OF THE YOUNGERS.

Who Brought it About

ING OF THE NOTED BANDITS.

Description of Their First Day of Freedom.

In Kansas City Tuesday en Minneapolis Mrs. Cora McNeill, the woman through instrumentality the noted brothers were paroled and from the Minnesota penitentiary on and had a talk with Crittenden, county clerk of who rendered her great in securing the provisional of the outlaws.

Kansas City Times gives the report of Mrs. Deming's Mr. Crittenden:

Cora McNeill Deming, the good the Younger boys, the woman whose instrumentality the bits were paroled from the penitentiary, called upon Clerk Crittenden at the court yesterday. Mrs. Deming is on to Colorado from her home in doings to Parole Agent Whittier, who is one of the finest of men. Cole seems to make friends faster than Jim." Mrs. Deming began to work for the parole of the Youngers four years ago. She secured the signatures of such men as Archbishop Ireland and ex-Governor Ramsey to the petition for the Youngers' pardon. She also worked with the legislature and the delay in recommending the parole she attributes to the rumor circulated by the "grafters" that a fund of $65,000 had been raised by the Youngers' friends to secure the parole, the "grafters" holding off in the hope of getting some of it.

CRITTENDEN TALKS. "The last time I saw Cole Younger," said Mr. Crittenden, "he told me he was getting old and that he wanted to come home to die. He said whiskey was the cause of the murder. He warned the boys not to touch liquor, but they wouldn't listen to him and it was those who drank whiskey who did the killing."

THE GREAT CATTLE SHOW.

Lafayette will be Represented at Kansas City Next Week.

The big cattle show takes place at Kansas City next week and the prospects are that it will be the banner exhibit of that up-to-date cattle town. Three distinct breeds are to be represented—Herefords, Shorthorns and Galloways, this being the first display made by breeders of the latter at a Kansas City show.

Special prizes have been offered in all three divisions but are more liberal for the Shorthorns than for Herefords and Galloways. However, there is nothing stingy about prizes in any of the rings.

Heretofore Hereford breeders have selected judges from among breeders of other families of cattle but this year they concluded to make their selections at home, so to speak, on the theory that a Hereford breeder knows more about a Hereford animal than a breeder of Shorthorns or Galloways. The judges are Thomas Mortimer, Madison, Neb.; John Scharbauer, of the meeting held by Dr. Wharton in Marshall last summer. Judge Rich said: "I had the pleasure of attending Dr. Wharton's meeting at Marshall for about one week. He impressed me as a man of strong mind, well endowed with common sense, of fine education, a big heart and thoroughly consecrated to his calling of preaching the gospel. He used no sensational or clap-trap methods, but made strong appeals to men's reason and judgment. His large tent, which seated about fifteen hundred people, was crowded to its utmost capacity at almost every service. The results of the meeting were very satisfactory to the pastors and people of Marshall. A large number of men of mature years and influence in the community who had hitherto paid no attention to matters of religion professed conversion and have connected themselves with different churches. Dr. Wharton believes and practices that the bible is the word of God. That hell is the destiny of unbelievers. That repentance of sins and the exercise of faith in God are necessary to salvation. "I feel quite sure that if the
