rapidly as they are given a chance to indicate their will in the primaries.

THERE WILL always be persons to tickle-toe and jazz when they should be resting up for next day's work.

WHEN AN OFFICE has to go out and sandbag a man it is a safe bet that it has no salary attached that is worth while.

ALTHOUGH AN Oregon woman has just completed a 10-day fast, nobody thought of sending out daily bulletins regarding her condition.

PERSONS WHO WANT to discuss politics or other subjects without interruption should select the doorway of the store that does not advertise.

SOME FOLKS will travel if for nothing else to show their neighbors that they can afford the price.

THE PROFITEER puts up his prices gradually so that psychology may do its perfect work with his victims.

WHEN THE dispatches mention the Tanca-Arica dispute between Peru and Chile it sounds like some Indian cure-all.

THERE may be a lot of good-na-tured MEN in the world BUT you can never prove it by their wives. NEARLY every married man WOULD be out in the booby hatch IF his sanity was determined by the LETTERS he wrote to his wife WHILE he was courting her.

TAGGART

for SENATOR

In 1916 He Fought the Fight for Economy and Against the Waste That Forces High Taxes PUT HIM BACK ON THE JOB

THOMAS TAGGART Democratic Candidate for U.S. Senator

With Cox he stands on the Democratic Platform to insist that America shall do her part for peace, justice, order and stability—the honest fruits of victory.

With Cox, he will continue to fight as he did in 1916 to protect the taxpayer against old-time unbusinesslike raids on the Treasury. He runs on his record.

I shall always be found using my best efforts in cutting off useless or extravagant appropriations.—Thomas Taggart.
