FORMER HIGH SCHOOL

WINS DECLAMATORY CONTEST

The following article is quoted from a clipping from the Fargo Forum regarding Miss Alys Hetland, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Bacon of this city, and who formerly attended the local high school.

"Miss Alys Hetland of the Moorhead high school, won first among the girls in the Ninth district declamatory contest held yesterday afternoon in Red Lake Falls, Minn. The decision of the judges was unanimous. Miss Hetland was the winner in the declamatory contest held in Moorhead last week between High schools of five Minnesota towns, which was held preparatory to yesterday's contest. She was also awarded high honors in the Dosland contest. Miss Hetland will represent the ninth district, in the girls' division at the state declamatory contest to be held in Minneapolis on April 2.

Miss Edna M. Norelius, head of the English and the public speaking department of the Moorhead school, said that there was keen competition in the contest and that it was a signal honor for Miss Hetland to secure first place, as the other contestants held under the auspices of the North all had marked ability.

The contest in Minneapolis will be west School of Expression. Miss Norelius, who has been coaching Miss Hetland, will accompany her contestant to the final contest."

MRS. LAHR HOSTESS

Mrs. J. P. Lahr entertained fifteen ladies at a "neighborhood party" at her home on Beltrami last evening, in honor of Mrs. S. C. Brown, who will leave next week for her new home in Canada. The evening was spent in sewing, playing cards and in conversation, after which a lovely lunch was served.

A Love Thrill at--- REX- TONIGHT Last Time

"To choose the best possible father for her children is a woman's right," she calmly told him.

She—a wild flower reared in the forest by her hermit father. He—a man of the world, a cynic who, scorched in the fires of love, had come out smiling—and sneering at womankind.

"It's time you took charge of her," said her listening father to the religious fanatic beside him. The preacher was the leader of "The Shining Band," a sect devoted to keeping men and women apart. The way this untaught daughter of Eve worked her will with this man of the world is startlingly pictured in
