DEATH OF EDWARD GROUT

Wednesday evening, the news of the seriousness of the illness of Ed GROUT, who for ten days had been sick with influenza, made the hearts of his many, many friends in Butler sad and full of anxious premonition. He had been getting along very well with "flu" until Wednesday evening, when spinal meningitis set in and at 5:00 o'clock Thursday morning the mortal remains of Ed GROUT lay cold in death and sadness fell like a pall on Butler, for yet another of her splendid youths had been stricken.

Edward GROUT was born in Bosworth, Missouri, August 30, 1893. In 1900 his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. GROUT, removed from Bosworth to Butler, where the greater part of young GROUT's life was spent. He was a member of the graduating class of 1914 from the Butler high school and soon afterwards came possessed of a graduate pharmacist's certificate, as the result of his natural aptitude for pharmacy and his earnest perseverance. Beside making good as a pharmacist, young GROUT also made good with the Wells Fargo Express Company and held a responsible position with them in Tulsa, Oklahoma, until an affliction of his eye forced him to abandon this work, and after an operation he returned to Butler and until his death was employed by the Rhodes Pharmacy.

The life of Ed GROUT was one filled with only commendable features of young manhood. His, was ever, an uphill struggle and his life had many disappointments and griefs, all of which he bore with a sweet disposition and a fortitude of spirit, which won for him the sympathy of the entire community.

Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. GROUT of this city, Ed GROUT is survived by an infant son, Theodore GROUT, and by two brothers and three sisters, who are Will GROUT, Co. B, 35th division, 128th Machine Gun Battalion in France, Mrs. Albert Ellis, Harry GROUT, Gertrude and Margaret GROUT, all at home.

Brief funeral services were held Friday afternoon at Oak Hill cemetery under the auspices of the Odd Fellows, of which the deceased was a member.

D. F. PAYNE

D. F. Payne, whose sudden death from pneumonia Thursday afternoon at two o'clock, came as such a shock to the community, was born in Marion county, Missouri, August 12, 1855. He lived there for about 79 years and then moved to Sheldon, Vernon county. In 1908 he came to Butler, where he has since lived. He was united in marriage in 1881 to Rosa Foreman, who died in 1891. In 1893 he was married to Carrie E. Parsons and to this union one child was born, who died in infancy.

Mr. Payne united with the Presbyterian church at the age of 30 and was always a conscientious and interested member. Mr. Payne was a kindly, Christian gentleman and his death is a distinct loss to the community.

Mr. Payne is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. J. E. Clark of Nevada, a brother, J. A. Payne of Peculiar, and three sisters, Mrs. J. W. Stephens of Wichita, Kansas, Mrs. C. E. Leer of Stanford, Texas, and Mrs. A. M. Eaton of Harrisonville.

A short funeral service was conducted Saturday morning at the home at 9:30 o'clock by Rev. John Baxter Clyde. The body was taken to Sheldon for burial on the eleven o'clock train.

CURTIS MUSTARD DEAD

Curtis Mustard, who has been quite ill with the "flu" for the past week, died Thursday evening, November 7, 1914, at 5:30 o'clock, at his home in this city. He leaves a wife and two small children, parents and a family of brothers and sisters.

The deceased was born June 23, 1858, in Bates county, where he spent all his life. The funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the yard at the family home by Rev. S. B. Moore.

AUNT MYRA WHITE DEAD

Aunt Myra White (colored) died Wednesday evening, November 4, 1914, at her home in West Butler of paralysis. She was 65 years old and was born in Richmond, Virginia. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Sarah Hawkins. Funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon at four o'clock at Oak Hill cemetery.

LEOTA BARNHART DEAD

Leota Barnhart, 65 years old, died Wednesday evening, November 4, 1914, at her home in West Butler of heart disease. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Sarah Hawkins. Funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon at four o'clock at Oak Hill cemetery.

JOHN CURREN MAXEY DIES

John Curren Maxey died Sunday morning November 11, 1914, at five o'clock at his home in this city of pneumonia, following influenza. The funeral services were conducted Monday morning at Johnstown by Rev. Sherman B. Moore and burial made there.

Two weeks ago on Thursday, Mr. Maxey, who was a messenger on the Interstate for the American Railway Express Company, left his home in this city, feeling badly, but having only once in his life been sick, felt that he would be all right in a short time. He had been on his run only a few hours until he realized that he was very sick and probably had the "flu," but knowing that he would be sent to the Missouri Pacific hospital at Nevada if taken sick on his run, he kept at his work all day Thursday and until late Friday evening, when his run brought him back to Butler again. He went to his home with a high fever and was very sick Saturday, November 2, he was improved, and against the orders of his father, Dr. S. W. Maxey, who was attending him, he consumed some solids and from that date he grew worse and pneumonia set in. Saturday evening before he died, he seemed to be disheartened and to feel that he would not recover. He died at five o'clock Sunday morning. This was the first case of pneumonia that Dr. Maxey ever lost and it was the irony of fate that it should have been his own son.

John Curren Maxey was born in Johnstown, Missouri, March 12, 1886. He was educated in the Butler schools and for several years taught school in the country. He also was a mail carrier in this city until the last year, when he has been a messenger for the American Railway Express Company on the Interstate run. Mr. Maxey is survived by a wife and two small children, John Curren, Jr., and Marian Maxey; a father, Dr. S. W. Maxey of this city, and one sister, Mrs. Nannie Gilliland of this city and three brothers, H. O. Maxey of this city, Waldex Maxey of Pueblo, Colorado, and R. M. Maxey of Kansas City.

IT WAS ROOSEVELT

Today the situation in Europe is the final answer to every mad attack which Roosevelt has made upon President Wilson.

It was Roosevelt who tried to tell this country that we were sending coffins and no guns to France. The answer is a vast cemetery filled with the dead bodies of German soldiers, the beaten, retiring, surrendering army of the kaiser.

It was Roosevelt who demanded the head of Secretary of the Navy Daniels as incapable—and yet this country sent across the seas more than two millions of American boys, protected and safe from the assassins of the seas.

It was Roosevelt who demanded day after day, month after month, that Secretary of War Baker go—and today the gigantic accomplishments of our army stamp this man as the most efficient of executives.

It was Roosevelt alone, when every European statesman devoted to liberty was applauding the fourteen peace terms, who denounced them, and for the purpose of gaining political power and prestige in behalf of the great predatory interests of this country, savagely attacked the president of this country.

Every prediction of disaster which he made has failed. In their stead has come a glorious victory.—Kansas City Post.

E. D. FULLER DIES IN SPOKANE

E. D. Fuller died Saturday evening, November 7, 1914, at his home in Spokane, Washington, of enlarged arteries of the heart. He had been in failing health for three months. Burial will be made in Spokane.

Mr. Fuller was a former resident of this city and a son of L. A. Fuller. He has been away from Butler for 23 years. He leaves a wife and three children. They are Francis Fuller with an air squadron at Camp Fremont, California, and two daughters, Misses Nancy and Elizabeth Fuller. Mr. Fuller was about 50 years old. His wife is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holloway of this city.

MISSOURI NOTES

The Federal grand jury in session in Kansas City last week found indictments against six persons charged with hoarding sugar.

Mayor Kiel issued a general order Friday closing all business establishments in St. Louis not essential to the prosecution of the war, for a period of five to seven days, on account of influenza.

Renton county recently hung a service flag in the court house at Warsaw of which it is justly proud. It has 200 blue stars on it, four gold stars, and two red crosses for girls in the hospital service.

With calico selling at thirty-five cents a yard that used to retail for six cents and the half-soling of shoes now costing $1.75 a pair at least, the Montgomery Express is of the opinion that nowadays folks can't afford to economize.

During the Lloyd England sale last Friday, October 25, a scared rabbit ran the crowd and some fellow picked it up and started it on its way to the Red Cross. The rabbit was given a name and that until it was sold for $100 by the Red Cross.

Kansas City school boys are making a record for the number of letters they have written to the Red Cross. The record is held by the boys of the Central High School, who have written 10,000 letters.

George W. Alcorn saved Rolla C. Boone from suffocation at Monterey, Mo., August 12, 1914.

The election of William M. Riley, a negro, of St. Louis, as a member of the State Legislature on the Republican ticket has created a sensation in the State. One man offered to bet $100 that Riley would never take his seat in the House of Representatives. There is much feeling in Jefferson City over the prospect of a negro coming to the Legislature for the first time in the history of the State.

A package containing $10,000 in Liberty bonds was returned Thursday to an insurance company at Kansas City by a messenger who left without disclosing the contents to the person sending the bonds. An examination showed they were the bonds taken from the Bank of the National Bank for the theft of a short time ago in New York and brought back to Kansas City.

A warrant for the arrest of W. H. Webb, alias of Green, issued on a charge of holding a gun on the streets of the city, was served on Webb last night by the police.

The following names were given by the police as being in the city last night: W. H. Webb, alias of Green, issued on a charge of holding a gun on the streets of the city, was served on Webb last night by the police.

Missouri Has Hogs to Sell

From 30,000 to 50,000 head of stock hogs are offered for sale by Missouri farmers in the regions where feed has been cut short. These hogs vary in age from weaners to six or seven months. Most of them are light, but thrifty and will respond readily to fattening ration.

Patriotic Missouri farmers answered the call to breed more hogs; they planted feed crops, but they could not control the weather. They now have more stock hogs than they can afford to feed. The Extension Service of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture is helping to market this surplus. W. H. Ray has listed 100 hogs who offer stock hogs of various breeds from 11 weeks up. He has a small list of hogs—not enough to take all the hogs offered. A few farmers are attempting to raise their breeding hogs and have some hogs suitable for the market.

The following names were given by the police as being in the city last night: W. H. Webb, alias of Green, issued on a charge of holding a gun on the streets of the city, was served on Webb last night by the police.
