Most housekeepers have their own tests by which they determine how much sugar to use in proportion to the juices and just how long the juice and sugar should be belled. First juice and sugar should be boiled. For those who wish a more accurate test the following is suggested:

Take a . convenient quantity of fruit juice, heat nearly or quite to boiling, add epsom salts and stir to dissolve. As the solution becomes nearly saturated pectin separates, rising to the top of the liquid as a compact layer, over a perfectly clear liquid. By using a straight-sided tumbler or other deep glass vessel, the thickness of the layer of pectin can be measured, if desired, with a At any rate the comparative amount of pectin can be accurately judged by observation.

Children's Ailments *

ISORDERS of the stomach and constipation are the most common diseases of children. To correct them you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets. One tablet at bed time will do the work and will make your child bright and cheerful the following morning. Do not punish your children by giving them castor oil. Chamberlain's Tablets are better and more pleasant to take.
