CORN SITUATION IS HELD SERIOUS

HOLDEN SPECIAL FINDS THAT NOT HALF OF THE SEED WILL GROW.

Avoca, Iowa, March 31.—Two weeks traveling back and forth over Iowa on Holden seed corn specials convinces even the most incredulous that the corn situation is more serious in Iowa this spring than it has been for years. Not more than one-half of the seed intended for planting will grow. This is the result of the first week's observations and is confirmed by the expert analysis of the seed corn on the Rock Island railroads. The Ames experts, (Prof. G. H. Holden, Prof. M. L. Bowman, Prof. A. H. Snyder and Prof. J. L. Mosher), are urging on farmers the necessity of testing their seed corn, grading the shelled corn, calibrating the planter plates so that they will drop only three to four kernels to the hill and finally establishing a five-acre seed patch in which to plant the best seed corn so as to have a sure crop for next year.
