SCOURING OCEAN FOR MISSING MEN

San Luis Obispo, Cal., May 11.—Forty-one members of the crew of the steamship Roanoke, operated by the California South Seas Navigation Co., which turned turtle and sank when its cargo shifted during a gale 100 miles south of San Francisco Tuesday afternoon, were missing today, and the tanker Lansing was searching for four of the five life boats in which the ship's company took refuge when the steamer went down. The fifth boat drifted ashore at Port San Luis yesterday carrying three famished sailors and the bodies of five of their mates who had died from exposure.

The Roanoke left San Francisco Monday with explosives for South American ports. The arrival of the lifeboat at Port San Luis brought the first news of the tragedy. The three men were too exhausted to relate details. The Roanoke carried no passengers.

The report also urged that churches be used for social purposes and approved the development of parks, playgrounds and community centers. Reform in prison administration was advocated and "collective bargaining" as means for employes to obtain better working conditions was approved by the report.

In the Religious World

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

WHEN THE CHURCH BROKE BOUNDS.

The International Sunday School Lesson for May 14 is "Lo, We Turn to the Gentiles."—Acts 13:13-52.

(By William T. Ellis.)

The Rubicon of the Christian church was crossed by Saul and Barnabas in what is now troubled Asia Minor. They settled forever the question of whether Christianity was for the Jews or for the whole world. That story is the Sunday school lesson for today.

The bounds of the lesson are marked by two Antiochs. There were sixteen of these cities in the old Alexandrian empire named for his father Antiochus by Seleucus Nikator, who has the remarkable record of having founded thirty-seven cities, which he named after himself or his relations. The greatest of all was Antioch in Syria, the city where the disciples were first called Christian. It was from this place that Saul and Barnabas set out.

Those Antioch Christians had too much sense and too much religion to feel that they needed to keep all their strong members right in their midst. There is a lesson here for the churches which retain on their roll members who have moved away and ought to be active in some other church. The Antioch congregation freely gave Saul and Barnabas to the wider work. In fact, they held a solemn service to set them apart for this mission.

Leaving Cyprus, the two missionaries—who had up to this time been accompanied by John Mark, who there proved a quitter—they landed on the coast of Asia Minor and went into the other city of Antioch, which is called the Pisidian Antioch. The lesson which began in Antioch in Syria continues in the Antioch in Asia Minor.

When in the synagogue the strangers were invited to speak to the congregation, Paul stood up—he is here first called Paul, rather than Saul—and began on the common ground where they stood to tell the familiar story of God's dealings with the chosen people. From every standpoint the sermon, which was the first missionary discourse on record, was a good one. It was full of scripture. You cannot have a first class and effective sermon if it does not abound in the living word of holy writ. Every minister must constantly watch himself lest his sermon contain too much of the daily newspaper and not enough of the inspired word. It was a sermon full of facts and not all exhortation. No address really has power that does not marshal definite information. The merely hortatorial discourse is usually ephemeral. Beginning far back in the old testament, the sermon steered a straight course to Calvary. Like every gospel message, it led straight to a presentation of the good news of the Messiah come, with a free offer of salvation to all men.

So stirred were the hearers that they wanted Paul to preach again and between whiles he was thronged with inquirers eager to hear more about this way. The popularity of the message provoked the jealousy of the Jews and the missionaries were driven from the synagogue, but not until Paul had announced the momentous decision, "We turn to the Gentiles." That marked the Rubicon of Christianity. The new wine of the living gospel could not be contained in the old wineskins of the Jewish order. From that day to this the gospel has been preached to every nation even as Paul and Barnabas preached it to the Jews.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF PLAGUE URGED

Washington, D. DES MOINES MAYOR IS GOING TO CAMP Des Moines, May 11—"John Purroy Mitchel has nothing on me." With these words Mayor John MacVicar of Des Moines emulated the example of the mayor of New York by signing an "open" military training camp at Fort Benjamin Harris, near Indianapolis, this summer. Mayor MacVicar's resolve "to be a soldier" came after he had listened to a talk by Wharton Clay of Chicago, a traveling man, before the chamber of commerce. "I believe that would be a good thing for me," declared Mayor MacVicar at the finish of the talk. "I am troubled with nervousness." "It would be an excellent example to the men of your community," some one suggested. "I am going to sign right now," he exclaimed. And he did.
