FARM LABOR SITUATION

The farm labor situation for the country as a whole is becoming decidedly easier, it is announced by the department of agriculture. Figures on the volume of employment, and the need of farm hands in the agricultural regions, which have been compiled by the bureau of crop estimates, indicate that the supply is both more plentiful and less expensive. At the same time, it appears that the farmers this spring are getting along with as little hired help as they can.

The percentage of normal supply of and demand for hired farm labor is given by the bureau of crop estimates, beginning with 1918, as follows:

Year	Relative Supply	Relative Demand	Ratio of Supply to Demand
1921	95.2	87.5	108.8
1920	72.4	105.3	68.8
1919	84.4	101.8	82.9
1918	72.9	101.4	71.9

The survey of the bureau was conducted according to states, and a careful resume made of the conditions that were found to prevail in each state.—The Farmer.

FITTING CEREMONY AND APPROPRIATE PLACE

The value to Bemidji of the new armory is rapidly becoming apparent. For the first time, Bemidji citizens were able to gather in an appropriate building yesterday and participate in a community patriotic meeting, and what could be more inspiring than the audience which gathered yesterday afternoon to take part in the Memorial Day exercises? With the Stars and Stripes floating over the heads of all assembled and here and there interspersed the uniforms of the soldiers and sailors of our army and navy betokening those who have fought for our country and those who are ready to fight again when the occasion requires, who could listen to the stirring words of patriotism and not be touched? It was apparent that all were duly appreciative of the event commemorated and the appropriate manner in which it was commemorated.

POLITICS IN THE PULPIT?

Politics in the pulpit? No, not politics as such; but if a political party enters into an "entangling alliance" with a moral issue that fact should not close the mouth of a preacher and prevent the application of the Word to the question at issue. Though it may be lamentable foolishness for one to devote an entire sermon to a politico-ethical issue, that preacher would be decidedly wanting in stamina who cannot pay his respects thereto in a brief but forceful manner. It is difficult to conceive of a moral issue that could rightly claim the whole time of a sermon; it is equally hard to imagine an issue with moral content that should not be given direct and positive treatment in the course of a sermon easily lending itself to the occasion.—Northwestern Advocate.

CALLS FOR STEADY NERVE

Duty Devolving on Cook for East
African Monarch Can Not Be Called a Sinecure.

The Rev. John Roscoe, rector of Orington Norfolk, kept members of the Royal society wondering for more than an hour while he lectured on his journey through East Africa, where he went on a tour of investigation on behalf of the government and the Royal society.

King George was amused by the traveler's description of the royal servants at Bunyoro, one of the places Mr. Roscoe visited. He described their duties in his lecture in London.

"The king's chief cook has a very trying job," said Mr. Roscoe. "The custom is that every morning he brings to the king a pot of specially prepared meat, with which he must walk all around the royal enclosure. With his face whitened he enters the presence, and in a dead silence throughout the court, which may not be broken by coughing or sneezing on pain of instant death, the chief cook puts a piece of meat at the end of a fork into the king's mouth."

"He does this four times, but if by chance or nervousness he touches the king's teeth with the metal fork he dies instantly."

"These servants find the ordeal so trying that they can only carry it out for a few days, after which they are sent away for a six weeks' holiday. That is all the meat the king is supposed to have in a day and for the rest he lives on milk."—London Daily Mail.

REBUKED LACK OF COURTESY

Young Lady Naturally Felt She Had Rights as the Invited Guest of the Driver.

A young farmer who lives in a southern Indiana county brought a driving horse recently, and after pondering over a name for it decided to call it Closer.

A few days later the young man made an engagement with a young woman in the neighborhood for a Sunday afternoon drive. At the appointed hour on the day designated the young man, driving the horse hitched to a freshly-painted buggy, called for the young woman. They started on the drive and the horse trotted along at a satisfactory speed for the first half-mile. When the speed began to slacken the young man said:

"Get up, Closer."

The girl immediately made proper manifestation of her indignation.

"That's my horse's name," replied the youth, apologetically.

"Well, that's just what I was wondering about," said the girl. "Who is your guest on this drive, the horse or me?"

"Why, you are, of course," said the driver in amazement.

"Well, please do me the honor and courtesy to direct your conversation toward your guest," she said with a smile.—Indianapolis News.

Famous Poem Founded on Fact.

Mrs. Hemans' poem "Casablanca" is founded on the death of Louis Casablanca, a French naval officer. As captain of the flagship Orient, he commanded the fleet, which transported Napoleon to Egypt. In the battle of Abukir, Admiral Bugeyes was killed and Casablanca was put in command. He was wounded and the ship caught fire, but still he remained at his post. His 10-year-old son would not leave his father and both were killed when the ship was blown up.

"Jointed Snake" Really Lizard.

The glass, or so-called jointed snake, is really a lizard. When handled roughly the tail portion will break into two or three pieces. Contrary to superstition, these pieces will not unite with the body again, though a rudimentary tail is sometimes developed after the first one is lost.

SPUR

The town buzz were out Saturday taking bids on road work.

Mr. Leedy and family from Brainerd are occupying their new home on what was known as the Opsahl place. The late rain has rendered the state road pretty muddy.

Theodore Gerlinger has purchased another large bay horse.

A number of people from here attended the stump blowing demonstration near Bemidji on Friday.

The Sunday school is progressing very nicely under the leadership of Mrs. James R. Stepp of this place.

Mr. David Carnegie has lately purchased a piano and has also purchased the farm lately owned by J. C. Souder.

"Dave" is surely taking hold of things.

Just Naturally Friendly.

A woman who is known in the southern Indiana town in which she lives for her friendliness and absentmindedness, recently went to Indianapolis on a shopping tour. She planned to return on a late afternoon interurban car, and hurried from store to store. She bought several articles at a department store and was walking rapidly toward the exit thinking where she would go next. In her haste she dropped one of her packages. A floor walker recovered it and handing it to her said:

"Here is your parcel, madam. Call again, please."

"Thank you, I will," she replied.

"You bring your folks and come over to see us real soon."

To Brighten Carpets.

Brighten your carpets after the dust has been beaten out of them by scattering on them cornmeal mixed with salt, and then sweeping them off. Spots can be removed by the use of ox-gall or ammonia and water.

Says Uncle Eben.

"I b'lieves in art," said Uncle Eben, "an I wants it encouraged. But I hates to see a boy spendin' his life being a poor painter when he might of been a good whitewasher."

EXTENSION AND FARM

BUREAU POULTRY SERVICE

By Professor A. C. Arny, Agronomist, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

Green Feeds

On farms where the hens have free range they probably secure sufficient green material without special provision being made. However, the hens say by their actions that Bluegrass on the lawn is not as palatable as the newly growing grain in close by fields. On a city lot or two, permanent green ranges are not practical. Here the available space should be divided into three or four runs. Each may be successively spaded and sown, thus providing fresh ground as well as throughout summer. When to turn the hens in, depends on the amount of green feed available. These feeds may be supplied by lawn clippings as they are made, waste lettuce, beet tops, cabbage leaves and other garden products that hens like. A very small plot of alfalfa will furnish much green feed which may be cut and fed throughout the summer. Where large runs are available, Kentucky blue grass and bromine grass are probably the best permanent grasses. Unless they are cut frequently, they do not furnish highly palatable green feed.

Alfalfa is the best leguminous crop for ranges which are to be left for several years. It also must be cut frequently in order to keep tender growth available.

Essentials

Where the alfalfa is to stand for several years, seed of the Grimm variety should be used. It is higher in price than the seed of common alfalfa. This seed can not be distinguished by looking at it, and therefore, should be purchased only from reliable sources. Sow 12 to 16 pounds per acre on a well prepared seed bed free from weeds any time from early spring to the latter part of July. If land is weedy, it's best to delay the seeding until June or July so that the weeds may be eradicated thoroughly. Inoculation is necessary for best results. To bring this about secure about as many pounds of soil from the surface 4 to 6 inches of a well inoculated white sweet clover or alfalfa field as you have pounds of seed. Keep this soil from direct sunlight. Just before sowing the seed, mix it with the soil, sow broadcast and harrow to cover. If the seed is to be drilled, the soil may be scattered broadcast previous or following the drilling and harrowing to cover. If any weeds appear, they may be cut off. If the alfalfa is pastured any, the same season as sown, it must be done with caution. About 6 inches of growth should be left as winter covering.

For a two-year range, early oats and barley, one-half bushel each per acre, with 4 pounds of medium red clover, 2 pounds of alsike clover and 4 pounds of timothy gives good satisfaction. As the oats and barley ripen, the hens will secure grain as well as green feed. The clover will furnish abundant green feed throughout the fall and the following year. For an annual pasture even on larger areas, dwarf Essex rape may be used to advantage, sowing only amounts that will be utilized by the hens while it is yet young and tender.

Ottawa, Ont.—More than one hundred prospectors and their parties have already invaded the Kazabazua district, Quebec, where gold has been discovered on the Joint farm. The prospecting district is extended over an area of at least ten square miles. More than 5,000 acres have already been registered in the immediate neighborhood of the Joint farm. Robert Joint, Jr., on whose farm the first strike was made, is making arrangements to commence actual operations on his claim.

Wants His Money Back

"I can thank Mr. O'Brien, a neighbor, for my recovery from severe colic attacks and stomach trouble that nearly forced me to cross the river Jordan. I spent thousands of dollars in the past nine years for doctors and medicine and would have died but for my neighbor's advice to use Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I wish I had the money back I spent for other medicine." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—Advertisement.
