BOTH COURTS ARE IN SESSION

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT AND WAPELLO COUNTY DISTRICT TRIBUNALS BEGIN TODAY.

JURIES EMPANELLED

Men Enlisted on Grand and Petit Jury Assigned to Work—Cases Were Begun This Morning.

The court house today presents a very busy aspect, for both court rooms are being used and two courts are in session. The October terms of both United States circuit and Wapello county district court began with a vim this morning. Judges Smith McPherson of the United States court and F. W. Elcheberger of the district court are the centers of a busy crowd of attorneys and the mills of justice have begun with a will. The United States court is being held in the large courtroom and a great many strangers were brought to the city through the opening of the federal court.

The first action of the federal court this morning was to empanel the federal grand jury, which immediately went into session. Four Ottumwans were named on this body and one of them, G. C. Porter, was made foreman of the grand jury. The balance of the body who were selected this morning are:

H. B. Wagers, Church Porter and E. B. Davis of Ottumwa; H. A. Armstrong and Frank Springer, Albia; Daniel Belk, Wapello; Hiram Black, Bloomfield; E. J. Costello, L. F. Norris, Oskaloosa; L. N. Dunlap, J. S. Miller, Mt. Pleasant; W. D. Garmoe, Winfield; C. K. Gleason, West Grove; C. J. Hyde, Ft. Madison; W. J. Ladehoff, Walcott; F. W. Meers, Charles Olds, Centerville; W. W. Parsons, Burlington; F. P. Sammons, Davenport; Samuel Walters, Corydon.

Attorney J. J. Smith filed with the court an amendment to his answer pleading a statute recently passed by the Iowa legislature prohibiting the business in which Sperry & Hutchinson are engaged. The case is that of the trading stamp controversy in which Sperry & Hutchinson are at law with the Retail Merchants' association.

A case brought from Council Bluffs in which the validity of a tender of stock before a lien on same was satisfied, is the purpose of the action, being heard by Judge McPherson. The case is one in which the findings of Judge Thornell of Council Bluffs as referee have much to do with the proceedings.

ARMSTRONG TALKS TO VOTERS

The employees of the John Morrell & Co. plant were this noon addressed by Hon. David Armstrong, of Cleveland, Ohio, a representative of the national republican party, whose mission to Iowa is to inform the voters on the accomplishments of the republican party. Mr. Armstrong talks straight from the shoulder, and he favorably impressed his audience of workmen this noon. Candidates Frank Shane, Lloyd L. Duke, A. W. Roberts and J. R. Stodghill were introduced to the voters and made short remarks.

Mr. Armstrong will speak at a monster labor rally in Bear Creek this evening, and will remain in this district the balance of the week. There will also be a political meeting in the Hubler school house tonight, when Chester W. Whitmore and Lloyd L. Duke, candidates for state senator and county attorney respectively will make the addresses. The meeting Saturday night at Highland Center was full of enthusiasm and the speakers and candidates who attended were very much impressed with the reception tendered them by the voters. A. W. Enoch, Frank Shane and L. L. Duke addressed the meeting on the issues of the campaign. Candidates F. T. Lynch, E. L. Peterson, L. L. Swenson, J. H. Cremer and A. R. ## SERVICES HELD FOR DOLLIVER yon evidently felt most deeply the sudden death of the senator. His voice slightly trembled at the commencement of his brief remarks. He said in part:

"Senator Dolliver was more than a friend to me, he was my ideal as a boy and from my early manhood he was my chum. I have ridden with him, fished with him, studied with him. I well remember when he was nominated for congress the first time. The nominating convention was held in a nearby town and though but a boy attended and can see now the ovation Mr. Dolliver received when he returned home. There were several thousand of his friends and neighbors at the station to meet him and his love and affection for his father was more conspicuously displayed on this occasion probably than possibly at any other time. The father had driven to the depot in his one horse chaise and Dolliver, alighting from the train, made his way through the crowd and the first man to grasp his hand was his aged father.

"Mr. Dolliver was great in debate, wondrous of brain and his heart beat warm for all things that count in this world. He undoubtedly enlarged the door of opportunity for the ordinary man of today, through the wise pieces of legislation of which he was practically the father.

Tells of Last Meeting.
"It is just five weeks ago that I was last home upon my farm near Dodge City, and Senator Dolliver drove out to see me. We strolled about the place all afternoon, tramped through the autumn leaves in the forest, and he took supper with us and after supper we again strolled out, now wandering about in the twilight. I have sometimes thought since that night that possibly Mr. Dolliver had a premonition that his earthly career might end soon. He seemed to be in perfect health, however, but I could see he had something unusually grave upon his mind. We strolled about till near bedtime when the senator's team was brought up and he started home. That was the last time I saw my friend and chum in life."
