DAVENPORT BOOST OFFICERS BUSY

E. P. ADLER ELECTED PRESIDENT OF NEW ORGANIZATION.

Davenport, April 19.—The Greater Davenport Committee, Incorporated, met at the Davenport Commercial club and perfected an organization by electing officers and started at once its work for boosting the city and placing Davenport in the front rank of the hustling cities of the country. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—E. P. Adler.
Vice-president—T. F. Halligan.
Temporary secretary—L. G. DeArmand.

Treasurer—Ed Kaufmann.
The committee then went on record as favoring the building of an interurban to Muscatine by making terms with the Tri-City Railway company.

The committee passed a motion unanimously asking that the city council pass the ordinances extending the franchises of the Tri-City Railway company. A committee was appointed to wait on the city council and present the matter to that body. The committee consists of E. P. Adler, T. F. Halligan, R. R. Englehart, R. H. Harned and J. B. Richardson.

The committee considered that it could start its work in no better way than by trying to secure an interurban for Davenport. After a thorough discussion of the subject it was thought that the benefits to accrue to the city would more than offset the price to be paid for the interurban. It was recognized that in no better way could a city be built up than by extending its interurban facilities.

The committee then discussed the by-laws considering the report of its committee and will adopt them at the next regular meeting. The committee will meet every week on Tuesday at noon lunch at the Commercial club.

Prospects for Manchester Interurban.

Manchester, April 19.—The prospects for the construction of the Manchester-Davenport interurban railway now look bright, and it is up to the tax payers of this city to decide the question. Late Matthews of this place, one of the promoters of the enterprise, states that Manchester will have to furnish at least $25,000, and as soon as this is done, work will be commenced for this enterprise. The contract for the construction of the entire line has been let to F. J. Cross of Monticello, and the preliminary surveys have all been made. The proposed line will begin at Manchester and end at Davenport, and will run through the towns of Monticello, Olin and Stanwood. LOST BRIDE FOUND.

Refuses to Go Back to Husband From Whom She Was Abducted at Charivari.

Storm Lake, April 19.—Married a week ago to "Willie" Engelke, abducted by her four big brothers and held a prisoner for another week, the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Mrs. Paulina Engelke, nee Hadenfelt is cleared up, but "Willie" no longer has a bride. In her place he has the wedding ring, a cheap gold band, which seems to him a more important possession than a wife.

Paulina formerly kept house for the Hadenfelt boys on a farm adjoining Engelke's. She tired of drudgery, and when Mrs. Engelke proposed that she marry the son the acceptance was so sudden that there was no time to make up wedding finery before the wedding, which took place here following a hurried ride after the horses had "finished their feed, and while "Willie" was resting from following the long furrows in the field. All seemed to go well until the night of the charivari, when the crowd demanded to see the bride. As she came out on the back porch to blush she was grabbed by her four brothers and carried away bodily into captivity. A week later Willie and his mother located the missing bride, drove to the Hadenfelt home and the son was forced by a horsewhip in his mother's hand to go to the door and demand his wife. He went, but when he met Paulina's mother at the door he wilted, even though he saw his bride looking over ma's shoulder. Timidly he asked if she was coming back to live with him and she nodded her head in the wrong direction. Then he asked her if she would return to the ring, and she did, with so much promptness that Willie nearly fainted. He is so glad to get his ring back that he professes to have no care for his wife, who has resumed her maiden name, although she is not yet divorced.
