MAY ALLISON in "THE WALK OFFS"

HE SAID HER DRESS WAS RED. SHE SAID IT WAS YELLOW AND THAT HE WAS COLOR BLIND. THEN HE MADE HER ADMIT IT WAS—

He was a Kentuckian and a "cave man." He placed bets on women as he would on a thoroughbred, but MAY ALLISON, as the beautiful young society woman in "THE WALK-OFFS," taught him a lesson. Screen Classics, Inc., made this feature production of the fashions and foibles of high social life from the Oliver Morosco stage success by the gifted collaborators, Frederic and Fanny Hatton, who wrote "Lombardi, Ltd." and "Years of Discretion."
