MISSOURI NEWSPAPERDOM

Saline Citizen, Sept. 21: Mrs. E. J. Bruce, one of the oldest residents of the county, died at her home in this city at 10:40 Sunday night. She had lived in Saline over sixty years, and had been a member of the Christian church ever since she was sixteen years old. Columbia Herald: C. M. Strong, a university graduate of 1900, a young man of fine character and decided ability, has begun the publication of a bright and newsy afternoon daily newspaper in Columbia. It is called the Tribune and is issued from an office on Ninth street. Success to the Tribune and long life! Odessa Democrat: At a mass meeting of the citizens of Odessa Thursday night the deep well which the people of Odessa have been trying to sink was given up and will not be attempted at the present time, or ever, as sufficient funds could not be secured to attain the object sought, sinking a well to go 1,000 feet. Odessa Democrat: There are several ears of corn on exhibition in the window of the Farmers' bank that were raised on Col. Elliott's farm, that are "astounding." They are different varieties and are fine for any country any season, but for this season they are just another evidence that this is the garden spot of the world. "Old Chip" in Richmond Democrat: Jack Kincaid has killed the largest rattler ever killed in this county. It had twenty-six rattles and the usual button. It was nearly five feet in length and five and one-half inches in circumference in the largest place. It was a dangerous undertaking with only a corn knife. It was an old resident and old enough to vote by four years. He also killed the smallest rattler about two weeks since. It was seven and one-half inches in length and only possessed the beginning of the button. Jackson Examiner: Last week James A. Bayles sold his entire apple crop to Messrs. Coombs & Gleason of New York. The crop consists of 320 acres near Greenwood and 40 acres here and the Alex Scruggs 38 acres, the consideration being $26,000. It is estimated that the crop will make this year about 20,000 barrels and the price is less than $1.50 per barrel. Mr. Bayles is a shrewd business man and an orchardist of some experience. The price paid is a big one, but should the crop fulfill expectations it will be worth $100,000 by Christmas time. Richmond Conservator: Noah Seward, of the Hardin country, Ray county's champion watermelon grower, was in town last Thursday with a load of five watermelons and left one at the Conservator office which tipped the beam at 78 pounds. Mr. Seward sent a large watermelon to the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, New York, and received a letter this week from Jas. I. Carter, of Hardin, who is connected with the exposition, stating that his watermelon was the largest and finest one on exhibition and that there was no doubt but that Mr. Seward would be awarded first prize. From a country exchange: The printing press has made presidents, killed poets, furnished bustles for lovely woman, run down horse thieves, transformed towns into cities, built schools and colleges, educated the minds of those who would otherwise have been ignorant and drones in society, punished genius with criticism; it has curtailed the power of kings, converted bankers into paupers and graced pantry shelves. It has made paupers out of college presidents; it has educated the homeless and robbed the philosopher of his reason; it smiles and turns its toes to the daisies, but it cannot be run to suit everybody, and the man who tries it will find himself in a lunatic asylum. Saline Citizen: F. L. Minor, who is at work on the Missouri Pacific below Marion and thirteen miles above Jefferson City, made a visit home to see his family Saturday and paid an appreciated call at the Citizen office. He says he thinks the road will be completed from Jefferson City to Boonville in two months. He also states there is no doubt whatever about its being the main line of the Missouri Pacific between St. Louis and Kansas City. They are building the roadbed eighteen feet wide instead of the usual width of fourteen and are ballasting from Jefferson City up with Merimac gravel. From Boonville to Marshall they have ballasted with crushed limestone. The rails have already been laid for several miles out of Jefferson City. Mr. Minor has no doubt whatever that this road will be the main line for both passengers and freight.

Bethany Democrat: While at work in a well on the premises of E. A. Aten, near Bridgeport, one day last week at a depth of thirty-two feet, the workmen came across well preserved portions of what was pronounced to be a butternut tree. The most singular part of the matter is that the butternut does not, at this time, grow in this part of the state, but that it did some hundreds, or perhaps thousands, of years ago is evident from the fact that this wood was found so far underground. Mr. Aten exhibited a well preserved butternut taken from the bottom of this well to the writer Friday. Missouri Exchange: Miss Nannie Vickroy, a teacher of Macon county, Mo., is the author of a unique answer to the question: "Who is the greatest woman in all history?" which was put to 200 school teachers. Miss Vickroy passed over Queen Victoria, Frances Willard, Helen Gould and other women whose names were the most popular, and declared: "The wife of the Missouri farmer of moderate means, who does her own cooking, washing and ironing, brings up a large family of girls and boys to be useful members of society, and finds time for her own intellectual and moral improvement is 'the greatest woman in all history.'" She was awarded a prize for the originality of her answer. Boonville Advertiser: The ground for the erection of the new Missouri Pacific depot here was staked off Wednesday, and work will be rushed as rapidly as possible on the building. The contract was awarded to H. J. Wallau, of Jefferson City. Mr. Wallau is now completing the roundhouse at that place. He also built the passenger station there and one at Wichita, Kansas. He was here Wednesday in company with Frank Sheets, engineer in charge of the work. The new station will cost between $20,000 and $30,000, and will be one of the finest on the entire system. It will be located between Water street and the levee, just west of the ferry landing. It will be of pressed brick and will make a most imposing structure. The ground about will be parked, and granitoid walks will give it an attractive appearance. The building will be a much finer one than was expected, and Boonville is very appreciative of the kindly feeling of the management of the road in the matter. Pulaski County Democrat: A newspaper man was asked to publish an article roasting a citizen. "Certainly," he said to the caller, "what shall I say?" He was furnished with an outline of what he wanted and wrote an article that was a scorcher. "That's splendid!" exclaimed the friend promptly when the article was read to him, "that is it, that'll make his old hair crinkle." "All right," said the editor, "let me see, what are your initials?" "Good heavens!" said the citizen, "you are not going to sign my name to that?" "Why not?" asked the editor. "I would not have anyone know I had anything to do with that for the world. I can't afford to get into a scrap with my neighbors." The editor smiled benevolently and said: "Why should I mix up in a scrape that does not concern me? Why should you expect me to assume the blame for the publication of an article to which you are afraid to sign your name?" The man stopped his paper and went away mad. Versailles Graphic: A. M. Smith, living five miles southeast of Chambersburg, relates a peculiar incident which happened at his place recently. It seemed that he had occasion to use some dynamite for blasting purposes last fall, and, as he had some of the stuff left, he stored it in the barn and thought no more about it. The other day one of his porkers was foraging around for something with which to satisfy the craving of its ever present hunger and happened to spy the dynamite. It tasted all right and Mr. Pig devoured the whole of it. It sat good on his stomach, too, and in order to make his satisfaction known he grunted contentedly and scratched his side against the leg of a horse that was standing in a stall near the scene of the feast. The horse liked not the feeling of the bristles and kicked vigorously, striking the hog full in the stomach. There was a tremendous explosion, and when Mr. Smith ran to the barn to see what caused the noise he found a large grease spot on the inside of the door and a few pieces of hide and some bristles scattered here and there. He betought him of the dynamite, went to look for it, discovered that it had disappeared, and the rest was easy.
