BOMB EXPLODES IN EX-GOVERNOR'S YARD

Des Moines, Nov. 9.—The explosion of a nitro-glycerine bomb in the front yard of the home of ex-Governor Carroll, 1330 East Ninth street, at 12 o'clock Saturday night, shattered the windows of the house startled the family, who had retired for the night, and aroused the entire neighborhood. None of the occupants was injured. Governor Carroll said that he could give no explanation of the act. "There is no one whom I know would wish to injure me," he said. An examination of the premises showed that the bomb had been placed in the front yard about thirty feet from the approach to the porch. Every window in the front of the building was shattered.

GORDON LATHROP TELLS OF SUNDAY

OTTUMWA BOY SENDS REPORT OF MEETINGS OF NOTED EVANGELIST AT CAPITAL.

Des Moines, Nov. 9.—"There's a man listening to me tonight," thundered Billy Sunday during a dramatic moment of his sermon based on the text "But He Was a Leper," "who is a moral leper who is spending sinful hours in the arms of a bleak-hearted huzzy while his poor wife's heart is breaking. I know it because I received a letter today from the wife telling me this." His index finger pointed rigidly downward into the upturned faces of ten thousand people, his eyes blazing and focused at the tip of his accusing finger, he presented perfectly, whether intentionally or not, a breathing, pulsing incarnation of that optical illusion experienced by everyone wherein the eyes and pointed finger or revolver of a painted image seems trained squarely on the onlooker, from whatever angle he views it. Speculations are rife as to the number of married men included in that throng who left the tabernacle determined to inspect surreptitiously, though none the less thoroughly, their wives finger tips for ink stains.

Sunday's treatment of his text may be illustrated by quoting from his sermon this sentence: "Society takes no note of sin until the fruitage is brought forth, then it throws up its hands in holy horror but God notes the beginning of things." He pursued the paralleling of sin infection and leprosy infection into many phases of social and economic life. He attacked bitterly the double standard, ridiculing the contention made by some people that a reformed rake makes the best husband. "If so," he said, "a reformed prostitute makes the best wife." He denounced the custom of card playing and drinking in homes. He deplored the resentment felt and expressed by so many people against those who would warn them against sinful living, particularly against drinking. Concerning the first drink a man takes, Sunday said: "You can't find a drunkard in Des Moines who expected to become a drunkard when he took his first drink."

Our relief, the Hancock, has been at "Monty" about a week. We were over to see one of their movie shows before we left. She carries about 900 marines, besides her crew, so you see standing room was pretty scarce. The election was postponed until the last of the month (25, 26 and 27). We brought several marines with us. They are going to some little town up the coast to see that the voting is straight. I guess it was our government that got up the new peace plans, so therefore they aim to make the natives stick to their part of the agreement. We have been in Puerto Plata so much of the time we've been down around here, that we call it the "home yards."

The old town looks about the same, excepting a few of the houses have patched roofs and sides where bullets had splintered them.

This is the only ship here now. I guess all of the battle ships have been called back to New York.

We are to get liberty in town. Last Sunday at Monte Cristi, the boys went into town. They were to be on the docks at 5 p. m. but when the time came only a few of them showed up, so the boats shoved off without them. A boat was sent after them about dark. Today they were sent up to the stick (the mast where the captain holds an inquiry) and fourteen of them got a deck court.

If I don't forget it, I will send you the new regulations and it will give you an idea of how we fellows are governed.

Well, grandma, I am sure coming home, if I can, when we get to the states, but as to my not returning to the ship, there is nothing doing. For I have no desire to spend several months in a naval prison. Even if there was to be war, which there is no danger, I would never think of trying to get out of it. Anybody that deserts after taking the oath, isn't very much of a man or boy as the case may be. As to my paying dear for my enlistment, I don't see it that way. Of course being away from home makes it bad, but you know I was always working away from home anyway.

Will have to close now. Mail is expected the last of the week so suppose I will hear from you soon.

Ode I don't know if I can explain how Machias is pronounced or not—Mu-chi-us, accent on second syllable and short sound of u.

E.G. BARTON CAR IS STRUCK BY TRAIN

ROCK ISLAND PASSENGER COLLIDES WITH AUTOMOBILE AT MARKET STREET.

The automobile owned and driven by Dr. E. G. Barton collided with Rock Island passenger train No. 473, northbound, at the Market street crossing this morning about 11:30. Dr. Barton was driving south on Market street and says that he was unable to see the flagman at the crossing on account of cars standing in the street. When out on the track and seeing the approaching train he jumped from his car just in time to avoid being struck himself by the oncoming engine and coaches. The car was badly damaged. The left front wheel was broken and twisted from its fastenings while the same side of automobile, the fender, wind shield and other fixtures were damaged to such an extent that they will have to be completely replaced before they can be put in service again.

Study your capabilities. A man said to a kid: "How did you learn to skate so well?" The kid answered: "By getting up every time I fell down."

If your pockets are empty, fill your head full of resolution.

In building your character, don't you leave out religion.

There's more hope for a fool than for a well-behaved.

If God had wanted your son to be another you he'd have made you twins; but one of you is enough.

Leave the cellar and climb up on the roof garden.

When you see a man on top of a hill, be sure he didn't light there, he climbed.

Dr. W. H. Sheldon, formerly connected with Simpson college, now a minister of Scranton, Pa., spoke a few minutes preceding Sunday's sermon on the lasting good the evangelist had done in the Pennsylvania city. He emphasized the fact that the Sunday converts "stuck."

The newspapers of Des Moines came in for a nice compliment from Sunday for their courteous treatment of him and his party and their efficient handling of reports of the meetings.

Des Moines bids fair to establish a precedent in the amount collected the first ten days of the revival.

Invitations to conduct revivals in St. Paul, Davenport, Rock Island and Moline have been received by Mr. Sunday since his arrival here.

The baseball evangelist, in these crisp autumn days might also be dubbed "The Football Evangelist." He announced the time and place of local gridiron contests and what's more, attends the games and roots lustily.

That the regenerating influence upon a community, awakened by Billy Sunday, goes on long after the evangelist has left is attested by an open letter sent a Des Moines newspaper by a Pittsburgh man. Due to the revival held by Sunday in Pittsburgh many months ago the writer says: "All over the city churches are building additions and remodeling their rooms to accommodate more people."

GRAND JURY TAKES UP MURDER CASE

SPECIAL SESSION OF CRIMINAL INVESTIGATING BODY IS CALLED FOR ACTION.

NO JUDGE APPOINTED

Matter of Man For Bench During Present Session Has Not Been Settled Yet According to Information at Office.

A message from the governor's office at Des Moines to The Courier at 2 o'clock this afternoon announced that no appointment of a judge for the second judicial district had been made by the executive today.

The Wapello county court grand jury met this morning at 10 o'clock in a special session. The primary purpose of the calling together of the jury at this time was to take up the case of Ruth McCollough and Clarence McCormick, who are charged with the murder of I. W. Mellott near the north Wapello county line on the night of October 6. The grand jury for the October term, met on Monday, Oct. 26 and after completing all work except these two cases was dismissed until today.

The other matter of greatest importance about the court house just at this time, that of an appointment of a judge for the balance of the present term, has not been settled yet, according to the latest reports received in the clerk's office. The term was opened on October 26 and was to have been presided over by the late Judge Frank W. Eichelberger of Bloomfield. The death of the venerable jurist a few weeks ago necessitated a change in the regular routine. Judge Francis M. Hunter of Ottumwa, opened court and was also here for a few days last week, but was compelled to leave this morning for Centerville where he is presiding during this term. The general opinion was that the man who was elected to succeed Judge Eichelberger would be appointed by Governor Clarke to fill out the unexpired term of the Bloomfield man. Seneca Cornell of Ottumwa, is declared to be elected for that place and it is rumored that he can not take up the work until January 1, 1915, on account of other matters. This has led to the expression that an outside man may be named to take up the work here although nothing definite has been received on the matter and Mr. Cornell has been in Des Moines all day today.

Takes Up Small Matters.

Considerable work on some of the smaller matters of the court were taken up and disposed of by Judge Hunter Saturday. An order signed by the court orders the removal of the case of Anna Blanch Pearce vs. the Ottumwa Railway & Light Co., to the United States district court. In the case of the Des Moines Packing Co., vs. the Fletcher meat market, et al, a default has been entered against all of the defendants on personal service and a judgment made in favor of the plaintiff for the amount sued on which is $251.03 with interest since July 14, 1914. A record entry has been made in the case of Oscar A. Greer vs. the Dain Manufacturing Co. This fixes the costs of the action, part of those being taxed to the plaintiff and another portion to the defendant.

Another record entry made Saturday by the court fixes the time for serving notices in the estate of Mame B. Acton, in regard to the appointment of an administrator. The final report of the administrator has been approved in the estate of Carrie E. and Robert Smith. December 5 has been set as the date for hearing the application of H. W. Michael, as guardian for Orville Glenn White et al, to sell real estate. The annual report of the guardian has been examined and approved in the estate of the minor heirs of J. W. Jordan. In the case of Homer E. Gunder vs. J. E. Gunder et al, C. E. Norton has been named as the receiver for certain property involved in the case and is to have the power to collect rents from the same. An order signed in

In Memoriam

Julia Charlotte (Moody) Glem.

At Bronson hospital, Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 18, 1914, occurred the death of Julia Charlotte Glem. Those at the bedside were Frank Glem, her husband, Ross and Seth Glem, sons, and Levi Moody, Jr., of Chicago, Ill., a brother. Harry Lee Glem, the eldest son, residing in Kalamath Falls, Oregon, was on his way east but at notice of the fatal end returned home, writing his father: "Mamma is asleep in Jesus."

Funeral services conducted by the pastor of Simpson M. E. church were held Tuesday at 10 a. m. at the Kalamazoo home, 719 North Church street. The service was brief and especially directed for the living. Interment followed at Smith cemetery, near the Glem homestead over which Mrs Glem had presided during the last twelve years of her life.

Julia Charlotte Moody was born in Highland township, Iowa, May 14, 1864, in early childhood she moved with her parents Levi Moody, Sr., and Pamela Bowen Moody to Agency, Iowa, residing on a farm west of town known as "Half Way Place." Here she grew to young womanhood. At the age of fourteen she was left an orphan and succeeded her mother in the responsibility of keeping house for six brothers which met with marked success. In 1878 and just prior to her mother's death in November, she and Ernest A. Moody embraced religion with the Free Will Baptist church of Agency.

She obtained her education for a teacher in the Agency High school, and upon moving to Elgin, Minn., in the fall of 1883 she began her career as a district school teacher, a career which met with marked success.

On December 9, 1885, at Elgin, Minn., she was married to Frank Glem, who survives her. Soon after her marriage they returned to Kalamazoo, Mich. She obtained her education here as a good home maker, busy and active. During the succeeding eight years of residence in Kalamazoo, three sons, Harry Lee, Max and Ross were born to the home.

Early in 1895 she moved with her husband to Denver Colorado, where Mr. Glem held a responsible position with the Santa Fe rail road as locomotive engineer. A scourge of diphtheria visited the home and Max was the victim.

The mother faithful and devoted followed the call of duty and journeyed to Pueblo, Colo. to die. She served in the mechanic's home, which she did well. Here, in the high altitude of the mountains, she suffered an attack of pneumonia from which she never fully recovered. Mr. Glem found in 1902 his physique was not equal to the task of high mountain climbing and descent, so he took clearance papers from the Santa Fe, returned to the homestead left vacant by the death of his father, and lived the busy life of a successful farmer. In 1911 he accepted a position as engineer at the Kalamazoo Court House which he has held since.

Mrs. Glem always kept up her church membership and was an active, spiritual christian worker at home and for others. She was a member of the adult Bible class of Simpson M. E. church, although a great sufferer from heart trouble and chronic bronchitis brought on by imperfect healing of pneumonia, for the last twelve years of her life.

She was in her place at church and Sunday school the last Sunday but one of her life, a constant, noble, active christian woman.

Besides the surviving family mentioned above, are five brothers, Ernest A. Moody, Long Island, Kan., Levi Moody, Jr., 513 E. 53rd st., Chicago, Ill., Morris Green Moody, Moreland, Okla., Perrin Nye Moody, Luck, Wis., and Seth Enoch Moody, 4523 Cook avenue, St. Louis, Mo.—Contributed.

ANARCHISTS FIGHT WITH N. Y. POLICE

New York, Nov. 9.—Alexander Berkman and Becky Edelson led twenty anarchists into a police station early today to protest against the arrest of a short time previously of four of their number. Helen Goldblatt, known as "Helen of Troy," her sister, Lilian, William Shetoff and Abraham Becker. The four were arrested after a fight in the street between a band of anarchists and five policemen. In the station house one of the policemen identified Berkman as the man who had tried to wrest away his night stick during the fight. Berkman was then arrested.
