GOVERNOR CARROLL WILL WIN.

Audubon Republican: Two years ago, Hon. B. F. Carroll, then auditor of state, and Hon. Warren Garst, then lieutenant governor, announced themselves as candidates for governor. After a vigorous campaign before the primary election the former received the nomination and in November was elected by a large majority. He is now serving the second year of his first term and is making a fine record, though without any spectacular demonstration. Now comes Mr. Garst and announces his candidacy for that position, asking the party to defeat the present incumbent for a second term in order to gratify his ambition to fill the place. The custom of the party has been to grant all the governors a second term, and thus far all who have asked it have received the nomination without making a contest. We do not believe the Republicans of Iowa will refuse to do the same for Governor Carroll, no matter how much it may be desired by some of the politicians. The candidacy of Senator Garst at this time is ill advised and untimely and his nomination this year could not fail to do serious injury to the party. Governor Carroll will be nominated and elected for a second term for the following reasons:

First. Because it has been the custom of the party to nominate and elect the governor for a second term.

Second. Because he has been an efficient executive, attending strictly to all the business of the state in an honest and capable manner.

Third. Because he has stood for the party at all times and steadily refused to align himself in factional strife.

Fourth. Because many of the progressives still believe in a square deal in politics as well as business and will not give their consent nor votes to prevent Carroll's nomination.

Fifth. Because the many friends of Hon. Geo. W. Clark, former speaker of the Iowa house, expect to nominate him for governor in 1912; and they will not jeopardize his chances by turning Governor Carroll down at the end of one term.

Sixth. Because the rank and file of the Republican party are becoming very tired of political strife and are not willing to perpetrate it for the benefit of political ambition.

clusion that jealousy between the bureau of the interior department, and the forestry bureau probably explained the attitude of the interior department officials, but that the intentions of bad faith of Glavis against Mr. Ballinger and the others required that the statement be submitted to them for answer. Accordingly, copies of the statement were sent to Mr. Ballinger, to Assistant Secretary Pierce, to Commissioner Dennett and to Chief of the Field Service, Schwartz.

Mr. Ballinger was at Seattle, but on receipt of the charges, he came to Washington to prepare his answer. On Monday, Sept. 6, Mr. Ballinger reached Beverly, accompanied by Mr. Lawler, the assistant attorney general of the department of justice, assigned to the interior department. Mr. Ballinger sent to my house on that day, the answers of the various persons concerned, together with a voluminous record of exhibits. I had a conference with him, the evening of the day he came, Sept. 6 and then on the following evening, Sept. 7.

I talked over the charges with Mr. Ballinger the first evening and asked such questions as suggested themselves, without intimating any conclusion, and said I would examine the answers and the record, and would see him the next day. I sat up until 3 o'clock that night, reading the answers and exhibits; so that at my next conference, I was advised of the contents of the entire record, and had made up my mind that there was nothing in the charges upon which Mr. Ballinger or the others accused, could be found guilty of either incompetency, inefficiency, dilatory to the interests of the government, or dishonesty.

In the discussion of the second evening, Mr. Lawler, who was present at my suggestion, discussed the evidence in detail. I said to Mr. Lawler that I was very anxious to write a full statement of the case and set out the reasons for my decision, but that the time for my departure on a long western trip, occupying two months, was just one week from that day; that I had six or seven speeches to deliver at the beginning of that journey, and that I could not give the time to the preparation of such a detailed statement, and the opinions I would like to render in the matter. I therefore requested Mr. Lawler to prepare an opinion as if he were president.

During the eighth, ninth and tenth, I gave such consideration to the Glavis record as was consistent with previous engagements, but paid no attention to the speeches. On the eleventh, I told the attorney general to come to Beverly in order that I might consult him in respect to the case. He arrived there Saturday afternoon, Sept. 11, and pursuant to an appointment made with my own, he came to my home on Sunday morning, Sept. 12. He then delivered to me the draft of the opinion prepared by Mr. Lawler, and said that he had had an opportunity to read the entire record, and to read the answers of Mr. Ballinger and others. I then said to him that I had made up my mind as to my conclusions, and had drafted part of my opinion, but that I wished him to examine the full record and bring me his conclusions before I stated mine. He took the whole record away.

Used Only Few Paragraphs.
 During the day I examined the draft opinion of Mr. Lawler, but its thirty pages did not state the case in the way in which I wished it stated. It contained references to the evidence of Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Glavis I did not think it proper or wise to adopt. I only used a few paragraphs from it containing merely general statements, which were in substance the statements which I had made during the evening with notes of the examination which he had made and reported to me the conclusions which he had reached, with my own. We then discussed the matter at some length, particularly some points of law which were involved, and took up the opinion which I had finished and made a written statement of such analysis and conclusions as I determined the final form which I employed and signed the same on Monday, Sept. 13.

The conclusions which I reached were based upon my reading of the record, and were fortified by the oral analysis of the evidence and the conclusions which the attorney general gave me, using the notes which he had made during his reading of the record. I was very sorry not to be able to embody this analysis in my opinion but time did not permit. I therefore directed him to embody in a written statement of such analysis and conclusions as he had given me, file it with the record and date it prior to the date of my opinion, so as to show that my opinion was fortified by his summary to a campaign that is to determine the Republican choice for state officers."

Directs Satire at Cummins.
 "I think it will be admitted that it must be extraordinary circumstances when a man who has been permitted to occupy the governor's office for seven years and who retired from it only about eighteen months ago, and who has fought with greater vigor than any other man in the state the interferences in state affairs by federal officers, would come all the way from Washington to Des Moines in an endeavor to compass the defeat of one who has not yet served as governor a year and a half, especially when the most serious reason assigned for the desired change in the executive of this state is that the senator may not be 'twitted' by his colleagues at Washington with regard to political matters in Iowa."

Summarizing his acts as governor, Mr. Carroll said:
 "In the office I now occupy I have not given so much attention to the question of legislation as I have to trying to put the affairs of the state upon a business basis and to rid it of graft and unfaithful official service. The recent session of our legislature, however, enacted many important laws in which legislation I was privileged to have some part. It would be inexpedient to even attempt to enumerate more than a few of the measures passed by me among the more important pieces of legislation:
 "A law establishing a State Board of Education to have charge of our State University, State Normal School and Agricultural College.

"A law to protect the rights of the laboring man in case of accident from defective machinery.
 "A law whereby permanently disabled policemen may be pensioned.
 "The entire military code of the state was revised so as to make it harmonize and comply with the national law.
 "An appropriation was made to the State Dairy Association to encourage the dairy interests of the state.
 "The creation of a conservation and waterways commission for the study of the natural resources of the state.
 "The establishment of a plant for the manufacture of serum for the prevention and cure of cholera among hogs. This was strongly recommended by the Hon. James Wilson, secretary of agriculture of the United States.
 "Many other important measures which I shall not now enumerate, were enacted into law, but as before stated, I have devoted more time to the business interests of the state than to the writing of statutes. Whatver time I have been able to spare from immediate official duties I have spent in visiting and studying the needs and conditions of our state institutions; the advancement of the agricultural, horticultural and dairy interests of the state; the improvement of our highways; the conservation and preservation of the water power and other natural resources, and the protection of the lives of the miners and the general promotion of the labor and business interests of the common wealth.

of the evidence and his conclusions therefrom.

Sincerely yours,
 W. I. Taft.
