SPOON ON THE STAIRWAYS

Ideal New York Trysting Place Found to Be in the Midst of the City's Busy Whirl.

Publish it not in the streets of Astoria, nor whisper it to old Mrs. Grundy, but Dan Cupid finds a way even in the prosaic jungles of lower Manhattan to provide youthful lovers with a place to spoon, observes a New York Sun writer. The top of a Fifth avenue bus may do for those who are hardened to the ways of the great city, but there are some, indeed many, who just can't say sweet nothings to each other with the rest of the international world looking on.

For these kind, architects have provided a quiet spot in practically every office building in New York, and it only remained for the sweet young things to find it. They have.

It's a fact that the average New Yorker, business man or woman, messenger or stenographer, has no use for the stairway. They, he or she, ride in the elevator, even if it's only one floor. As a result, the stairways have all the seclusion of a quiet nook, hours away from Broadway, on the sunny side of a hill, only the light in most stairways is provided by a few candle power globe of varying degree of intensity, depending upon the cobwebs. And as a trysting spot, well, there was evidence in some that they were also used as a place in which to enjoy a little lunch, while discussing the proposition to begin housekeeping in a little flat up Harlem way, or out in Brooklyn. The evidence being crumbs, cigarette ashes, and an occasional hair-pin.

Certain Trouble.

The project for an American academy of poetry and song will not materialize without some friction. Neither would the institution be maintained without more controversy. If it were just a clearing house for poetry it would be easier; but even that might furnish argument. There is such a difference of opinion as to what really constitutes poetry. There is a large school willing to admit as poetry anything which has neither rhyme nor reason. Others who follow such justists as Bryant and Longfellow insist that real poetry must have both. Poets it would be best to compromise with before a nonpartisan committee for admission. Even a hall of fame for poets might start a fight.—Los Angeles Times.

When Men Carried Handbags.
There are very few articles of feminine apparel which were not first worn by the sterner sex. Earliest examples of the useful handbag were carried by the gods, priests, kings and princes of Babylon. According to the scriptures they must have been very prettily embroidered, too.

Popular Japanese Amusement.
We of the western world "loop the loop" and "shoot the chutes" in our amusement parks; but in Japan the people indulge in more gentle forms of amusement. One of their most thrilling rides is across Tokyo bay in an aerial railway.
The cars hang on stout cables that are stretched across the bay and they are operated by a motorman who stands in front. The cars are made so that they will float in case of accident.—Popular Science Monthly.

Those present were: Misses Delores Barnell, Mabel Croon, Dorothy Benson and Edla Rude; Messrs. Louis Rudy, Charles Reed, and Thomas Simons; Messadames Croon, B. Stafford, H. Marin, A. "OLD FASHIONED" PARTY AN ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

Over 100 persons were present, and all report an exceptionally fine time at the "Old Fashioned" party given in the M. E. Church last evening in honor of Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Zentz and family. Many of the guests came in costumes and added to the evening's entertainment. Old fashioned games were played during the evening and lunch was served.
Dr. E. A. Shannon made a few remarks, a review of the past year's work, and plans for the new, to which Dr. Zentz responded. During the singing of the "Keep Sweet" chorus, the guests formed in line and presented Dr. and Mrs. Zentz packages of sugar.
The rooms were very prettily decorated with autumn leaves.

MANY USES FOR GIANT KELP

Among Others, Sea Plant Lends Itself Excellently to the Making of "Hootch."

The aboriginal natives of British Columbia and Alaska can always get a suitable worm for distilling by picking it out of the sea. It is furnished by the hollow stem of the giant kelp, and serves excellently for the making of "hootch" from a mixture of molasses and grain flour. The giant kelp is anchored to the rocky bottom by a root-like holdfast, from which springs a stem that is sometimes 100 feet long. This stem is hollow for the upper half of its length, and terminates in a big bladder-like bulb from which, as it floats on the surface, fronds 50 feet long branch out. The plant grows from spores and is an annual. One variety is called "sea otter's cabbage," and is very plentiful in the region of Puget sound. Another, commonly known as "sea pumpkin," flourishes nearly as far south as San Diego bay. Bulls of the giant kelp are used in the Puget sound region as bottles to hold fish oil and by fishermen as bathholders. The Eskimos utilize the hollow stem as a siphon to empty water out of their kayaks, which, being decked over, are not easily baled in the ordinary way. Also from sections of the stem they make wheels for toy wagons.

REMEMBERED FATE OF BABY

Small Wonder That Winifred Fears for the Health of the Precious Neighborhood Newcomer.

When the stock arrived and left Betty Lou on the doorstep of the Jones family, she was at once the joy and delight of the entire neighborhood of children.

And why not? She was the first baby that had happened in the community for eight long years! Louise, being the last, and now a little old woman, was among the first to call and pay her respects to the new baby.

When Betty Lou had reached the sedate age of three weeks, she was wont to decline for hours in her brand-new buggy on the front porch of her home. This was quite a subject of gossip among the children and in some cases caused quite a little comment. It is needless to say that the children were never very far away from the Jones porch, and one day Winifred and Louise were heard discussing the matter in whispers and with much animation.

Winifred imparted to Louise in tones of great solemnity the terrible tale of how she once knew a teeny-weeny baby that had everything "just lovely," but when it was only two weeks old, it "took ammonia and died of too much air."—Indianapolis News.

Has at Least One Virtue.

Whatever else may be said about Charles Holmes, negro, no one can say that he is not frank.

Holmes, recently convicted on a charge of burglary, appeared for sentence before Superior Judge Harold Londerback.

"Holmes, what did you do for a living before you got into this trouble?" asked the court.

"Jes' stealin' and gamblin', Mistah Judge," answered the defendant. "Jes' stealin' and gamblin', sir, and Ah was considered proficient and professional in both lines."

"Your frankness is refreshing," remarked the court, and gave the defendant an indeterminate sentence in San Quentin.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Perdido River.
The Perdido river is a small river and lay on the western border of Florida, separating it from Alabama. The word is Spanish and means "lost."

Harnessing Volcano.

Tentative plans for the harnessing of Hawaii's mighty volcano, Kilauwee, have been prepared by a committee of manufacturers on the island, according to news reports. The volcano continuously is discharging vast quantities of heat, ranging as high as 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. It is planned to harness the heat and develop it into electricity for the unlimited development of industries on the island. It is proposed to make the heat available by borings made in safe territory, to depths where the heat is constant and high enough for the development of a continuous steam pressure.
