EDITORIAL OUTING AT GLENWOOD PROMISES TO BE "SOME" OUTING

On June 28, 29 and 30, the Northern Minnesota Editorial association will hold its annual outing at Glenwood and judging from the program there is nothing overlooked, "Doc' Rutledge even asking E. H. Denu business manager of the Pioneer Publishing company, to pitch the base-ball game, in addition to giving a talk before the convention.

At the February annual meeting of the Minnesota Editorial association, President Ericson of Spooner, on behalf of the Northern organization, extended a general invitation to the representatives of the state press to participate in the Glenwood outing. The invitation was unanimously accepted, and all Minnesota editors, publishers and employing printers and supply house representatives are urged to be at Glenwood during the

There will not be a dull moment during the entire outing; even one's dreams will be but mirrors of the pleasure of the occasion.

The good citizens of Glenwood have named active ladies and gentlemen as entertainment committees. They are co-operating with the Northern associatio nofficers and will fully spstain their enviable reputation as hospitable people.

Glenwood is a beautiful city loca-ted on the banks of Lake Minnewas ka, one of the grandest bodies of water of the Park Region: The Glen-wood summer hotel is ideally located among the imposing shade trees of Sunset Beach, a delightful environ-

The program is one that needs no extended commendation; suffice it to say that during the nine years that the Nortnern association has held outings none were better ar-ranged than is the Glenwood affair.

BIG-CIRCUS COMING
The day is passing when the cheerful circus agent, who seems to regard the hereafter as a huge joke, can recklessly participate in the wholesale abundance of vague phrases and the illusive adjective, in displaying his college education, by misleading the reader with beautiful generalities.

Not one line or one word in the advance announcements of the Yankee Robinson big three-ring wild ani-mal circus coming to Bemidji on Monday, June 24, will misrepresent any item or number on what is offered this season as the greatest arena program ever seen in the city. The gorgeous opening pageant is quickly followed by all the famous thrilling aerial and acrobatic acts; then in a steel protected arena Capt. Gerald Irving's double group of performing lions, Van Andrews mixed group of leopards, jaguars and pu-mas, Ruth LeNova's performing mountain lions, scores of trained ponies, riding monkeys, a double herd of performing elephants; Albert's educated polar bears, a score of funny clowns, acrobats and gymnasts galore, the Blue Ribbon horse fair, comprising over four hundred equines of value; the author can hardly absorb all these kaleidescopic changes going on simultaneously in the three rings.

HONEST ABE'S ADVICE

(A Letter)

To Convention Visitors:

Previous to and during the Civil War there lived a man who, on account of his honesty and square dealings with his fellow men, became known as Honest Abe. On account of his fairness his advice was constantly sought, and those who came to him abided by his decision. Thus lived Abraham Lincoln.

About five years ago a man named Abe Grossman came to Bemidji and opened a men's clothing and furnishing store. On account of his square dealings and honesty he also became known as Honest Abe, but not the "rail splitter;" instead he is known as the "price splitter." His advice is also frequently sought, and here is some advice he has for convention visitors:

"For that recreation period Saturday afternoon you should be equipped to enjoy yoursels, to the fullest extent. If you plan a trip on the lake you should have a hat that will protect you from sunburn. Perhaps you intend to spend the afternoon playing tennis, golf or some other outside game, and if you do, you should be properly clothed in light summer clothing. Get whatever you need and enjoy yourself to the fullest extent."

Honest Abe runs a men's clothing and furnishings store at 218 Minnesota avenue, across the street from the Commercial club rooms, where he conducts his business of price splitting. His stock is complete and he will welcome the convention visitors to Yours truly,
