Entitled to Protection.
 Last fall when hundreds of deer in the woods of northern Minnesota were slain, many illegally, the extent of the lack of proper game protection was sent home more forcibly than ever before and throughout the state there is an awakened public sentiment in favor of the securing of legislation which will bring about a more effective enforcement of the law. To gain this result a larger appropriation is necessary for the Game and Fish commission, and even in the face of the economy talk, the desired result will probably be accomplished, as should be the case.
 Recently Senator John H. Baldwin of Frazee arose in the senate chamber and asked that his bill, providing that all moneys received from game and fish licenses, approximately $65,000 a year, be turned into a special fund, to be known as the game and fish fund, and that this fund be devoted to the protection of game and fish.
 On motion of Senator Rockne, chairman of the finance committee, the bill went temporarily to the finance committee for consideration, but Senator Rockne and senators from many portions of Minnesota, expressed themselves as favorable to an entirely adequate appropriation for this state department.
 Senator Baldwin explained that this bill expresses the desires of the sportsmen's organizations of the state, that it is but devoting to proper game and fish protection the moneys which hunters and fishers turn into the state treasury for the privilege of these sports at proper season.
 Carlos Avery, executive agent of the Game and Fish commission, has informed the legislators that the public is displaying more interest in legislation of this character than ever before. It is evidenced, he says, in the number of suggestions for legislation which come to his office, the number of bills introduced to restrict the hunter and the fisherman, and in the discussion in the press of game and fish legislation.
 During the last year the game and fish commission has been sorely crippled because of lack of funds. Through a misunderstanding some $35,000, which the commission thought for its use, was sent into the general fund. For several months last summer there were no game wardens at work. In the fall they were put on again, but last month the force was reduced to seven and, unless a deficiency appropriation is passed, these seven may have to go. Not until midsummer could wardens be put to work.

EDITORIAL EXPLOSIONS
 Could you believe it? The Democratic senators are accusing the Republicans of playing politics and the Republicans are accusing the Democrats of playing politics. There is probably not the slightest ground for the charge in either case.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.
 Most men, regardless of party or partisanship, will approve the action of Governor Hammond in suggesting to the house of representatives, that they keep their expenditures down to a minimum. Somehow, the house did not take kindly to the suggestion, which is absolutely in line with the thought of the taxpayers of the state. Without dwelling on the political effect of this incident which puts the house in the position of antagonism to a policy of retrenchment and places the governor in the limelight of public opinion as the champion of a program of economy, we should say that house has made a mistake in not following the plan of the senate in asking for a budget, before it takes action on any project for spending money. No one wants to suspend the usefulness of any branch of the state's business; what all want, however, is that no unnecessary appropriations be made and that the money raised be spent so that the state shall receive a dollar for every dollar put out.—Stillwater Gazette.
 Committees have been appointed to both branches of the legislature to consider the bill adopting the report of the state efficiency committee and the question will be threshed out in the next few weeks. That the people of the state are in favor of the recommendations of that special committee to reorganize the business interest of the state there is no question, but members of the legislature, if they carry out the wishes of the people will have to take a firm stand against a lot of state officials who are now holding positions and who will be legislated out of office if the new measure prevails and will do everything in their power to defeat the same. It will require a lot of backbone to make a clean-up, but it should be done, and the people of the state should back up the legislators and insist on the carrying out of the reforms advocated by the committee of thirty business men who have given so much time and thought without compensation, to drafting a law that will put Minnesota on a better and more economical business basis.—Northome Record.

THE LUCK OF HIS FAMILY TO DIE
 London.—(By Mail to New York).
 "I know I am dying, but I don't care. It's always our luck. It runs in our family like wooden legs. My father was killed at Abu plea; his father at Isandwhana; his grandfather at the Alma, and his great grandfather at Waterloo."
 The dying soldier was an Irishman of the Liverpool Regiment, wounded in the big fight at Ypres. Describing the scene, Lt. H. R. Watson of the Highland Light Infantry, says it was the most philosophic death he ever witnessed. "his destination mark was shown clearly on his pallid face and I tried in the most sympathetic way to reconcile him to the inevitable," said the lieutenant, "but he needed no bracing up."
 "To the last," continued the officer, "the young Irishman kept up a continued chatter. 'Why, more members of my family than I have buttons on my clothes,' he said, 'have died on battlefields since war was first invented. Now, it's simply my turn.'
 "Do you know it's been said that if one of us, died in bed he wouldn't have the impudence to ask Saint Peter to admit him in heaven, but would rather wander about between the two places until he met somebody who would kill him in a decent fight?"
 "That's the way we are built, and I would much rather die here than in the most comfortable bed you could rig up at home. The man who dies at home doesn't know the pleasure of death."
 "There's much in the joy of fighting that appeals to me and I wouldn't miss a set-to like this for all the world."
 "Good bye, old chap, you were superior for a day or two, but we're equals now."

Petrograd.—(By Mail to New York).—The Cossacks do not hold a very high opinion of the prowess of the Turks, if a story told by a Russian army surgeon recently returned from the front is to be believed.
 "Early in the fighting," he said,

OWE MY HEALTH to Peruna
 I was Gradually Breaking Down From Confinement to Store.
 Mr. C. N. Peterson, dealer in fine boots, shoes and cigars, No. 132 South Main St., Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "I cannot tell you how much good Peruna has done me. Constant confinement in my store began to tell on my health and I felt that I was gradually breaking down. I tried several remedies prescribed by my physician, but obtained no permanent relief until I took Peruna. I felt better immediately, and five bottles restored me to complete health. I have been in the best of spirits since, and feel that I owe my health to it."
 Catch Cold Easily.
 Mr. Arthur G. Peterson, R. F. D. 21, Box 21, Omro, Wisconsin, writes: "I was in the habit of catching cold easily. He says: 'It has been seven months now since I have taken any Peruna and I haven't felt the least touch of cold since, and I am positive that I am now rid of the tendency to catch cold. Peruna is a wonderful remedy.'
 Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

WOMEN OF RUSSIA.
 Petrograd, Feb. 13.—As the war continues the women on the border suffer the horrors of war and the mothers and orphans left at home are the ones who suffer most. In America are many mothers and daughters, who were left penniless by the war of the Rebellion, but their sufferings are as nothing to the women and children left as widows and orphans of the soldiers who have fought and bled for their country in Europe.
 Many a mother and daughter have reason to be thankful to Dr. Pierce for relief from suffering and the cure of certain weaknesses of their sex, because of his "Favorite Prescription." This tonic, which is strictly a temperance medicine, has cured thousands of those weaknesses, headaches, nervousness, backaches, which are the outward manifestations of disease in women. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear—compels the organs to properly perform their natural functions, corrects displacements, overcomes irregularities, removes pain and misery at certain times and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.
 It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from nature's roots and herbs with no alcohol to falsely stimulate and no narcotics to wreck the nerves. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensation, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.
 What Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for thousands it will do for you. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on our wrapper. Get it this very day at any medicine dealers in either liquid or tablet form.
 Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.—Adv.

"I operated upon a Cossack who had lost an arm. When he was about recovered, I asked him what were his plans for the future.
 "I'm going to enlist in the Cossack army," was the reply.
 "But how can you, with only one arm," I inquired.
 "We Cossacks don't need more than one arm to beat the Turks," answered the soldier in all seriousness.
 "Since then, I have made a practice of asking every Cossack who had to undergo a similar operation as to his intentions, and almost invariably I have received a similar reply."

 To Lord Charles Beresford Disraeli appeared to be a rather mysterious personage. Speaking of that much-discussed statesman in his memoirs, he says:
 "We stayed at Sandringham and went for long walks together during which Disraeli talked and laughed with the greatest enjoyment. But I remain to have in the recesses of the conversation he would stand still and, glass in eye, dreamily surveying the landscape, would make some such observation as 'The air is balmy * * * and serene' or 'The foliage is stunted * * * but productive' with the most weighty and measured emphasis, as though these were prophetic utterances. I was quite bewildered, for I did not then know whether he were serious or were indulging a reverie. He was a visionary, dwelling much in a world of his own, and I know now that he was perfectly natural and serious on these occasions."

Konkumbwa Warriors.
 The most interesting tribe of Togo land, in West Africa, is the Konkumbwa, whose country lies between that of the Tachokossi and the Tschadjo, but a little more to the west. Although they are still only in the bow and arrow stage of martial evolution, they are exceedingly brave and warlike. A Konkumbwa warrior in full war dress is probably as picturesque a sight as is to be seen anywhere in Africa. On his head he wears a helmet, elaborately decorated with cowrie shells and surmounted with a pair of graceful horns of the roan antelope. The quiver in which he carries his poisoned arrows is of rhinoceros hide, also ornamented with cowrie shells. Except for his loin cloth he is quite nude, but his jet black skin shines like satin, and round his arms, from wrist to shoulder in some cases, are many bangles of brass and copper alternating—Windsor Magazine.

How Mr. Davis Got Rid of a Bad Cough.
 "Some time ago I had a very bad cough," writes Lewis T. Davis, Blackwater, Del. "My brother, McCabe Davis, gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. After taking this I bought half a dozen bottles of it but only used one of them as the cough left me and I have not been troubled since." Obtainable everywhere.
