SAYS FRIDAY LUCKY DAY

Owner of Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus Endeavors to Oust Superstition, But Without Success.

SHOWMEN HAVE ODD BELIEFS

It will be Friday, the thirteenth, when the Hagenbeck-Wallace shows will exhibit in Bemidji, and there are many who are wondering just what the superstitious showmen will do to offset misfortunes which might be more likely to occur on that day than any other.

In marked contrast to the popular notions of the rank and file of circus men is the practice of Mr. Wallace. He conducts his business along lines to discourage superstition.

lace circus on Friday—and he welcomes the figure 13 in any transaction. His marvelously successful career perplexes credulous associates.

Circus folk, like sailors, are perhaps the most superstitious people in the world. They have numerous curious beliefs and all possess pet superstitions. Disease, disaster and death are preaged in their minds by signs and wonders.

To see three white horses in succession and no red-headed women is a forerunner of good luck. So, too, they declare, is the sight of a boxed corpse in a railroad station as the train rolls in.

BARGAIN TO DECIDE FATE OF TURKEY

Allies not to adopt too insistent an attitude toward Serbia. To compensate for the loss of Macedonia, Serbians are demanding that they be allowed to annex northern Albania.

Serbia has already conquered a large part of northern Albania, and but recently suspended her Albanian campaign because of Italian objections.

Decorated a Brave Horse. Human beings hold no monopoly when it comes to winning medals for feats of valor in war.

Orders were taken for some ammunition wagons to be hurried to a spot that meant crossing the enemy's zone of fire. All the time shells were crashing among the horses, bringing them down in heaps and frightening such as escaped.

The Visitor.

Opportunity knocked twice at the man's door and was about to knock a third time when the door was hurriedly opened by a woman.

"Where is the man?" said Opportunity. "Come! I've no time to lose."

"You're the very one he's looking for," said the woman. "But—he's occupied."

"You're his wife, aren't you? Tell him to come."

"He won't believe me. He'll think I'm mistaken. He'll think you are some one else."

"That isn't my fault. I've done my duty. Good day."

"Oh, please don't go! I'll tell him. I'll try to convince him who you are. Give me a little time."

Just at this moment the man rushed out and grabbed Opportunity. Then he turned roughly to his wife.

"Why didn't you let me know she was knocking?" he said. "Why, she almost got away! Just like you!"—Life.

Trial by Jury.

While we do not think that trial by jury ought to be abolished or that there is any increasing sentiment in that direction, we do believe that the system should be modified by dispensing with the requirement for unanimous verdicts.

How to Standardize Your Stationery Every business man appreciates the value of standardization. The idea as applied to stationery is just as practical and valuable. All the letterheads and forms used in your home office or your branches, and all the blanks and slips used in your factories, can be standardized in at least one respect—the paper upon which they are printed. The first requisite, of course, is to find one paper good enough for a letterhead, strong enough for a form to be handled in the workshop and cheap enough to use for everything. HAMMERMILL BOND certainly possesses all these qualifications. You will find that it suits the man who wants quality, "crackle" and strength in a letterhead. The ripple or linen finish is particularly suitable for letterhead use. But HAMMERMILL BOND is so low in price you can use it for all your slips and forms. It is particularly adapted for them in fact, because it comes in twelve colors and white. You can have different slips printed on different colors and make it easy to distinguish them apart. Every sheet is watermarked. You can specify HAMMERMILL BOND by name and be sure that you get it by looking for the watermark. That watermark is your protection. It is the manufacturer's assurance of a standard quality on which you can depend. HAMMERMILL BOND is the ideal paper for a large concern with many branches in different parts of the country, each buying their own stationery because HAMMERMILL BOND is carried in stock by paper jobbers in every large city. One set of specifications will do for all your branches. The actual money saving and the added assurance of a reliable, always satisfactory quality makes it well worth while to standardize your stationery on HAMMERMILL BOND.
