FAVORS CHANGES
GOVERNMENT BUILDING AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

SUPERINTENDENT EMMA NYE BELIEVES PROPOSED SCHOOL LEGISLATION WISE.

The government building at the World's fair ranks with any on the exposition ground in point of architectural design and sculptural beauty. The architect is James Knox Taylor, superintendent of the United States Treasury. The sculptor is James Farrington. Early, the youngest pupil ever admitted to the Royal Academy.

The exterior of the building is classic, stately and beautiful. The main entrance consists of a portico of eight Ionic columns, five feet in diameter, and forty-five feet high, surmounted by an entablature and attic.

The attic is enriched by eight colossal female figures, eleven feet high, representing music, painting, sculpture, architecture, agriculture, manufactures, transportation and commerce.

On each side of the central portico and just above the top of the attic, are groups of four figures each. A seated female figure, fourteen feet high, representing America, with a torch in one hand and an eagle at her feet, is surrounded by three young athletes, each ten feet, six inches high, typifying the youth of the republic. Each has a laurel wreath in his hand.

The dome is surmounted by a quadriga, a Goddess of Liberty, fourteen feet high, bearing a torch in one hand and an eagle in the other, standing in the triumphal chariot drawn by four colossal horses. The horses are guided by two nude male figures, each 12 feet high.

The Fisheries building which is connected with the United States Government building by a colonnade is severely classic in outline. It is as simple as the Greek temple of Poseidon, which still crowns "Sunium's Marbled Steep." Groups of naiads, mermaids, mermen, sportive dolphins, sea shells and tridents adorn every available place. The friezes and crests around the building all suggest the sea.

The central ornament of the United States government building proper is the statue of "Armed Liberty." The first plaster cast of this statue was made in Rome by Thomas Crawford, the sculptor. It was used by Clark Mills in 1860 for making the mold in which he cast the bronze statue surmounting the dome of the capitol in Washington. The height of this statue is nineteen feet six inches. The government board appropriated $15,000 for the interior decoration of the government building. This work was under the immediate supervision of Miss Grace Lincoln Temple, whose plans, however, were subject to the approval of the members of the United States government board.

BLOOMFIELD.

Bloomfield, April 9.—A motion for a new trial in the Townsend will case was argued before Judge Roberts in district court yesterday by the attorneys in the case. It will be remembered that the jury returned a verdict in this case a few days ago setting aside the will, which is the second time a jury has arrived at a similar verdict. Attorneys for the proponents asked that the verdict of the jury be set aside because the same was contrary to the weight of evidence and because the jury erred in their finding in regard to certain questions submitted to them by contestant. Judge Roberts overruled the motion after carefully reviewing the case, holding that he would not be justified in interfering with the verdict of the jury. Proponents were given 30 days in which to prepare a bill of exceptions. It is understood the case will again be appealed to the supreme court.

In the case of G. A. Shoemaker vs. the Wabash Railway company in which plaintiff sought to recover $200 for burning certain hay by defendant's trains, the jury after being out several hours returned a verdict yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, awarding plaintiff the sum of $215.

Lloyd McMains of Belknap was arrested yesterday on a warrant sworn out in Justice Bryant's court, the offense charges being the larceny of 24 quarts of whiskey from the Wabash Railway company of the value of $21. The offense was alleged to have been committed on or about the thirtieth day of March. The defendant is 14 years of age.

The board of supervisors, accompanied by Auditor W. F. Baumgarten visited the county farm Thursday.

G. B. Anderson, brother of Deputy County Auditor Albert Anderson, has gone to Lincoln, Nebraska, where he will join a baseball team, composed of Nebraska Indians with whom Mr. Anderson will play during the coming summer. Mr. Anderson will pitch or play third base.

SETTLEMENT IS IN SIGHT

MINERS AND OPERATORS BELIEVE AGREEMENT WILL BE REACHED NEXT WEEK.

Conditions are quiet in the Iowa mining field and both miners and operators are waiting for the joint conference to convene at Des Moines next Monday afternoon and attempt to make a settlement. Although not a word as to what is planned by either side will be vouchsafed the conviction is growing among the operators that the miners, through President White, have made an agreement with President Morris of the operators to come to an amicable settlement. That they will is an obvious fact but whether the bulk of the giving is to be on the side of the miners or of the operators remains to be seen. Nearly all of the local unions have held meetings and re-elected their former delegates to attend the conference and next Monday afternoon, when the two bodies face each other for the final try for a scale, both will be made up practically of the same men who a few days ago said by their votes that they were unable to come to an agreement.

Expect an Agreement.

Now, however, since all have had an opportunity to think the case over thoroughly, neither side wants to see a strike, and realizing that the only way to avoid one is to make a scale at Monday's meeting all expect that the obstacles which proved insurmountable before will dwindle into almost nothing when the joint scale committee again takes them in hand.

A REVOLTING CASE

MARRIAGE OF LITTLE GIRL TO AGED MAN RECALLS SUPERSTITIOUS TALES.

Washington, Ia., April 9.—(Special) —Never in the history of Washington county has such a revolting case as that of the marriage of John Leeper and little Gertrude Trusty come to light. Leeper is 60 years of age and his young wife, who is now trying to have her marriage annulled, is 11 years old. Two years ago, when she was but 9 years of age, she was forced into a marriage with this man, twice married before, and old enough to be her grandfather. Judge Scott of Brooklyn, who is presiding over the district court here at present, will lose no time in annulling the marriage.

In dark and superstitious sections of the old world, Washington county people have read of child marriages, but never before has anything of the kind come so near home. There will be no delay in having the marriage annulled. Judge Scott regretted that there had been as much delay as there was, but it is explained by the fact that one of the attorneys pushing the prosecution was ill and unable to get to Washington sooner.

The case was first brought to the attention of Attorneys Bailey and Morrison, who at once commenced proceedings. These attorneys were dumbfounded when they learned of the conditions. There is no fee in the case of course, and they at once recognized their duty as citizens and took up the matter.

The daughter, whose name is Cora, 9 years of age. With Mrs. Crandall lives her father, George D. Trites, a well known and highly respected citizen of Washington county. Mrs. Crandall states that Leeper had worked for her father off and on for about twenty-two years. Knowing the family is the reason he brought his young wife there. Leeper has not been living with his young wife much since he came to this country. It is claimed he threatened to have her sent to the reform school for not living with him. Mrs. Crandall has been all anxious for her father to prepare a bill of exceptions to the matter to the attention of the county seat authorities until the present time. Yesterday Bailey & Morrison succeeded in getting the child and Mrs. Crandall here, and for the first time learned the details of the child's marriage.

The Girl's Family.

The young wife states that her mother was twice married and that her father is dead. She says her mother's name now is Mrs. Sarah Long, wife of Frank Long. The girl says she lives in Brice, Mo. The girl says she has two brothers and one sister. The ages of her brothers are 18 and 20. She says they are hired hands and does not know where they are. The last time she saw them was four or five years ago. The girl says her sister is about ten years old and was living with her mother the last she heard of her.

Leeper Married Four Times.

The young wife says her husband told her he had been married four times. The girl says he has three sons, John, Will and Frank and a daughter, Mrs. Farrier. Two of the boys and Mrs. Farrier, she says live at Brighton.

Four Days Schooling.

The young wife never went to school but three or four days in her life. She was born in Indian Territory, she cannot read or write, nor having the chance to learn. Her weight now is seventy-three pounds. From all appearances she is naturally bright and had she the chance, no doubt she would know as much as other girls of her age.

Temporary Injunction Granted.

Bailey & Morrison brought their action in chambers before Judge Scott yesterday afternoon at one o'clock. In the action it was asked that the marriage be annulled and an injunction served on Leeper to keep him from threatening her. It is claimed he threatened to send her to the reform school if she would not live with him. Judge Scott granted the temporary injunction at once. The permanent injunction will be tried before Judge Preston next September.

Judge Scott's Remarks.

In speaking of the case Judge Scott said he had seen depravity since he began the practice of law and during his service on the bench, but this was the worst and most remarkable case that ever came under his observation.

A FREAK EGG.

Ottumwa Hen Attempts to Improve Shape of Staple Article.

An egg resembling in shape a small gourd was discovered yesterday afternoon by George Green, the son of C. A. Green, who resides on North Benton street. The egg was found in a barn in a nest with other eggs. Its body is of the ordinary shape, but at the smaller end there is a projection of the shell of about half an inch attached exactly as is the stem of a gourd. Just what idea actuated this twentieth century hen to believe she could improve on the long established form is not discernible, but it is evident she is inspired with true American inventive genius.

Teachers' Examinations Reduced to Four Per Year—The Papers to Be Marked and Credited at State Superintendent's Office.

Miss Emma Nye, county superintendent, is in hearty accord with the proposed new legislation in regard to teachers' certificates. It is proposed to reduce the number of examinations to four for the entire year and to arrange for the marking and grading of the papers at the state superintendent's office instead of in the offices of the county superintendents.

Concerning these proposed changes, State Superintendent John F. Riggs, recently made the following utterance that will be interesting to the readers of the Courier:

Proposed Legislation.

"Now with a view to putting the whole question of the examination and certification of teachers on a more rational basis, the legislature has within the past month been examining our present laws on this subject and has had under consideration a comprehensive measure providing for the examination of teachers by the county superintendent as at present, and the reading and marking of the manuscripts at the capital of the state under the direction of the state educational board of examiners.

"I want if possible to set before you very briefly the changes contemplated and some of the arguments that have been advanced in their support.

"The first change proposed was to limit the number of teachers' examinations in a county to four instead of permitting twelve as at present. The great majority of county superintendents agree that frequent examinations are wholly unnecessary and that they require the time of the superintendent when he should be engaged in visiting the schools and in awakening and sustaining a good school sentiment in some of the districts of his county. It was proposed to hold two examinations in the summer—one in June and one in July. All the successful candidates in both of these examinations would then receive certificates dated August 1 following. It was proposed that no certificate issued should be for less than one year, and that the county could all, practically, have their certificates for the entire school year, before the opening of the schools in September. A third examination was to be held in October for the accommodation of those deprived of attendance upon a summer examination, or who were engaged to teach in districts where the school year begins with the winter term. Then, for emergency cases, a fourth examination was assigned for February; so, it was thought with examinations the last of February, June, July and October, the entire body of teachers in any county could be accommodated quite as well as with twelve examinations, as now provided by law.

Higher Class Certificates.

"Another change, very interesting to teachers, I am sure, provided for the renewal of the higher class certificates, provided proof should be furnished of successful teaching during the life of the certificate. But the most important change from present methods provided that the county superintendents should forward manuscripts, excepting that of didactics, to the office of the state superintendent, and that the scholarship, as shown by the examination manuscripts, should be determined by the board of educational examiners. The certificate was then to be issued by the state board and was to be effective in any county of the state when registered with the county superintendent and receiving his official signature. A standard, uniform for the state, was to be secured; county lines were to disappear; the value of a certificate was to be practically a state certificate, and a premium was to be offered to those who should rise to the highest class of certificate. In this renewal the superintendent is to be solely on continued successful teaching.

Benefits of System.

"The benefits of such a system are apparent. First, the county superintendent would be strengthened. I make the statement knowing that a few county superintendents regard the law as a blow at this office. I cannot so believe, neither would I stand for any measure that I felt would weaken the county superintendents. I believe this office is of great importance in our educational system, and I want to see it strengthened and made more a professional office.

"The other day a county superintendent said to me: 'This law will take the 'lash' out of the county superintendents' hands. But, sir, by the age of the 'lash' is past. A superintendent must be a leader and a guide, and not a driver. I believe the teachers of Iowa do not need the threat of an annual examination by the county superintendent to keep them in co-operation with him in his efforts to advance the educational interests of his county.'

Chronic Bronchitis Cured.

"For ten years I had chronic bronchitis so bad that at times I could not speak above a whisper," writes Mr. Joseph Coffman, of Montmorene, Ind. "I tried all remedies available, but with no success. Fortunately my employer suggested that I try Foley's Honey and Tar. Its effect was almost miraculous, and I am now cured of the disease. On my recommendation many people have used Foley's Honey and Tar and all ways with satisfaction. Sold by W. D. Elliott.

SEYMOUR IS SAFE.

Mayor Denies Truth of Story That Smallpox Prevalent.

A telephone message this morning from the mayor of Seymour notified the Courier that the report that has been going the rounds of the Iowa papers, to the effect that smallpox is prevalent in Seymour, is untrue. The mayor stated that there are a few light cases of illness, but that there is no general scare over the disease, and that the schools and churches have not been closed. The people of Seymour have a thriving little town and they do not wish any unjust stories to gain circulation.

PRETTY KEOKUK COUNTY WIDOW LOSES FIGHT FOR FREEDOM.

SENATE REFUSES PARDON

Buchanan Bill, Providing For a Commission to Investigate Conditions at Educational Institutions Becomes Law Today—Fight on Salary Raise.

(BY LEON BROWN.)

Des Moines Bureau of Courier.

Des Moines, April 9.

The senate this morning defeated the proposition to pardon Mrs. Sarah Kuhn, now serving a sentence in the Anamosa penitentiary for murder. The vote stood twenty for the pardon and twenty-six against. Senator Brooks of Keokuk county, though coming from the district in which Mrs. Kuhn lived, voted against the pardon. This ends a hard fight which has been on since before the legislature convened and has been waged by the friends of Mrs. Kuhn tirelessly for several months. When the house a few days ago gave a good majority in favor of pardoning the young woman it was thought that she had won out but the senate, contrary to expectations, voted against her release.

Geneva Favored Pardon.

Last fall, months before the legislature convened, a petition was prepared and signed by many residents of Keokuk county, asking that Mrs. Kuhn be pardoned. Soon afterwards a counter petition was prepared and it received almost as many signatures as the first. Both were presented to the legislature when it convened and the one asking for pardon was favored by Representative Geneva, who lives at Bigourney and who sold out of his butcher shop the bologna that the aged husband of the alleged murderer bought just before the two ill-mated people began the last ride they took together and the last one in the life of the husband. Representative Geneva has worked tirelessly for the woman's release but Senator Brooks, also from the same county, has been against it from the first and voted against it today. Many of the senators followed his lead just as many of the representatives followed that of Geneva.

Buchanan Bill Providing for a Commission to Investigate the Conditions at the various educational institutions during the vacation, became a law this morning, all the amendments having been concurred in by both houses.

Give Speaker Clarke a Chair.

The house this morning gave over a half hour for the presentation to Speaker Clarke of an elegant chair. Representative Temple of Keosauqua, made the presentation speech.

Fight on Salary Raise.

A strong fight was made today in the house against the bill proposed by the committee on retrenchment and reform fixing the number of statehouse employees and their salaries and raising the latter about $10,000. The bill however, got fifty-three favorable votes. When it comes before the senate a fight will be made on the clause providing that all janitors shall be chosen by the custodian. This is regarded by some as a scheme for machine politics.

To Report on Collections.

The house this morning passed the senate amendment to the bill providing that all state officials must turn over all moneys collected by them to the state treasurer, they to receive their salaries from the treasurer.

BEATEN IN INDIANA

His Henchmen There Claim That They Were Defeated by Tom Taggart By Political Thievery—Dispatch Sent Out Last Night Branded As Untrue.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 9.—Representative Hearst, in an interview in Washington yesterday, which was telegraphed to the Indianapolis Star (Independent) yesterday afternoon, brands as a lie the statement in an Indianapolis morning paper that Hearst had decided to abandon the Indiana fight and had recalled his friends from this field, declaring that "they had better stick to journalism."

The Washington story says: "Representative Hearst's friends here say there is no truth in the story published in the Indianapolis Star to the effect that Hearst's friends have given up hope in Indiana."

Charges Dishonesty.

Charges of dishonesty are made against Tom Taggart, of French Lick Springs, Ind., who is recognized as the democratic leader in Indiana and who is out and out an anti-Hearst man. It is alleged by the Hearst men that their opponents ruled the primaries yesterday and used dishonest methods to defeat them. Detectives here, it is said, been sent out from Chicago to investigate and if necessary arrest the men who are responsible for the alleged steals.

Stick to Journalism.

The dispatch which was sent out all over the country last night and which made the Hearst people "sore" bears an Indianapolis date and is on the sensational order. It says:

"The Indiana managers of the candidacy of W. R. Hearst for the democratic presidential nomination are discouraged over the sudden change in plans following the receipt of the following telegram from Mr. Hearst by his personal representative, Andrew M. Lawrence:

"Let the damn horses go. Kansas no good. We better stick to journalism. Close up everything at once. Get to work on newspaper."

"W. R. Hearst."

"Mr. Lawrence was here from Chicago looking over the local situation, preliminary to the primaries today to select delegates to the state convention, which will pick delegates to the national convention. Immediately upon the receipt of the telegram Lawrence hurried back to Chicago, leaving the Indiana managers without aid. In the primaries today not a Hearst slate was elected. The telegram to Lawrence was first received by J. Oscar Henderson, the local manager for Indiana, and he unintentionally gave the full text to an outsider, believing he was telephoning the message back to the Western Union for verification. The word 'horses' is believed to have been 'hoosiers' and to have been changed in transmission. Mr. Henderson now says the message was a cipher and does not mean what it seems to. He says Hearst will start a newspaper here in a month to make fight on National Committeeman Tom Taggart and the state democratic organ, who are supporting Parker."
