STATE GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES AND THEIR HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE

(Prepared by the Minnesota Historical Society for the United Press.)

PINE COUNTY: When this county was established in 1856 it was located in the heart of the great pine region of the state.

THE PLATFORMS: The platforms of the Progressive and Republican parties have been completed.

Republican: Military and industrial preparedness demanded.

Navy large enough to protect Americans everywhere.

Army sufficiently large to protect country's borders and form a strong nucleus for national defense in case of war.

Universal military service favored. State militias to be encouraged.

"One flag and one faith in America."

Administration policy towards Mexico declared "weak and wobbling."

Tariff duties sufficient to equalize wages at home and abroad urged.

Underwood tariff denounced as a failure and its repeal demanded.

Compensation to mail carrying ships, to be requisitioned in case of war, but no government ownership of vessels.

Literacy test for all immigrants. Honest neutrality between warring nations of Europe.

Child labor and other social justice planks included, but no initiative, referendum or recall.

Progressive: Adequate provision for common defense as the foremost national concern.

Navy once more second in battle efficiency.

Regular army of 250,000 men as the first line of land defense.

Military training adequate to organize promptly a citizen soldiery controlled by the national government.

Full suffrage for women. Reaffirm declarations of 1912 platform.

Social and industrial justice demanded.

Conservation and development of national resources.

Protective system essential to prosperity.

Permanent expert tariff commission proposed.

Deep loyalty and undivided allegiance to America.

Performances of principles enunciated.

Pledge to "work with any man or party who sees a nation's need and puts forth a leader-fit to meet it."

Beginning next Monday Bemidji will be invaded by a large number of school teachers who will attend the Teachers' Training school here.

There will be representatives here from many districts and Bemidji should put its "best foot forward."

A work of art is the golden anniversary number of the Anoka County Union, which is edited by Granville S. Pease. The number contains 32 pages and is highly illustrated.

We congratulate Brother Pease on his excellent edition.

Sentiment for Moses E. Clappford renomination as United States senator is greater in Bemidji today than it ever was. The sentiment is increasing because of Senator Clapp's excellent record in congress.

The first thing we know there will be a split in the Democratic ranks. The naming of former Governor Glynn as temporary chairman was not done in the spirit of harmony in the Democratic ranks.

DR. EMIN DEFENDS THE TURKS AGAINST ARMENIAN CHARGES

(By Dr. Ahmed Emin) Editor, Constantinople "Tanin." Graduate Columbia University, N. Y. (Written for the United Press.) Constantinople, May 9. — (By mail.)—The American people have given their verdict in the Armenian question without hearing the Turkish side.

Consequently, there are in the American press and public opinion ideas totally unjust to the Turks.

In order to understand the situation rightly, one has to know first of all, that historically the Turks were the most humane conquering race imaginable.

At a time when they had every opportunity of assimilating the conquered races by force, they gave them freedom of religion, language and free community organization.

Had the Turks behaved as the Spaniards have against dissenters in religion or race, there would be no Armenians and no Armenian question today.

After the Young-Turkish revolution in 1908, the Christians acquired absolute equality with the Turks.

Their revolutionary activity under the reign of the former sultan was ascribed to their desire for equal rights of citizenship. It soon became clear that they thought of equal rights only as a means to the end of a national independent existence.

Instead of taking advantage of the new opportunity they had to become lawful Ottoman citizens, they established secret societies, made a large revolutionary organization in the country and distributed arms and bombs among their members.

The first duty of every state is to insure its independence. Therefore, Turkey had to resort to all the necessary measures for this important end.

Among the non-Turkish races the Armenians were the nearest to the Turks in regard to their spoken language and social habits.

Several decades ago, when they had not yet begun their revolutionary activity, they enjoyed the full confidence of the Turks, and they were always called by the Turkish press "our faithful fellow citizens, the Armenians."

In abusing the confidence of the Turks, the Christians went further than the other Christian races.

Especially, during the present war, they did not shrink from open treason, and tried to endanger from within the existence of their country, which was engaged in a fight for life or death at four different fronts, with powerful enemies, and caused the new Armenian troubles.

Lewis P. Shankelford, Republican delegate of Juneau, Alaska, speaks of San Francisco as back east, and Wallingmore and Nome, Alaska, as south.

A strong bull market on bandana handkerchiefs was apparent immediately following the big T. R. demonstration. During the evening street vendors reaped a rich harvest of dimes selling them about the lobby of the Auditorium.

Benjamin Griffin, Progressive national committeeman from Colorado, read reports of the initial session of the Republican convention at the Coliseum with keen interest.

"It reminds me of a song we used to sing when I was a boy," he said: "There's a name that's never spoken, There's a parent's heart that's broken, There's a picture that is turned against the wall."

The Republicans saw to it that an emergency hospital was provided in the Auditorium, but it can't fix fractured political booms.
