

ARCHDEACON H. F. PARSHALL DIES AT CASS LAKE HOME

Succumbs After Illness of Several Weeks; Became Ill Thursday Before Easter.

DID MUCH VALUABLE WORK AMONG INDIANS

Energetic Church Worker; Loved by All Who Knew Him; Place Hard to Fill.

Archdeacon Heman Franklin Parshall is dead.

He died this morning at his home at Cass Lake after an illness of several weeks. He was taken ill the Thursday before Easter from typhoid fever, and since Easter had been confined to his bed. Meningitis and other complications set in and although specialists were called from St. Cloud, Minneapolis and Wadena, their efforts were of no avail.

Services Tomorrow. Services will be held at the Cass Lake church tomorrow afternoon at which Bishop J. D. Morrison will deliver the sermon. The body will be shipped to Faribault Monday morning where the funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon. Interment will be made in a Faribault cemetery.

Born in Faribault. Archdeacon Parshall was born in Faribault, September 27, 1867. He attended and graduated from the Faribault high school and was educated at the Seabury Divinity school. In 1893 he graduated as a Bachelor of Divinity from the Divinity school and was ordained deacon by Bishop E. S. Thomas.

He was ordained priest in 1894 and his first work was at Gunnison, Colo. He remained in Colorado about one year and on returning to Minnesota he was named rector of St. John's church at St. Cloud in 1895. He remained in St. Cloud until his appointment as archdeacon of Duluth when he moved to Cass Lake. This was about 12 years ago.

Venerable Archdeacon. His appointment as archdeacon gave him the title of Venerable Archdeacon and he became president of the standing committee. He was placed in charge of all the missions in the territory where there were no resident pastors and was superintendent of all the Indian missions.

He was married to Miss M. Nell Gilmer of Faribault in that city May, 1894.

Archdeacon Parshall took charge of the Episcopal church in Bemidji about eight years ago and held church for several years in the Odd Fellows hall. About six years ago he superintended the construction of the church here and ever since has worked energetically decreasing the debt of the Bemidji church.

Parents Survive. Surviving are the wife and two daughters, Mrs. Donald Grant and Miss Eleanor Parshall of Cass Lake; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Parshall of Faribault; three brothers, William of Little Falls, Arthur E. of Devils Lake, N. D., and Dana of St. Paul; two sisters, Mrs. T. F. Robinson of Minneapolis and Mrs. B. D. Stein of Omaha.

He was a member of the Scottish Rite, Knights Templar and Shrine and was Past Grand Prelate of the Grand Commandery. He was a life member of the St. Cloud lodge of Elks.

Energetic Worker. Archdeacon Parshall was most energetic in church leadership. He was an indefatigable worker, visiting the Indian missions and many other places.

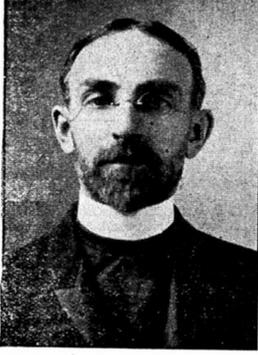

There is no one but will regret the passing of Archdeacon Parshall. He did a man's work and did it well. He will be missed from his accustomed place in life, but his memory will ever linger in the hearts of his friends and associates and his grave at Faribault will be adorned with the tender forget-me-nots of future years.

It was well that he lived for he was an example for all men to follow.

Bishop J. D. Morrison of Duluth, when informed of the death of Archdeacon Parshall by the Duluth representative of the Pioneer said: "Archdeacon Parshall was one of the foremost men of our ministry in the whole Northwest. He was devoted and tireless and utterly unselfish in the pursuit of his duty. His career was marked by absolute devotion to duty and he commanded the respect and love and devotion of all the people to whom he ministered. In the diocese of Duluth he held a commanding position. He will be profoundly missed by the bishop, the

PLACE WILL BE HARD TO FILL SAYS BISHOP

"I don't see how Bishop Morrison of Duluth can fill the place of Archdeacon Parshall," said Bishop Edsall when informed of the death of Archdeacon Parshall by a Pioneer representative in Minneapolis this morning. "I'm very much shocked," added the bishop. "Archdeacon Parshall did much valuable work among the Indians. He was a zealous missionary worker. I have known him a long time. He was one of the few men remaining working who was working before the Duluth diocese in which he worked was divided from many dioceses."

WORLD MADE BETTER BECAUSE HE WAS IN IT

"Though not personally acquainted with Archdeacon Parshall, having been in the city only a few months, I have come to know much about him and to appreciate him, for what he was and for what he has done," said Rev. B. D. Hanscom of the Methodist church today when informed of the death of Archdeacon Parshall. "He will be greatly missed. He was much beloved. He had not lived in vain. Surely the world has been made better because he has been in it. Our sympathy goes out to the widow and children at this time, and may the God of all comforts, who comforted the hearts of his people, comfort their hearts in this, the hour of their great sorrow."

ARCHDEACON PARSHALL WAS A MAN'S MAN

"The death of Archdeacon Parshall moves our community with a feeling of deep sorrow and loss," said Rev. Lester P. Wartford of the Presbyterian church when informed of the death of Archdeacon Parshall, by a Pioneer Representative. "Words are very inadequate to express our appreciation of the life and service of one of God's good men, but nevertheless they express in a small way the large place which Rev. Parshall had in the heart of our city. "As pastor of the Presbyterian church, I have been in Bemidji but a short time. However, I have been here long enough to know and appreciate the worth of Rev. Parshall's fine service. He was primarily a man's man. One who when passing through a train left a glow in the eyes of his friends which seemed to say, 'He is my brother.' He had the spirit of unselfish sacrifice, and traveled without question through the length and breadth of our county to minister to the sorrowing and needy. He was a broad man who served without regard to cast or creed. He did not choose the attractive places to the neglect of the remote; but with that generous heart of a true missionary filled the niche which God placed at his door and questioned not his own preference or desire. Through the passing years he has been living in our midst as a man among men. One whom the stranger and traveler loved to greet. One whom men sought out when they came to town because of his breadth of sympathy and fellowship. These fine qualities have endeared Archdeacon Parshall not only to his own church and following, but to the larger field which stretches
