

NEWS OF THE THEATRES

"ISOBEL: OR THE TRAIL'S END"
AT REX THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

One of the most successful film dramas of the day, "Isobel: or the Trail's End," is to be the feature offering at the Rex theater on Thursday and will remain at that theater for two days thereafter. Directed by Edwin Carewe, adapted from a famous story by James Oliver Curwood, and presented by a cast including House Peters and Jane Novak, this rugged romance of the far north has been the recipient of more praise by metropolitan critics than any other production of the season.

REAL HAWAIIAN SINGERS AND PLAYERS AT GRAND TOMORROW

There is something about Hawaiian music which seems to reach out and grasp one's innermost soul. One almost detects the fragrance of flowers as one listens to the dreamy melodies, imagination reaches glorious heights, one is transported far out and away from the prosaic workaday realm to the beautiful balmy shores of Waikiki. With the enchanting strains of the sweet Hawaiian music sounding on the still night air, the strumming of ukuleles, the native dancers, the quiet moonlit beach—all combining into a beautiful enchanting dream.

Kohono's Original Native Hawaiian singers and dancers will appear in person at the Grand theater in the afternoon at 2:30 and twice each evening at 7:30 and at 9:15. Tomorrow and Thursday at the Grand theater as a special added attraction to "The Gamblers," a six part feature picture starring Marguerite Fisher. As the Hawaiians come to Bemidji very highly recommended, and the admission price of 40c is very low, patrons of the Grand theater have a real musical treat in store for them.

"THE GAMBLERS" AT THE GRAND THEATER WEDNESDAY

With Marguerite Fisher in the leading role, and Hayward Mack as the "heavy" you may be sure of some strong, speedy action in "The Gamblers," America's vivid new photodrama which comes to the Grand theater tomorrow.

It is a western drama with the first scenes filmed in a rough Nevada mining camp, and its denouement is in a fashionable gambling resort which is aptly described as a "gilded hell hole." Love, revenge and avarice are the threads interwoven into the action until a woman's heart is touched by unselfish love—love for one man which awakened a love for humanity—and then the beautiful bubble which the gamblers were about ready to grasp and preserve in triumph, suddenly collapsed.

"The Gamblers" might be renamed "The Girl Who Was Game," for Rose, even when she plays the roulette wheel for the last time to help a friend in trouble, even when she loses the last thing she had to stake—herself—never once wavers. It is the sort of a play that will hold the absolute attention of the audience every second—and the heroine, the sort of a girl that everyone feels a tremendous pity and admiration for, which intensifies relief when the last scene finds her in the arms of the man who will make her "happy ever after."

A strong cast supporting Marguerite Fisher includes L. C. Shumway, Hayward Mack, C. Dempsey Tabler, Joseph Bennett and Evans Kirk. The direction is under George L. Cox.

"PARDONED BY PRES. WILSON"
REX TODAY, WEDNESDAY

The latest in films—at the Rex theater beginning today.

MOONSHINING

Beginning today the Rex theater begins the interesting run of a film called "Pardoned by President Wilson," depicting the checked and true career of a member of the Hatfield clan, up in the mountains of Kentucky, in conjunction with which a real, practical still, captured in the mountains will be on display at the theater.

The story reads like fiction, but is historically correct. Charles Pérez, who is here to make personal appearances with the film, was adopted by the Hatfield family and spent nine years with that clan, when on January 2, 1915, a cave on the Hatfield lands in the mountains was raided by "revenuers" and three members of the raiding posse were killed. Pérez was in the cave at the time but had no part in the fighting. When the battle was over he went with the Hatfields into federal court where he and the rest were sentenced for life in the federal prison at Atlanta. After serving three years and fifteen days Joe Hatfield confessed to a Catholic priest and told the true story of the raid and the battle which followed. This cleared Pérez, of course, and when Hatfield was persuaded to tell the story to the warren, the Atlanta newspapers took up the matter at once and President Wilson pardoned Pérez.

Pérez in his lecture with the film at the Rex theater tells an interesting story of life at Atlanta federal prison and of the history of the notorious Hatfield clan.

He appears in conjunction with the Rex's regular picture program.

DANGEROUS MOMENT STORY

OF GREENWICH VILLAGE
Greenwich village has served as the background for many a recent play, but never has the free and unfettered atmosphere of the Bohemian district adjoining New York's Washington Square been so faithfully transplanted to the celluloid strip as in "The Dangerous Moments," the Universal screen story starring Carmel Myers which is showing at the Grand theater tonight only.

The dramatic action starts almost immediately after the initial title. There is a struggle, a mysterious murder, a precipitous flight across the roof tops, and Sylvia finds sanctuary in an artist's studio, fully believing that she has committed the greatest crime. Many situations develop, a romance blossoms and bears fruit, and after an hour of the most stirring incidents, relieved here and there by natural humor, the story comes to an unexpected climax.

Miss Myers has never done better work than in her present role, and the acting of Herbert Heyes as the artist, "Smoke" Turner as the amiable Bolshevik, George Rigas as the rooster, Lule Warrenton as his mother, and Bonnie Hill as the heiress above reproach. Marcel de Sano directed the production.

Episode 6 of the "Double Adventure" will complete the program.

A Great Heap of Small Sticks.
Grammar being but an introduction to the understanding of authors, if it be made too long or too short, it is a learner, it is a manner mortifier to the learner. And by the time he cometh to the most sweet and pleasant reading of old authors, the spark of fervent desire of learning is extinct with the burden of grammar like as a little fire is soon quenched with a great heap of small sticks; so that it can never come to the principal logs where it should long burn in a great pleasant fire.—Sir Thomas Elyot, "The Governor" (1531).

Presidents Who Served Two Terms.
The first president to serve eight years was Jefferson, who was followed in turn by Madison and Monroe, eight years each. Then came John Quincy Adams, who had one term only. He was followed by Jackson with two full terms, ending in 1837. Then came a break of 40 years, until 1877, before President Grant retired after eight years' occupancy of the White House. Cleveland served eight years, 1885-89 and 1893-97, but his two terms were interrupted by that of Benjamin Harrison, 1889-93.

Cut Down Gas Bills.
Comparatively few people realize that the gas bills may be cut down materially by exercising care in lighting the gas. Hold a lighted match over the burner, then very slowly turn on the gas. If the gas is turned on full force before the match is applied, a slight explosion occurs which affects the meter and sends it forward rapidly.

The Oldest Science.
Astronomy has the glory of being the oldest of the sciences. It was by watching the spangled heavens that man first got his conception of an ordered universe, and from that the idea of other things governed by law.

DAIRY POINTS

BUTTER SHIPPED IN SUMMER

Parcel Post Will Prove Entirely Satisfactory if Proper Conditions Are Maintained.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Parcel post shipments of butter are likely to be subjected to conditions, especially during the summer, which may cause deterioration and injure the quality of the butter. It is highly desirable, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, that every possible precaution be taken before shipment. Particularly is this true of farm-made butter, because conditions affecting its quality and condition usually cannot be controlled as easily as in creameries. Farm-made butter, however, should be marketed just as satisfactorily as creamery-made butter when it is properly made and prepared for shipment.

It is necessary to maintain proper conditions in the care of the milk and cream and the making of butter if a marketable product is to be produced. Too much importance, it is said, cannot be given to maintaining clean conditions in the stable and in other places where the milk, cream, or butter are produced or kept, for they absorb odors and spoil very quickly. It is important, too, that these products be kept in a cool place. High temperatures should always be avoided, as they produce a soft, oily condition of the butter which is undesirable.

In manufacturing butter on the farm or in a factory the buttermilk must be removed and washed out, and the proper amount of salt must be incorporated evenly. Frequently parcel post shipments of farm butter are unsatisfactory to customers because proper methods were not used in making it, and the quality and condition of the butter thereby injured before it was shipped. For the satisfaction of customers it is important that a uniform quality of butter be produced.

Methods used in preparing butter for parcel post shipping depend largely upon the local conditions and style of package used. To insure delivery in the best possible state, butter, after being packed, printed and placed in cartons, should be chilled or hardened thoroughly before it is shipped.

One of the most satisfactory ways of preparing butter for shipment is in regular, one-pound prints, the standard print measuring 2½ by 2½ by 4½ inches. Every pound print should be neatly wrapped in regular butter parchment or paper. A second thickness of such paper has been found to add materially to the carrying possibility of the butter. Waxed paper may be used for the second wrapping. As a further protection to the print, it should be placed in heavy manila paraffin cartons, which may be obtained from folding paper-box companies, either plain or printed as a stock carton or with a special private brand.

Corrugated fiber-board shipping containers of various sizes may be obtained for shipping one-pound prints of butter. These boxes or containers practically insulate the butter and furnish much protection against heat. Further protection may be obtained by wrapping the container in stout wrapping paper. The whole should be tied securely with a strong cord. In tying the twine it should be drawn tightly around the package so as to insure its proper carriage.

Some persons ship butter by parcel post in improvised or home-made containers. Clean, discarded, corrugated paperboard cartons are obtained from the grocer or other merchant at small cost or frequently without any cost at all. It is possible to cut a piece of paper board in such shape and size that when it is folded it will form a satisfactory carton.

LIKE FEEDING COWS IN DARK

Wisconsin Farmer Praises Cow-Testing Association as Guide-Board to Better Dairying.

"When I bought my farm two years ago there was a herd of scrub cows on it," writes a Wisconsin farmer to a field agent of the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture. "I joined the cow-testing association, and soon found that my scrub cows were a failure, so I disposed of them and bought some purebred and grade Holstein cows. The cow-testing association is a guide-board on the way to better dairying and a big saving in feeds, as one can feed to so much better advantage where the production is known. Trying to feed without records of your cows is like feeding in the dark."

BOYCOTT IS STRONGEST WEAPON OF SINN FEIN

By Chas. McCann,
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, July 26.—Economic warfare is assuming equal importance in Ireland with the swifter, more spectacular battle of arms between Sinn Feiners and the government's soldiers and police.

While flying columns of the Irish Republican army are ambushing crown forces throughout the south, the Sinn Fein government is conducting a silent, but more effective fight by means of the boycott.

Over a year ago, Sinn Fein decreed a boycott of certain Belfast goods because of alleged discrimination against Catholic workers in the Ulster capital. The boycott has spread until it covers all northern Irish goods and commerce and a great deal of English goods.

The latest Sinn Fein embargo has been placed on all banking intercourse between north and south and northern banks are feeling the loss, just as northern factories have.

Through the boycott many Ulster cloth, biscuit, shoe, tobacco and drug manufacturers have lost half their trade, and are trying so far unsuccessfully to overcome heavy losses. The boycott has spread to English goods, which Dail Eireann considers can be supplied by southern Irish firms. Agricultural implements, margarine, shoe polish and soap are among the articles boycotted by an order a few weeks ago. Many patriotic "Shinners" are smoking cigarettes manufactured in the south, though most, including the leaders, have not made this sacrifice.

With the convening of the Ulster parliament June 22, Sinn Fein began to tighten what is termed a "band of steel" around the six northern counties. The idea is to isolate the north, and by carrying to its extreme the partition of north and south by the home rule act, to persuade Ulster that Ireland must be united.

Ulstermen confess that the policy has hurt. While a great deal of Ulster's trade is done outside of Ireland, many industries, particularly the ones cited, depend almost entirely upon southern patronage. Efforts to avoid the boycott by shipping goods to England and Scotland and back again under another firm's name to Ireland have failed, as Sinn Fein always uncovers the evasion and boycotts the British firm.

As regards the south's compliance with boycott orders, there is little trouble. A town council will meet and decide upon a boycott. Public notices are issued to the effect that certain goods are banned. If a shopkeeper fails to obey the order promptly, he is served with a notice of which the following is typical:

"I understand that you have recently received a consignment of goods from Belfast. May I point out to you the degree of a Dail ('The Dail' for Dail Eireann) the republican government which forbids all dealings directly or indirectly with Belfast firms? Will you please give a bearer an explanation and written guarantee that you will cease trading with these firms?"

There is never any question as to the effectiveness of such a request. Disobedience would mean that the offending shopkeeper's premises would be wrecked, and that the shopkeeper himself might be killed. There is one feature of the boycott in which even the British government officials see hope—the pointing out to Ulster that southern Ireland must be friendly in order that the north be prosperous. Many government authorities see the only solution in Ireland in an agreement between north and south.

Was a Good Judge of Liquor

"Since a young man I had a liking for liquor and was considered a pretty good judge of it at one time, but constant drinking gave me stomach trouble which became chronic. My stomach would have been a valuable addition to a gas factory. Doctors did not seem to relieve me. One day my druggist got me to try May's Wonderful Remedy, and I am now as good as new."

It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—Adv.

Auditory Nerves.
The action of the ear is this. A sound is transmitted from some position, causing a disturbance in the air. This disturbance is collected by the outer ear, passed down the connecting passage, and strikes the skin of the drum, causing it to vibrate. The drum in turn communicates its vibrations to the oval window. Thence they travel to the liquid of the inner ear, and the hearing nerve gathers them up and transmits them to the brain.
